Denied a Voice in Sherbrooke Court, Jerome and Aids Go to Quebec with Appeal.

PRISONER GAINS DELAY

Wins a Respite from Deportation by Dropping His Habeas Corpus Fight.

WILD TUMULT IN COURT

Spectators in Frenzy of Delight at His Victory—Now Seeks a Sanity Review.

Special to The New York Times.

SHERBROOKE, Quebec, Aug. 27.—Following a day replete with sensational developments, Harry Kendall Thaw still occupied his cell room in the hospital ward of the Sherbrooke Jail late to-night, defying the immigration authorities and the representatives of New York State to lay hands upon him. Insofar as the legal tangle is concerned the status of his case apparently is just the same as on the day he was arrested in the little cabin of Benjamin Cadieux at St. Hermenegilde-Barford on a faulty warrant.

Refused recognition in the Superior Court here by Judge Arthur Globensky, and checkmated in every effort they had made to have Thaw deported to New York State or at least to some other State from which he could be extradited, William Travers Jerome, Special Deputy Attorney General for New York, with Franklin Kennedy, Deputy Attorney General, and their Canadian counsel, S. W. Jacobs, K. C., started for Quebec to-night to lay the case before Sir Lormer Gouin, Premier of the Province of Quebec.

They will ask the Premier, who also is leading prosecuting officer of the Province and head of the Attorney General's Department, to quash the faulty commitment on which Thaw is being held and thus automatically set him free. Should the Premier take such action Thaw could be seized by the immigration authorities and deported. If Jerome and his co-workers should be unsuccessful it would seem that Thaw had it within his power to remain safe in the little jail here until his case, in the natural course of events, came before the Court of Kings Bench in October.

Tumult in the Court.

Thaw was taken into court this morning and his lawyers at once moved to dismiss their writ of habeas corpus. The motion was made by W. L. Shurtleff of Thaw's counsel, whereupon Mr. Jacobs, a Canadian lawyer assisting Mr. Jerome, started to protest.

Judge Globensky cut him short with the exclamation:

"I do not wish to hear from your side of the case. This is an ex parte proceeding."

As this practically sustained Thaw's lawyers the crowd in the courtroom rose to its feet, cheering madly.

"Three cheers for Thaw. Three cheers for Globensky. Three cheers for British fair play. Three cheers for British justice," yelled the crowd.

A little olive-skinned woman started the cheering. Every face was alight. If there was a man or woman among the spectators who did not regard the escaped prisoner of Matteawan as a hero it was impossible to find him or her in the crowd.

Finally when the court clerk was able to make himself heard he announced that the court would stand adjourned until 3:30 o'clock, when the Judge would hand down his decision on the motion of Thaw's counsel.

There is bitter resentment in Sherbrooke against the array of lawyers headed by Mr. Jerome, who came here to take Thaw back to the asylum, and it would be hard to duplicate the sort of ovation that Thaw got from the crowd both in the courtroom and outside.

Judge Silent During Tumult.

To those accustomed to the decorum of a New York courtroom, the spectacle was amazing. It was amazing even to old Sheriff Aylmer and to the seasoned bailiff. Both of them, startled by the sudden uproar of sound, turned in a scared way to the little white mustached judge and waited his orders, but he gave none. Sprinkled here and there throughout the crowd were policemen, who looked up in a puzzled and expectant way at the little Judge, but they got no orders from him.

Harry Thaw, burly and complacent, looked over at this demonstration with expression of astonishment on his face. As the shrieking men and women climbed upon the chairs and tables without a rebuke from the Judge, Thaw began to understand it.

He laughed and bowed. When the Judge adjourned the hearing until 3 o'clock, hundreds of persons descended upon the prisoner like an avalanche. Even his lawyers could not get to him. The Judge had left the bench and there was nobody to dispute with Thaw the supremacy of the courtroom. He stood there shaking hands and receiving congratulations, while every now and then there broke out a new yell of "Hurrah for Thaw and British fair play."

At last he fought his way out to the victoria which had brought him from the jail, and there he found the same crowd or a larger one waiting to cheer him and raise again the shout for Britain and its system of justice and fair play. The crowd surged around his carriage and made it difficult for Thaw to get in. Once he was in, it was impossible for the vehicle to move until Thaw had risen again and again to take his hat off and acknowledge the cheers. At last he was driven back to the jail and took up his quarters in the hospital ward.

Judge Rebukes Crowd.

When the court opened for the afternoon session the room was packed again.

Judge Globensky began by lecturing the crowd about the demonstration of the forenoon.

"I never was so shocked in my life as I was by the occurrence in this courtroom this morning," he said. "It was the most disgraceful scene that has ever come under my attention since I have been a member of the bar. I have never seen anything like it, and if there is any attempt on the part of the audience this afternoon to repeat it, I will commit them all to jail."

So little respect was paid to Judge Globensky's announcement that even after the solemn warning there was a buzz of confusion in the courtroom which he made no attempt to repress. However, the crowd was so far intimi-

POPE DENOUNCES BERGSON.

Says His Philosophy Is the More Poisonous Because Sugar-Coated.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Aug. 27.—The Pope has published a condemnation of the philosophy of Henri Bergson, as outlined in his book "Creative Evolution." His Holiness says:

"In the presence of the false theories of this new Bergsonian philosophy, which seeks to shatter grand fundamental principles and truths, it is necessary to unmask the poisonous error of philosophic modernism. It is the more destructive because it is sugar-coated, subtle, and seductive in nature."

M. Bergson announces that he will reply to the Vatican in a series of Winter lectures in Paris.

Gang of Thieves Hold It for Ransom—Lloyd Official Goes to Get It.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 28.—The Daily Mail announces a remarkable development in the mystery of the $650,000 pearl necklace that was recently stolen in the registered mail between Paris and London.

Yesterday information was received by the authorities that the robbery was the work of a gang of thieves, who now hold the necklace for ransom. On the payment of a certain sum in Berlin they will restore it to its owner.

The story was at first discredited, but was tested in every way, and as a result Mr. Price, Assessor to the Lloyd Underwriters with whom the necklace was insured, has left London for the German capital with full power to negotiate for the recovery of the pearls.

It is hoped that the necklace will be restored to its owner within the next forty-eight hours.

GAVE BAD CHECK FOR DOG.

"Toodles" Meant for Wedding Present, but Police Spoil Ceremony.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27.—With "Toodles," a six-weeks-old Boston terrier, wrapped in her lace coat, Miss Jennie Allen, an actress, who was to be married in Wilmington, Del., to-day to Herman Snavely, son of a wealthy wholesale grocer of Steelton, Penn., left at noon for Harrisburg, where she and her finance are wanted on the charge of giving a worthless check for $35 in payment for the dog.

Snavely made out the check and gave it to the dealer for the dog, which Miss Allen had asked him to buy for her. She was in the store at the time the deal was made, and for that reason she was placed under arrest, too.

Miss Allen, who is eighteen years old, says her father is a hotel proprietor in Atlantic City. Snavely is twenty-two, and met the young woman three months ago in Steelton, when she arrived there with a vaudeville show which was in financial distress. Snavely promptly fell in love with Miss Allen and put up $700 to help the show through.

KEENE BREAKS SHOULDER.

Famous Polo Player Meets New Mishap Playing in Colorado.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Aug. 27.—Foxhall P. Keene of New York was seriously injured at the polo tournament of the Cheyenne Mountain Country Club here this afternoon, when he was thrown during the play, after which his pony rolled over on him. His right shoulder was broken and he was badly bruised.

On June 7 of this year Keene sustained a similar injury when his collarbone was broken in a practice game just prior to the international series for which he had been selected Captain of the American forces in the matches for the Westchester Polo Club trophy against England for the world's championship.

Keene has probably been injured more frequently than any athlete in the United States, and must have just recovered from his June mishap, which put him out of the running for the championship, and was the means of putting back into the field the Big Four which successfully defended the cup. Keene was a member of the first American team in 1886 which lost for the John Watson squad which carried the trophy to England, where it remained until Harry Payne Whitney, Devereux Milburn, and the Waterbury boys brought it back in 1909.

Keene was playing No. 3 in the Cheyenne Mountain Country Club against the Denver Prairie Dogs. It was the first serious mishap for the Eastern polo crack since his accident previous to the international series in June. On Monday Keene was slightly hurt here, but will be able to continue in the tournament.

OFFERS EYEGLASSES FREE.

Dr. Becker Will Donate 3,000 Pairs to Poor School Children.

In a letter addressed to the Board of Education yesterday Dr. Barnett L. Becker of 215 East Broadway asked the Board to inform all principals and teachers in the schools that he would give 3,000 pairs of eye glasses free of charge to school children with defective eyesight who might be sent to his office with orders from principals, teachers, or visiting school nurses. He added that a station for the distribution of such glasses to school children of Harlem and the Bronx would be established at 102 Lenox Avenue and one for children of Brooklyn at 1,719 Pitkin Avenue.

It frequently has been suggested that the city should furnish glasses free of charge to school children with defective sight who cannot pay for optical examination and treatment, but hitherto nothing has been done in the matter. It was explained on behalf of Dr. Becker that he himself had risen from a poor east side boy to a man of means, and that in his present offer he desired [illegible] east side children to overcome difficulties and make their way in the world.

KANSAS STIFLED AT 103°.

TOPEKA, Aug. 27.—Late this afternoon the Government thermometer here again reached 103. This was the end of a steady climb from 86 at 9 o'clock this morning. The nights are stifling. There was not a cloud in the sky to-day, and the water problem is getting more serious every day in many Kansas towns.

HARD SLAP AT WHITMAN

District Attorney Accepts Tammany Nomination, to the Chagrin of Union Forces.

McANENY STILL HOLDS OFF

Non-Committal Over Possible Gaynor Indorsement—Roosevelt Appeals to Prendergast.

The political situation in the city, so far as Fusion is concerned, was complicated further last night when Col. Theodore Roosevelt issued a statement in which he advised all the Fusion candidates to remain on the Fusion ticket and not accept a nomination on any other. This, he said, was the only way to support Fusion and beat Tammany as the only anti-Tammany ticket in the field was the Fusion one. He called upon the Fusion candidates to follow the example of John Purroy Mitchel and refuse a nomination on any ticket that did not include all the Fusion candidates. Other political developments of the day were these:

District Attorney Charles S. Whitman said that he had decided to accept the nomination for District Attorney given to him by Tammany on Tuesday night. His exact words were: "I have decided to accept the indorsement of the Democratic organization of New York County of my candidacy for District Attorney."

Mr. Whitman, after reading Col. Roosevelt's statement last night, said he had nothing to say at that time.

Mayor Gaynor, who is slightly ill at his home at St. James, L. I., held a conference there yesterday with his political managers, and his secretary, Robert Adamson, announced that the Mayor would be a candidate for his present office on a full independent ticket.

Prominent Republicans, headed by ex-Representative William S. Bennet, arranged to give the Republican voters an opportunity to vote for Mayor Gaynor at the primaries by having them write his name on the ballot. If the Mayor receives more votes than the Fusion-Republican candidate, Mr. Mitchel, Mr. Gaynor's name will head the Republican column on the election ballot.

Members of the Fusion Committee of 107 tried all day to get Mr. Whitman to decline the Tammany nomination and to keep the Fusion candidates from going on the Gaynor ticket. George McAneny, Fusion candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, refused to tell what he would do until the Gaynor people nominated him. Col. Roosevelt, cabled to William A. Prendergast, Fusion candidate for Controller, advising him to stick to Fusion and not to run on any other ticket.

Satisfied with the slate they selected, Charles F. Murphy and the other Tammany leaders left the city for the week-end and will not begin their campaign for several weeks.

Col. Roosevelt's Views.

Col. Roosevelt's statement calling for support for the Fusion ticket was given out by Mr. Hapgood at the Century Club, 7 West Forty-third Street, and was as follows:

The Fusion Committee of 107 has nominated a very strong ticket on an admirable platform. It gives a chance for a clean non-partisan Government against the forces of Tammany Hall. There is but one anti-Tammany ticket in the field, and that is the Fusion ticket. It is a ticket which should receive the support of all citizens who wish to see the City of New York not only cleansed of corruption but also administered in such fashion that the Government shall be an effective instrument for securing industrial and social fair play and justice for all our people.

The platform is as emphatically in the interest of the right-thinking business man as it is in the interest of the right-thinking wage worker. Mr. Mitchel has in a straightforward and high-minded fashion declined to accept the indorsement of any party unless that party also indorses all his colleagues together.

I sincerely hope that in their turn they will show the same high-minded indifference to all notions of personal aggrandizement and the same loyalty to clean government and industrial betterment.

In my judgment no Fusion candidate can accept a position on any other ticket that does not include the other Fusion candidates and be considered to have remained loyal to the Fusion movement and to the efforts of the combined decent citizenship of the community to overthrow Tammany Hall. In what I say I am not thinking of the condition for Judgeship, to which a totally different set of conditions applies.

The issue is to keep special privilege in its most corrupt and sinister form from control of the city government. To this end it is necessary that all parties to Fusion, and believers in Fusion candidates for municipal and county offices, shall stand loyally together in the fight for the complete Fusion programme and the complete Fusion ticket.

Fusionists Besiege Whitman.

The Fusionists brought pressure to bear upon District Attorney Whitman all day yesterday to keep him from accepting the Tammany nomination. Mr. Whitman was busy, however, consulting with Lynn J. Arnold, adviser to William Sulzer, regarding the possibility of bringing a charge of conspiracy against Charles F. Murphy and other Tammany leaders as the result of the impeachment proceedings. He gave little time to the political situation.

A number of Republican leaders and several of his personal friends called upon Mr. Whitman and urged him to accept the Tammany offer. Some of the leaders advised him to accept the nomination but not in any way to let that influence him against attacking Tammany during the campaign. In fact, they urged him to denounce Tammany and to emphasize the police issue. The District Attorney also received many letters and telegrams advising him not to refuse Tammany's indorsement.

Frank Moss, Assistant District Attorney, who is in Vermont, telegraphed a denial yesterday that he had intended to accept a nomination for District Attorney from Tammany. This is what he telegraphed:

Please correct news item to-day that suggestions come to me that I might be nominated for District Attorney. I an-

JESSIE WILSON HURT, THROWN BY HORSE

President's Daughter Found Unconscious by Roadside—Fiance Had Ridden Ahead.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Aug. 27.—Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, the second daughter of President Wilson, and her fiancé, Francis B. Sayre of District Attorney Whitman's office in New York, went horseback riding yesterday afternoon from Cornish, where the Wilsons make their Summer home.

They turned their horses into the road that runs along the Connecticut River, close to the line that divides New Hampshire from Vermont. They had gone some five miles to the north and had turned back toward home when Mr. Sayre, who was riding a little ahead, pulled in shortly on his reins at the sight of Miss Wilson's mount running riderless past him, the reins dangling loose upon the animal's back. With one quick reach of his arm he caught the runaway's bridle and wheeled about. As far up the shaded road as he could see there was no sign of his companion, and greatly alarmed he started back at a canter along the stretch which he had just covered.

Finds Her Unconscious.

Meanwhile Dr. Charles W. Worthen was jogging along the road in his runabout, bound from his office in White River Junction to the home of a patient in Plainfield, N. H., when he brought his rig to a sudden halt at the sight of a young woman lying unconscious by the side of the road. He could not tell then how gravely she had been injured. He guessed that she had been thrown from a carriage or horse, and had just brought his doctor's kit from the seat of the runabout, when, tearing up the road, came a young man on horseback, with a riderless mount trotting at his side. The newcomer leaped to the ground and bombarded the doctor with anxious questions, following them with the explanation that this was Miss Wilson, and that he was her fiancé, Mr. Sayre.

Dr. Worthen's eyes opened wide when he found how distinguished a patient chance had brought him, and, with Mr. Sayre's help, he busied himself about the application of restoratives, pausing every once in a while to assure the worried young man that Miss Wilson's injuries were not likely to prove serious and that she soon would open her eyes and tell him so herself.

But it was a full half hour before Miss Wilson became conscious and was able to tell how her horse had suddenly become frightened and had bolted so abruptly that she was tossed to the roadside.

Taken to Farmhouse.

Dr. Worthen thought the drive either back to Cornish or on to White River Junction was altogether too long for her to attempt, bruised and nervous as she was. So in the doctor's runabout she was taken to the home of Fred Smith, not far from the scene of the accident, which was just across the river from the little Vermont town of North Hartland.

To-day Miss Wilson was strong enough to be taken back to Harlakenden, the Winston Churchill home in Cornish, where the Wilsons are staying. At Harlakenden this evening it was said that Miss Wilson seemed to have received no serious injury, although she is still suffering from the painful bruises she received.

Miss Jessie Wilson has been known for her love of outdoor sports, tennis and swimming as well as riding. She is 25 years old and is apt to be called "the prettiest of the Wilson girls." Her engagement to young Mr. Sayre was announced in the early part of July. They are to be married at the White House in the Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Word was received at the White House to-night from Cornish, N. H., that Miss Jessie Wilson, the President's second daughter, had met with a slight accident while horseback riding to-day. The President and Mrs. Wilson, both of whom are here, were assured that Miss Wilson's injuries were trivial.

TROOPS OUT FOR GAMBLERS

Indiana Governor Orders Them to Suppress Betting at Race Track.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTER, Ind., Aug. 27.—Gov. Ralston ordered to-day two companies of the Indiana National Guard, under the command of Major George W. Freyermuth of South Bend, to the Mineral Springs race track, just outside of Porter, to stop all racing there, and eject all persons except owners or employes of the grounds and stables. The troops arrived at the track shortly after the last race had been run and the largest crowd of the present meet had disappeared.

W. F. Knotts, President of the racing association, said there would be no attempt to defy executive interference. There probably will be no racing to-morrow, in view of the presence of the soldiers. Reports to the Governor for the last few days have been that flagrant violations of the gambling laws were general at the track, uninterrupted by any action of State or local officials. Previously the Governor had depended on the reports sent to him by Walter J. Fabing, Prosecuting Attorney of Porter County, and an appointee of the Governor, that the "lid" was on at the track. However, investigation by a personal envoy brought out the fact that "underground" gambling was being conducted freely.

This is the second time that troops have been called out to suppress gambling, ex-Gov. Marshall resorting to this measure at the Porter track last year.

MEXICANS RALLY BEHIND HUERTA

WILSON'S COURSE ASSAILED

Vera Cruz Hears Latest Response from Foreign Minister Gives New Hope of Agreement.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 27.—Sentiment in favor of the stand taken by Provisional President Huerta in rejecting the peace proposals of President Wilson, submitted through ex-Gov. John Lind, the American Executive's personal emissary to this capital, and Federico Gamboa, Mexican Minister of Foreign Relations, has grown to-night as a result of publication of the notes that passed between the representatives of the Presidents.

Diplomats in this city representing other nations now are inclined to believe that the United States Government made several serious blunders in the negotiations intended to restore peace to the Mexican Republic. They criticise especially the tentative offer of action by bankers, which Mexicans regard practically as an offer of a bribe or at least a monetary inducement.

The real causes of the failure of Mr. Lind's negotiations with Minister Gamboa, however, are considered by the foreign diplomats and others to have been the clauses in President Wilson's peace proposals relating to the elimination of Gen. Huerta from the Mexican Government.

It is pointed out that in making such a suggestion to the Provisional President the American Government practically asked him to relinquish the constitutional rights possessed by all citizens of Mexico, which it was impossible for him to do constitutionally.

It is stated authoritatively that President Huerta will receive to-morrow $4,000,000 as an advance on a loan which will total $40,000,000. The further authoritative statement is made that the remainder of the loan will be forthcoming almost immediately.

Mexican Officials' Views.

Mexican officials, although fully indorsing the original stand taken in the exchange of notes with Mr. Lind, showed to-day some uneasiness as to the eventual outcome of the negotiations. They probably will attempt to rally the people and will be prepared for trouble.

In placing the affair before the standing committee of the Mexican Congress President Huerta is believed to be paving the way to some drastic legislative move.

There was no feeling against Americans to-day as a result of publication of the notes, but an evident desire to assist the Government by calm consideration and an expectant attitude as to developments in the United States Congress.

Americans and other foreigners were extremely interested in the outcome of the peace negotiations and the possible action of the American Congress.

A high Mexican politician, leader of a strong faction, probably a majority on the floor of the Senate, stated to-day:

"In spite of the fact that I am not a personal friend of President Huerta, and am politically his opponent, in this instance he has my full support and influence, both personally and politically. He could have made no other stand in the face of the United States proposals, which are not compatible with Mexican decorum and national honor. The first suggestions, in my opinion, are not only impossible, but lack knowledge on the part of President Wilson of the Mexican situation and conditions. The second proposals possibly could be accepted had the Huerta elimination clause been omitted, and the clause dealing with the money question been omitted as such is regarded as unworthy of Mexicans."

The officials stated that they considered Mexico to have more than the advantage before the world in the publication of the exchanged notes, as they believed the civilised nations would realize that it was impossible for them to accede with dignity to the United States demands and offers of good offices. They also regard the present affair in the light of possible precedents which would later lead the United States to a dictorial attitude not only toward Mexico but to all Latin America.

Think Lind Will Go Back.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, Aug. 27.—There were persistent rumors here to-night that ex-Gov. John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative in this republic, would return to Mexico City. It was said his departure from the capital a few days ago was a device on the part of the Washington Administration to force Provisional President Huerta to play his hand.

Mr. Lind on his arrival here from the City of Mexico reserved staterooms aboard the steamship Morro Castle, due to sail from this port to-morrow, but at a late hour this even-

Most Striking Points Raised in the Messages on Mexico

PRESIDENT WILSON.

The peace, prosperity and contentment of Mexico mean more, much more, to us than merely an enlarged field for our commerce and enterprise.

We shall yet prove to the Mexican people that we know how to serve them without first thinking how we shall serve ourselves.

Mexico lies at last where all the world looks on.

The best gifts can come to her (Mexico) only if she be ready and free to receive them and to enjoy them honorably.

Its (Mexico's) pacification by the authorities at the capital is evidently impossible by any other means than force.

War and disorder, devastation and confusion, seem to threaten to become the settled fortune of the distracted country (Mexico.)

The Government of the United States would deem itself discredited if it had any selfish or ulterior purpose in transactions where the peace, happiness and prosperity of a whole people are involved.

Clearly, everything that we do must be rooted in patience and done with calm and disinterested deliberation.

There is nowhere any serious question that we have the moral right in the case.

We shall triumph as Mexico's friends sooner than we could triumph as her enemies.

FOREIGN MINISTER GAMBOA.

Mexico cannot for one moment take into consideration the four conditions which his Excellency Mr. Wilson has been pleased to propose.

His Excellency Mr. Wilson is laboring under a serious delusion when he declares that the present situation of Mexico is incompatible with the compliance of her international obligations, with the development of her own civilization and with the required maintenance of certain political and economical conditions tolerable in Central America.

If it (the United States) should only watch that no material and monetary assistance is given to rebels who find refuge, conspire, and provide themselves with arms and food on the other side of the border; if it should demand from its minor and local authorities the strictest observance of the neutrality laws, I assure you, Mr. Confidential Agent, that the complete pacification of this republic would be accomplished within a relatively short time.

The final part of the instructions of President Wilson causes me to propose the following equally decorous arrangement: One, that our Ambassador be received in Washington. Two, that the United States of America send us a new Ambassador without previous conditions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—While Senators and Representatives assembled in joint session and listened in impressive silence to-day, President Wilson read to them a carefully prepared address in which he acknowledged that the mission intrusted to ex-Gov. John Lind for arranging conditions with the Mexican Government that should bring Mexico's troubles to an end had met failure. It was realized by most of those present that this public acknowledgment foreshadowed a crisis in the relations of the United States and Mexico.

But the President, although showing his disappointment over the unsuccessful outcome of Mr. Lind's efforts, indicated clearly that he was not without hope that the Huerta Administration would change its attitude and supply the means which the United States had sought to bring about the restoration of normal conditions south of the Rio Grande.

"The steady pressure of moral force," he said, with emphasis on every word, "will before many days break the barriers of pride and prejudice down, and we shall triumph as Mexico's friends sooner than we could triumph as her enemies—and how much more handsomely, with how much higher and finer satisfactions of conscience and of honor."

Hope in New Mexican Note.

The President to-night had some reason to believe that the confident feeling thus expressed might be realized sooner than he had expected when he made his address. Secretary Bryan went to the White House shortly after 9 o'clock this evening and left there a communication from Mr. Lind, in which the President's special representative said he had received another note from Foreign Minister Gamboa, which gave ground for optimism. Mr. Lind did not send the full text of the latest Mexican note, but gave a summary of it which indicated that the situation in Mexico was very encouraging—in fact, more encouraging than in several days.

No information as to what was contained in the note to raise the spirits of Administration officials was obtainable, but it was admitted that prospects for a change in the attitude of the Mexican Government appeared to be good.

The President in his address laid down the tentative plan which the Government would pursue toward Mexico for the present. That plan embraces the following points:

First—All Americans will be urged to leave Mexico at once and will be assisted to get away by the United States Government through all the means at its disposal.

Second—Every one who assumes to exercise authority in any part of Mexico will be informed plainly that the United States Government will watch the fortunes of those Americans who cannot get away and will hold to a definite reckoning those responsible for their sufferings and losses.

Third—The shipment of arms and other munitions of war from the United States into Mexico will be forbidden and the strictest neutrality between the different factions will be observed by the United States.

Wilson Orders Sent to Embassy.

In accordance with the plan outlined by the President, telegraphic instructions were sent to-night to the American Embassy in Mexico City and to all United States Consular officers throughout Mexico in substance as follows:

"Notify Americans residing in Mexico that they will be assisted in every possible way to leave the country, and those that remain will be watched over. Ships will be provided at the most accessible ports to carry away Americans able to reach those ports. Pecuniary assistance will be given when needed to Americans leaving the country. Notify all officers in authority, civil and military, of the contending factions in Mexico that they will be held strictly responsible for damage done to the persons and property of Americans."

The identical telegrams contained a statement of the essential features of President Wilson's address to Congress. As far as can be ascertained, no instructions were given to the proper authorities with regard to the embargo on the shipment of arms and other munitions of war from the United States into Mexico. Up to this time such shipments have been permitted to go forward into Mexican territory only on special permits from the Secretary of the Treasury, granted at the instance of the Mexican Embassy in Washington.

All munitions of war shipped under these permits have been for the use of the Federal forces in Mexico. No permits have been granted for the shipment of arms and ammunition to the Constitutionalists or revolutionists.

Officials declined to say whether foreign Governments would be asked to follow the example of the United States by placing an embargo on the shipment of munitions from territory under their control into Mexico. Interpretations given to the guarded answers made by the Government officers in response to inquiries on this subject was that it was hoped that foreign Governments would construe the fact that they were supplied with copies of the President's address as an intimation that it would be pleasing to the United States Government to have them join it in suppressing the exportation of war munitions to Mexico.

Coincident with the President's address, the White House made public the text of the communication from the Mexican Government rejecting the proposals of President Wilson for the restoration of peace. That note is dated Aug. 16, is addressed to Mr. Lind, and is signed by Federico Gamboa, the Mexican Minister of Foreign Relations. It shows that the Mexican Government regarded the proposition submitted by Mr. Lind as an insult to Provisional President Huerta and to Mexico. Confirmation is contained in it of the intention of the Mexican Government to keep Mr. Lind out of Mexico as an undesirable alien unless he saw fit to "properly establish your official character."

Lind's Credentials Satisfactory.

That unfriendly notice was withdrawn because the Mexican Government regarded a letter presented to Señor Gamboa by Mr. Lind from President Wilson as fully establishing that Mr. Lind was the confidential agent of this Government.

There is divergence of opinion among Senators and Representatives as to the manner in which Minister Gamboa handled the diplomatic situation. A great many national legislators regard his note as a very able document, and as completely answering the suggestions contained in the proposals of President Wilson submitted through Mr. Lind. Others look on it as not meeting the arguments advanced by the President. A large number, which concedes that the case was very ably handled by the Mexican Minister, contends that the ironical tone in which it was written lessened much of its force.

Señor Gamboa contradicted as a "gross imputation not supported by any proofs" the suggestion of President Wilson in the Lind instructions that no progress had been made toward establishing a stable Government in Mexico. He contended that of the twenty-seven Mexican States eighteen were under the control of the Huerta Administration, and that the three Territories and the Federal district embracing Mexico City also were controlled by the Federal forces. It was asserted by the Minister of Foreign Relations that the Government had 80,000 armed men in the field.

The request that Gen. Huerta should agree not to be a candidate for the Presidency was rejected because of its "strange and unwarranted character," and in addition "because there is a risk that the same might be interpreted as a matter of personal dislike." Señor Gamboa indicated clearly that the Government of Gen. Huerta, as he called it, was not worried because the United States had not granted formal recognition to it. The fact that the United States Government continued to do business with the Huerta Government through the American Embassy in Mexico City was assurance enough, it was intimated, that the recognition existed.

Gamboa Becomes Ironical.

It was suggested by Señor Gamboa in language apparently intended to be ironical that the establishment of peace would be accomplished much more quickly if the United States Government would observe its international obligations by preventing the shipment of arms and the sending of money to Mexico for the use of the revolutionists. The suggestion that an armistice be agreed on was rejected on the ground that this would recognize the belligerency of the revolutionists.

Señor Gamboa asserted that Mexico was observing all her credits and that the country was not in nearly as bad condition as President Wilson had endeavored to point out.

"Consequently," said the Mexican Foreign Minister, "Mexico can not for one instant take into consideration the four conditions which His Excellency, Mr. Wilson, has been pleased to propose through your honorable and worthy channel."

Although apparently couched in terms indicating great friendship for the United States, the Gamboa note is regarded here as intentionally sarcastic and ironical, and the constant repetition of the term, "Mr. Confidential Agent," with reference to Mr. Lind, is pointed to as evidence of this contention.

Although the President received generous applause when he appeared in the House of Representatives to make his address and the comments of Senators and Representatives made afterward for publication generally were of a kindly and complimentary character, an undercurrent of private criticism was apparent among members of both the great political parties in Congress.

Several of the leaders, both Democrats and Republicans, assert that the President had made an error in addressing Congress publicly on the Mexican situation at this time. They took the position that Mr. Wilson had extended a virtual invitation to the Senate and House to discuss conditions in Mexico, and that it might be difficult to hold Senators and Representatives to their tentative agreement not to embarrass the Administration by debate on the Mexican situation while the relations between the two countries remained tense.

Danger of Congress Debate.

From what was said this afternoon, following the reading of the President's address, it is believed that a discussion of his Mexican message may be precipitated any day, with results which nobody can foresee. The President, it was contended by certain of the critics, would have been wiser not to have made any disclosures at this time about the failure of the Lind mission, or at least to have refrained from appearing personally in the Capitol to voice his opinions concerning the Mexican troubles.

The danger point would come, it was said, when the House Committee on Foreign Affairs brought in a resolution on wihch it already had agreed, commending the President's address and indorsing the policy outlined in it. Prominent House members of both parties pointed out that this resolution would supply the occasion for a debate on the subject of Mexico that might tend to arouse the passions of either the American or the Mexican people or both, and thus take the two nations a step nearer to a hostile clash than the Federal Administration and a large part of Congress, without regard to party lines, were willing to risk.

There was an air of dramatic tenseness in the House of Representatives when President Wilson appeared there to read his address. It would have been apparent to any stranger unfamiliar with the purposes of the occasion that an important event was about to occur. Under the terms of the concurrent resolution adopted yesterday the members of the Senate marched in a body to the chamber of the House fifteen minutes prior to the time President Wilson was scheduled to appear. Owing to the absence of a third of the House membership there was plenty of room on the benches for the Senators.

Vice President Marshall, who led the procession of members of the upper house, took his place on the rostrum at the right of Speaker Clark, who presided. When the Senate arrived, committees to meet the President and escort him to the chamber were announced by the Speaker and the Vice President, and the assembled legislators waited patiently for Mr. Wilson to appear.

Mrs. Wilson an Auditor.

The galleries were crowded. In the Executive box sat Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and her youngest daughter, Miss Eleanor, who were escorted to the Capitol by Passed Assistant Surgeon Cary Grayson of the navy, the attending physician at the White House. Secretary Bryan, attired in ministerial black garb, sat near them. In the diplomatic box was an interested group, consisting of Dr. Ritter, the Minister from Switzerland; Señor Calvo, Minister from Costa Rica; Señor Naon, Minister from the Argentine Republic; Señor Nija, Minister from Salvador; Señor Mendez, Minister from Guatemala; Dr. Peynado, Minister from the Dominican Republic; Dr. Morales, Minister from Panama, and Secretary Fevre of the Panama Legation.

Postmaster General Burleson, Secretary McAdoo, and Secretary Daniels had seats on the floor. Joseph P. Tumulty, Secretary to the President, attired in a suit of white linen, took a seat with them after the President arrived.

Most of those in the galleries were women—the wives, daughters, and friends of Senators and Representatives. The intense interest in the ceremonies had been shown by the overwhelming number of applications for gallery seats. So great was the pressure that special tickets for admittance to the House wing of the Capitol had been issued, and temporary gates were erected at the foot of stairways leading to the gallery floor and at the elevator entrances.

President Wilson went to the Capitol in an open motor car with Secretary Tumulty. "Jack" Wheeler, one of the President's Secret Service guards, sat on the box of the automobile with the chauffeur. Two other cars containing Secret Service guards followed. On his arrival at the Capitol, the President went to the room of Speaker Clark, where he met the committees of the Senate and House appointed to escort him to the chamber. The committeemen were Senators Bacon, Williams, and Root, and Representatives Underwood, Mann, and Fitzgerald.

Before going to the floor of the House to read his address President Wilson telephoned from the Capitol to the White House to ascertain whether the substance of Minister Gamboa's latest note to Mr. Lind had been received from Mexico. He did that to give President Huerta yet another chance to cause a modification of the message to Congress.

President Arrives in the House.

The big clock over the main entrance of the House chamber showed one minute past 1 as President Wilson entered the great hall through a door to the left and in the rear of the Speaker's rostrum. Joseph Sinnott, doorkeeper, cried:

"The President of the United States."

At a rap from Speaker Clark's gavel, the whole audience arose.

In spite of his long frock coat, the President looked cool and comfortable. He shook hands cordially with Speaker Clark and Vice President Marshall, and, turning, bowed to the assembled Senators and Representatives.

As he did so, floor and galleries began to applaud. The round of hand-clapping grew louder, and it soon was made evident that Republicans and Democrats were joining in an effort to show the President that Congress stood behind him in his efforts to settle the embarrassing Mexican problem. The hand-clapping was continued for two minutes, which is a mighty long time for a demonstration on a ceremonial occasion in either House of Congress.

It was three minutes past one when the President began to read his address. He read very slowly and distinctly from typewritten slips about four inches wide and six inches long, with wide spaces between the lines. There was no effort at dramatic effect on his part, but at times he emphasized certain expressions.

The Senators and Representatives and those in the galleries listened in silence. Not a sound save that of the President's voice broke the stillness in the chamber throughout the reading. Hardly a man among those who had seats on the floor changed his position from the time the President began to read until he had finished. The intentness of the audience was dramatic in itself.

It took nineteen minutes for the President to read his address. The hands of the big clock indicated twenty-two minutes past one when he finished.

Bowing to the audience, the President turned and, again shaking hands with the Vice-President and the Speaker, left the chamber quickly. The audience applauded vigorously until his form disappeared through the door at which he had entered.

Immediately after the ceremony the Senators withdrew and the House, after adopting a resolution referring the President's address to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, adjourned to Friday.

The Senators on returning to their side of the Capitol resumed discussion of the Tariff Bill.

APPROVED IN CONGRESS.

Both Parties Praise President Wilson's Message.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Unmistakable evidence was given to-day to Mexico and the rest of the world that President Wilson had a united Congress behind him in his dealings with the situation south of the Rio Grande. Senators and Representatives of both parties joined in praise of the President's message and pledged him their hearty support.

Generally Approved by Senators.

A chorus of statements approving the President's speech was heard from the Senators as soon as they returned to their end of the Capitol. These expressions came from leaders both of the Republican and Democratic sides. Many of them were strikingly emphatic, but here and there was evidence of a definite intention to answer beyond dispute Provisional President Huerta's taunt that Congress was not supporting President Wilson. But along with these approving declarations, sometimes even from Senators issuing statements favorable to the President, was veiled criticism of the wisdom of the course outlined in the speech.

Criticism was directed at both of the affirmative proposals of the President, the embargo against arms destined for any of the contending factions and the urgent recommendation that Americans leave Mexico. The Senate has long been overwhelmingly of the opinion that the easiest solution of Mexico's tangled problem would be to let both sides arm themselves freely, so that an end might come to their fighting through the stern elimination of war. Senators are still of that opinion, but all efforts to repeal the neutrality law, under which the President may prohibit the shipment of arms, will be suspended until the course determined by him has had a fair trial. Meanwhile Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania will be absent for a week, so that his resolution calling for police protection of Americans in Mexico will cause no discussion.

One Senator whose loyalty to the President is beyond question, suggested informally that, even to make the embargo on arms effective, regardless of the wisdom of such a course, it would be necessary for the United States to induce all the powers of the world to prevent shipments from their ports. There is reason to believe that efforts in this direction may be made, following the expressions of sympathy and willingness to co-operate with which European nations have already met President Wilson's proposals. At the same time the Senator suggested that lack of money with which to buy arms might make the embargo real.

Dangers of American Exodus.

Criticism of the President's proposal to induce American colonists to leave Mexico was more open. Senator Fall of New Mexico, while indorsing the President's desire for peace, said that he felt that the duty of the United States was to protect her citizens and not require them to leave all their property at the mercy of contending factions.

Other Senators pointed out that the proposal that Americans leave Mexico took no care of Europeans similarly situated. It was suggested that this might prove a serious weakness in the President's plan, and alienate the support hitherto received from foreign powers.

Senator Bacon of Georgia, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, said:

"The President's message is an admirable document. It sets forth the facts without reservation and puts us right before the world. Moreover, I believe it will have a calming effect upon our own people and a soothing influence upon public expression in the United States. An important feature of the message which must be borne in mind is that it does not close the case; does not bring negotiations to a finality, but leaves the situation open for further dealings in an effort to bring about a satisfactory settlement."

Senator Root of New York, former Secretary of State and a prominent member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said:

"The message is admirable in tone and spirit, but as I may discuss it on the floor of the Senate, I will not go further now."

People's Voice, Says O'Gorman.

Senator O'Gorman of New York, a Democratic member of the Committee on Foreign Relations, issued this statement:

"It is a splendid message. It reflects the sober thought of the nation. It is not singular that in this crisis the President has the united support of the Congress of the United States. The Republican members of the Senate vie with their Democratic colleagues in sustaining the action of the Executive. In international relations partisanship stops at the border. The impressive utterance of the President to-day is the voice of the American people."

Senator Stone of Missouri, a member of the committee who has heretofore strongly favored war, said: "The message is well written and was well delivered. Its effect on the people of the country will be a happy one."

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, ranking Republican of the Committee on Foreign Relations, said:

"It is an excellent message. Its substantive declaration is that forbidding the shipment of arms to Mexico. I am in hearty accord with that. The United States could not put itself in the position of adding to the slaughter in Mexico. Only two courses were open to the President—intervention or non-intervention—and I am sure that the sentiment of the country would not tolerate intervention. The President's policy is that of waiting upon events, and I feel that he could now pursue no other. Mr. Wilson announced that the mission of Mr. Lind had failed, as was generally expected. With respect to the suggestion of the President that Americans should leave Mexico, the same was made by Taft. It is one which only the President could make. In many of these matters the President must be the judge. I believe other powers are no less desirous than the United States that the shipment of arms shall be stopped, and I should expect them to intimate the same to their subjects."

Senator Fall, Republican, of New Mexico, had this to say:

"I am heartily in accord with the President in his efforts to maintain peace with Mexico. The only criticism of the message I have to make is with reference to that part which urges Americans to leave Mexico. I have always been of that school which believes that in treating with a civilized country the United States should insist always upon the protection of her citizens within the borders of that country. The President seems to indicate that Mexico cannot be considered a civilized nation when he suggests that Americans leave Mexico."

Texas Senator Is Satisfied.

Senator Sheppard, Democrat, of Texas:

"I stand with the President. His message is practically a recognition of the belligerency of the insurrectionaries as contemplated in the resolution I introduced."

Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, a Democratic member of the Committee on Foreign Relations:

"I am delighted with it. I would not change it in any way if I were doing it myself."

Senator Kern of Indiana, majority leader of the Senate:

"If there has been any agitation in favor of intervention, this message will check it. The sentiment in favor of lifting the embargo has been greatly exaggerated."

Senator Shively of Indiana, a Democratic member of the Committee on Foreign Relations:

"The message is temperate and well worded. It puts us right before the Governments of the world. No matter what follows, this shows that we have exhausted all peaceful methods. The best feature of the message is that it announced to the Central and South American republics that this country has no desire for territorial aggrandizement."

Senator Smith of Arizona, a Democratic member of the Committee on Foreign Relations, commended the President's peaceful efforts and predicted that Congress would mark time and await developments.

Senator Jones, Republican, of Washington, said:

"I am with the President in any effort to preserve the peace. I may not agree with him in all his methods, but, right or wrong, he will have my support."

The commendation of the President's attitude was even stronger among members of the House.

Champ Clark, Democrat, Speaker of the House:

"It seems to me that this Mexican situation presents a case where silence on the part of most folk is golden. It is ticklish and grave. The President's address to Congress on the subject is admirable—lofty in conception, felicitous in diction. In the very nature of things he knows more about a situation which changes every day—almost every hour—than the rest of us, and speaks with fuller knowledge. The most practical suggestion that was made was that Americans should come out of Mexico as rapidly and as soon as possible."

Representative Oscar W. Underwood, Democratic floor leader:

"I approve the President's message thoroughly. I think it was the message of a statesman. I am glad to see that the President is making every effort to maintain peaceful relations between the two countries."

Representative James R. Mann of Illinois, Republican, leader of the minority in the House:

"I have no comment that I wish to make."

Representative Henry D. Flood of Virginia, Democrat, Chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs:

"It was a splendid message. It has met with universal approval. Every comment I have heard on it is favorable."

Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania, Chairman of the Democratic caucus:

"The President's message should and undoubtedly will have the effect of bringing Mexico soon to an acceptance of this Government's proposals. The manner of its reception by the Congress and the approval which will be shown by the country will be ample evidence to Mexico that all America is behind President Wilson in his desire to be of friendly aid to the people of the republic and to work out the protection of Americans and American interests without forcible intervention in a quarrel that is purely internal. The message is an early assurance of a peaceful solution of the whole difficulty."

Kahn's Critical Attitude.

Representative Julius Kahn of California, Republican, ranking minority member of the House Military Committee:

"As a literary effort the President's message was perfection itself. What effect it will have in Mexico remains to be seen. Of course, it is easy to take out of Mexico the Americans who are at present in that republic. Their property, however, will have to be abandoned, and we shall have to look to Mexico at some time for the indemnification of American citizens whose property is destroyed. Even at the present time there are millions of dollars worth of claims pending which have been in process of adjudication for many years. To secure one's claim against the Republic of Mexico requires extreme patience and occasions many heartaches. But, how about the citizens of England, France, Germany, Italy and the other European powers? These powers rather look to us to care for their citizens in Mexico, for they feel that under the Monroe Doctrine they are estopped from protecting themselves. If the turmoil that prevails in our sister republic continues, how long will the patience of the European Governments last? Will they not demand that we must do something to safeguard the lives and property of their citizens? It seems to me that these are some of the questions that must be considered, and that the President overlooked in the message."

Representative Henry A. Cooper of Wisconsin, Republican, ranking minority member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee:

"I hope that the President's prophecies as to an early peace will be realized, but that it will not be a peace with the success of the Huerta Government. It certainly ought not to be."

Representative Swagar Sherley of Kentucky, Democratic member of the House Appropriations Committee:

"The President's message was most admirable in substance and style. The whole country, I think, will approve it."

Representative William C. Adamson of Georgia, Democratic Chairman of the House Interstate Commerce Committee:

"It was a very fine message. If we had had a message like that in 1898, when the Cuban question was acute, we should never have had any war with Spain and should have had a good deal better relations with Cuba. The President's advice to Americans in Mexico to come home and remain here until the danger is passed and peace restored was very wise and wholesome. Neutrality, absolute and complete, will soon demonstrate what ought to be done in Mexico."

Representative Martin A. Morrison of Indiana, Democrat:

"I am thoroughly pleased with the message. So far as I have talked with any one, they are all thoroughly satisfied with the President's policy. I think he has rendered this country and Mexico a very great service."

Representative Ben Johnson of Kentucky, Democratic Chairman of the House District Committee:

"I think the message is just exactly right. It is one of the greatest State papers ever written. I am in accord with every statement in it, and was very apprehensive that it was going to be something different."

Representative Thomas A. Gallagher of Illinois, Democrat:

"I think the President has taken a very firm stand, and that when the Mexican people realize the attitude of the Government here they will believe it to be to the best interest of the Mexican people to accept the advice of President Wilson. If Congress will follow it up with a resolution of approval it may awaken the Mexicans to the actual conditions here."

Representative William N. Baltz of Illinois, Democrat:

"I am only a new member and a farmer, untrained in diplomacy, but I think it was the greatest message ever delivered to the Congress. I believe President Wilson is taking the right stand in this Mexican situation."

"Only Temporary in Effect."

Representative William P. Borland of Missouri, Democrat:

"I thought the President's message very fine, and believe it should have a soothing and quieting effect on the American people. Of course, it is only temporary in effect. It does not solve the imbroglio. Unless the Huerta Government accepts very promptly the offer of mediation, it will be necessary for us to take charge in order to secure public order and the protection of Americans and foreigners in Mexico. That, in my judgment, will be the next step to be taken. I heartily concur with the President in giving public opinion a chance to operate on the situation."

Representative Halvor Steenerson of Minnesota, Republican:

"It was a very good message, and I think that it meets the popular sentiments in the matter. We can afford to be patient with Mexico, although no doubt there is a limit beyond which the American people will not endure and will not go. Just now I think the sentiment almost everywhere is that we want to avoid intervention if we possibly can, and the President is doing all he can to carry out that sentiment."

Representative Frank E. Doremus of Michigan, Democrat:

"It was the sort of a message one would expect from President Wilson. I believe it voices the sentiment of practically the entire American people. It will commend itself to the sober judgment of the civilized world as a lofty, moral, and patriotic expression of this nation's attitude toward Mexico. The President has certainly exhibited rare caution and splendid patience in dealing with a trying situation. All Americans will earnestly hope that the Mexican authorities will soon see the wisdom of the course marked out by the President."

Representative Charles Bartlett of Georgia, Democrat:

"I think the message is the message of one of the greatest Presidents we have ever had; that it shows, above all things else, that the President has the interest of the people of the United States at heart and has pursued the only sensible and statesmanlike course that he could in order to maintain peace and the dignity and honor of the United States. My people down in Georgia will heartily approve the President's policy."

WILSON MESSAGE; GAMBOA'S REPLY

Patient Neutrality, Denying Arms to Both Sides in Mexico, Is President's New Plan.

WANTS ALL AMERICANS OUT

Tells Congress Those Who Cannot Leave the Country Must Be Safeguarded.

OUR PROPOSALS REJECTED

Acceptance Would Be Humiliating to Mexico, Minister of Foreign Affairs Tells Lind.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—President Wilson's address to Congress to-day on the Mexican situation follows:

"Gentlemen of the Congress—It is clearly my duty to lay before you, very fully and without reservation, the facts concerning our present relations with the Republic of Mexico. The deplorable posture of affairs in Mexico I need not describe, but I deem it my duty to speak very frankly of what this Government has done and should seek to do in fulfillment of its obligations to Mexico herself, as a friend and neighbor, and to American citizens whose lives and vital interests are daily affected by the distressing conditions which now obtain beyond our southern border.

"Those conditions touch us very nearly. Not merely because they lie at our very doors. That, of course, makes us more vividly and more constantly conscious of them, and every instinct of neighborly interest and sympathy is aroused and quickened by them; but that is only one element in the determination of our duty. We are glad to call ourselves the friends of Mexico, and we shall, I hope, have many an occasion, in happier times as well as in these days of trouble and confusion, to show that our friendship is genuine and disinterested, capable of sacrifice, and every generous manifestation.

"The peace, prosperity, and contentment of Mexico mean more, much more, to us than merely an enlarged field for our commerce and enterprise. They mean an enlargement of the field of self-government and the realization of the hopes and rights of a nation with whose best aspirations, so long suppressed and disappointed, we deeply sympathize. We shall yet prove to the Mexican people that we know how to serve them without first thinking how we shall serve ourselves.

Whole World Friendly to Mexico.

"But we are not the only friends of Mexico. The whole world desires her peace and progress; and the whole world is interested as never before. Mexico lies at last where all the world looks on. Central America is about to be touched by the great routes of the world's trade and intercourse running free from ocean to ocean at the Isthmus. The future has much in store for Mexico, as for all the States of Central America; but the best gifts can come to her only if she be ready and free to receive them and to enjoy them honorably.

"America in particular—America north and south and upon both continents—waits upon the development of Mexico; and that development can be sound and lasting only if it be the product of a genuine freedom, a just and ordered Government founded upon law. Only so can it be peaceful or fruitful of the benefits of peace. Mexico has a great and enviable future before her, if only she choose and attain the paths of honest constitutional government.

"The present circumstances of the republic, I deeply regret to say, do not seem to promise even the foundations of such a peace. We have waited many months, months full of peril and anxiety, for the conditions there to improve, and they have not improved. They have grown worse, rather. The territory in some sort controlled by the provisional authorities at Mexico City has grown smaller, not larger. The prospect of the pacification of the country, even by arms, has seemed to grow more and more remote; and its pacification by the authorities at the capital is evidently impossible by any other means than force. Difficulties more and more entangle those who claim to constitute the legitimate government of the republic. They have not made good their claim in fact. Their successes in the field have proved only temporary. War and disorder, devastation and confusion, seem to threaten to become the settled fortune of the distracted country.

"As friends, we could wait no longer for a solution which every week seemed further away. It was our duty at least to volunteer our good offices—to offer to assist, if we might, in effecting some arrangement which would bring relief and peace and set up a universally acknowledged political authority there.

"Accordingly, I took the liberty of sending the Hon. John Lind, formerly Governor of Minnesota, as my personal spokesman and representative, to the City of Mexico, with the following instructions:

> Press very earnestly upon the attention of those who are now exercising authority or wielding influence in Mexico the following considerations and advice:
> The Government of the United States does not feel at liberty any longer to stand inactively by while it becomes daily more and more evident that no real progress is being made toward the establihment of a Government at the City of Mexico which the country will obey and respect.
> The Government of the United States does not stand in the same case with the other great Governments of the world in respect of what is happening or what is likely to happen in Mexico. We offer our good offices, not only because of our genuine desire to play the part of a friend, but also because we are expected by the powers of the world to act as Mexico's nearest friend.
> We wish to act in these circumstances in the spirit of the most earnest and disinterested friendship. It is our purpose in whatever we do or propose in this perplexing and distressing situation not only to pay the most scrupulous regard to the sovereignty and independence of Mexico—that we take as a matter of course to which we are bound by every obligation of right and honor—but also to give every possible evidence that we act in the interest of Mexico alone, and not in the interest of any perso or body of persons who may have personal or property claims in Mexico which they may feel that they have the right to press.
> We are seeking to counsel Mexico for her own good and in the interest of her own peace, and not for any other purpose whatever. The Government of the United States would deem itself discredited if it had any selfish or ulterior purpose in transactions where the peace, happiness and prosperity of a whole people are involved. It is acting as its friendship for Mexico, not as any selfish interest, dictates.
> The present situation in Mexico is incompatible with the fulfilment of international obligations on the part of Mexico, with the civilized development of Mexico herself, and with the maintenance of tolerable political and economic conditions in Central America. It is upo no common occasion, therefore, that the United States offers her counsel and assistance. All America cries out for a settlement.
> A satisfactory settlement seems to us to be conditioned on—
> "(a)—Immediate cessation of fighting throughout Mexico, a definite armistice solemnly entered into and scrupulously observed;
> "(b)—Security given for an early and free election in which all will agree to take part;
> "(c)—The consent of Gen. Huerta to bind himself not to be a candidate for election as President of the republic at this election; and
> "(d)—The agreement of all parties to abide by the results of the election and co-operate in the most loyal way in organizing and supporting the new Administration.

"The Government of the United States will be glad to play any part in this settlement or in its carrying out which it can play honorably and consistently with international right. It pledges itself to recognize and in every way possible and proper to assist the Administration chosen and set up in Mexico in the way and on the conditions suggested.

"Taking all the existing conditions into consideration, the Government of the United States can conceive of no reasons sufficient to justify those who are now attempting to shape the policy or exercise the authority of Mexico in declining the offices of friendship thus offered. Can Mexico give the civilized world a satisfactory reason for rejecting our good offices? If Mexico can suggest any better way in which to show our friendship, serve the people of Mexico, and meet our international obligations, we are more than willing to consider the suggestion.

"Mr. Lind executed his delicate and difficult mission with singular tact, firmness, and good judgment, and made clear to the authorities at the City of Mexico not only the purpose of his visit but also the spirit in which it had been undertaken. But the proposals he submitted were rejected, in a note the full text of which I take the liberty of laying before you.

Mexican Officials Misinformed.

"I am led to believe that they were rejected partly because the authorities at Mexico City had been grossly misinformed and misled upon two points. They did not realize the spirit of the American people in this matter, their earnest friendliness and yet sober determination that some just solution be found for the Mexican difficulties; and they did not believe that the present Administration spoke, through Mr. Lind, for the people of the United States.

"The effect of this unfortunate misunderstanding on their part is to leave them singularly isolated and without friends who can effectually aid them. So long as the misunderstanding continues we can only await the time of their awakening to a realization of the actual facts. We cannot thrust our good offices upon them. The situation must be given a little more time to work itself out in the new circumstances, and I believe that only a little while will be necessary.

"For the circumstances are new. The rejection of our friendship makes them new and will inevitably bring its own alterations in the whole aspect of affairs. The actual situation of the authorities at Mexico City will presently be revealed.

"Meanwhile, what is it our duty to do? Clearly, everything that we do must be rooted in patience and done with calm and disinterested deliberation. Impatience on our part would be childish, and would be fraught with every risk of wrong and folly. We can afford to exercise the self-restraint of a really great nation, which realizes its own strength and scorns to misuse it. It was our duty to offer our active assistance. It is now our duty to show what true neutrality will do to enable the people of Mexico to set their affairs in order again and wait for a further opportunity to offer our friendly counsels. The door is not closed against the resumption, either upon the initiative of Mexico or upon our own, of the effort to bring order out of the confusion by friendly co-operative action, should fortunate occasion offer.

"While we wait, the contest of the rival forces will undoubtedly for a little while be sharper than ever, just because it will be plain that an end must be made of the existing situation, and that very promptly; and with the increased activity of the contending factions will come, it is to be feared, increased danger to the non-combatants in Mexico, as well as to those actually in the field of battle. The position of outsiders is always particularly trying and full of hazard where there is civil strife and a whole country is upset.

"We should earnestly urge all Americans to leave Mexico at once, and should assist them to get away in every way possible—not because we would mean to slacken in the least our efforts to safeguard their lives and their interests, but because it is imperative that they should take no unnecessary risks when it is physically possible for them to leave the country. We should let every one who assumes to exercise authority in any part of Mexico know in the most unequivocal way that we shall vigilantly watch the fortunes of those Americans who cannot get away, and shall hold those responsible for their sufferings and losses to a definite reckoning. That can be and will be made plain beyond the possibility of a misunderstanding.

Will Enforce Arms Embargo.

"For the rest, I deem it my duty to exercise the authority conferred upon me by the law of March 14, 1912, to see to it that neither side to the struggle now going on in Mexico receive any assistance from this side the border. I shall follow the best practice of nations in the matter of neutrality by forbidding the exportation of arms or munitions of war of any kind from the United States to any part of the Republic of Mexico—a policy suggested by several interesting precedents and certainly dictated by many manifest considerations of practical expediency. We cannot in the circumstances be the partisans of either party to the contest that now distracts Mexico, or constitute ourselves the virtual umpire between them.

"I am happy to say that several of the great Governments of the world have given this Government their generous moral support in urging upon the provisional authorities at the City of Mexico the acceptance of our proffered good offices in the spirit in which they were made. We have not acted in this matter under the ordinary principles of international obligation. All the world expects us in such circumstances to act as Mexico's nearest friend and intimate adviser. This is our immemorial relation toward her. There is nowhere any serious question that we have the moral right in the case or that we are acting in the interest of a fair settlement and of good government, not for the promotion of some selfish interest of our own.

"If further motive were necessary than our own good will toward a sister republic and our own deep concern to see peace and order prevail in Central America, this consent of mankind to what we are attempting, this attitude of the great nations of the world toward what we may attempt in dealing with this distressed people at our doors, should make us feel the more solemnly bound to go to the utmost length of patience and forbearance in this painful and anxious business.

"The steady pressure of moral force will before many days break the barriers of pride and prejudice down, and we shall triumph as Mexico's friends sooner than we could triumph as her enemies—and how much more handsomely, with how much higher and finer satisfaction of conscience and of honor!"

GAMBOA'S REPLY TO LIND.

American Proposals Rejected as Humiliating and Impossible.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Following is the reply of Federico Gamboa, Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs, to the proposals submitted by President Wilson through John Lind:

"Mexico, Aug. 16, 1913.

"Sir: On the 6th instant, pursuant to telegraphic instructions from his Government, the Chargé d'Affaires ad interim of the United States of America verbally informed Mr. Manuel Garza Aldape, then in charge of the Department of Foreign Affairs, of your expected arrival in this republic with a mission of peace. As fortunately neither then nor to-day has there existed a state of war between the United States of America and the United Mexican States, my Government was very much surprised to learn that your mission near us should be referred to as one of peace. This brought forth the essential condition which my Government ventured to demand in its unnumbered note of the 6th instant addressed to the aforesaid Chargé d'Affaires—'that if you do not see fit to properly establish your official character' your sojourn could not be pleasing to us according to the meaning which diplomatic usage gives to this word.

"Fortunately, from the first interview I had the pleasure to have with you, your character as confidential agent of your Government was fully established, inasmuch as the letter you had the kindness to show me, though impersonally addressed, was signed by the President of the United States, for whom we entertain the highest respect.

"It is not essential at this time, Mr. Confidential Agent, that I should recall the whole of our first conversation. I will say, however, that I found you to be a well-informed man and animated by the sincerest wishes that the unfortunate tension of the present relations between your Government and mine should reach a prompt and satisfactory solution.

"During our second interview, which, like the first one of the 14th instant, was held at my private [word omitted], you saw fit, after all intent, honest and frank exchange of opinion concerning the attitudes of our respective Governments which did not lead us to any decision, to deliver to me the note containing the instructions, also signed by the President of the United States.

Highest Respect for Wilson.

"Duly authorized by the President of the Republic, pursuant to the unanimous approval of the Cabinet, which was convened for the purpose, I have the honor to make a detailed reply to such instructions.

"The Government of Mexico has paid due attention to the advice and considerations expressed by the Government of the United States; has done this on account of three principal reasons: First, because, as stated before, Mexico entertains the highest respect for the personality of His Excellency Woodrow Wilson; second, because certain European and American governments, with which Mexico cultivates the closest relations of international amity, having in a most delicate, respectful way, highly gratifying to us, made use of their good offices to the end that Mexico should accord you a hearing, inasmuch as you were the bearer of a private mission from the President of the United States; and, third, because Mexico was anxious, not so much to justify its attitude before the inhabitants of the Republic in the present emergency, the great majority of whom, and by means of imposing and orderly manifestations, have signified their adhesion and approval as to demonstrate in every way the justice of its cause.

"Imputation Unfounded."

"The imputation contained in the first paragraph of your instructions that no progress has been made toward establishing in the capital of Mexico a government that may enjoy the respect and obedience of the Mexican people is unfounded. In contradiction with their gross imputation, which is not supported by any proofs, principally because there are none, it affords me pleasure to refer, Mr. Confidential Agent, to the following facts which abound in evidence and which to a certain extent must be known to you by direct observation:

"The Mexican Republic, Mr. Confidential Agent, is formed by twenty-seven States, three Territories, and one Federal District, in which the supreme power of the Republic has its seat. Of these twenty-seven States, eighteen of them, the three Territories, and the Federal District (making a total of twenty-two political entities) are under the absolute control of the present Government, which, aside from the above, exercises its authority over almost every port in the Republic, and consequently over the custom houses therein established. Its southern frontier is open and at peace. Moreover, my Government has an army of 80,000 men in the field, with no other purpose than to insure complete peace in the Republic, the only national aspiration and solemn promise of the present provisional president.

The above is sufficient to exclude any doubt that my Government is worthy of the respect and obedience of the Mexican people, because the latter's consideration has been gained at the cost of the greatest sacrifice and in spite of the most evil influences.

"My Government fails to understand what the Government of the United States of America means by saying that it does not find itself in the same case with reference to the other nations of the earth concerning what is happening and is likely to happen in Mexico. The conditions of Mexico at the present time are unfortunately neither doubtful nor secret; it is afflicted with an internal strife, which has been raging almost three years, and which I can only classify in these lines as a fundamental mistake.

With reference to what might happen in Mexico, neither you, Mr. Confidential Agent, nor I, nor anyone else can prognosticate, because no assertion is possible on incidents which have not occurred. On the other hand, my Government greatly appreciates the good offices tendered to it by the Government of the United States of America in the present circumstances; it recognizes that they are inspired by the noble desire to act as a friend, as well as by the wishes of all the other Governments which expect the United States to act as Mexico's nearest friend. But if such good offices are to be of the character of those now tendered to us, we should have to decline them in the most categorical and definite maner.

"Inasmuch as the Government of the United States is willing to act in the most disinterested friendship, it will be difficult for it to find a more propitious opportunity than the following: If it should only watch that no material and monetary assistance is given to rebels who find refuge, conspire, and provide themselves with arms and food on the other side of the border; if it should demand from its minor and local authorities the strictest observance of the neutrality laws, I assure you, Mr. Confidential Agent, that the complete pacification of this Republic would be accomplished within a relatively short time.

Can't Be Answered in Writing.

"I intentionally abstain from replying to the allusion that it is the purpose of the United States of America to show the greatest respect for the sovereignty and independence of Mexico, because, Mr. Confidential Agent, there are matters which not even from the standpoint of the idea itself could be given an answer in writing.

"His Excellency, Mr. Wilson, is laboring under a serious delusion when he declares that the present situation of Mexico is incompatible with the compliance of her international obligations, with the development of its own civilization, and with the required maintenance of certain political and economical conditions tolerable in Central America. Strongly backing that there is a mistake, because to this date no charge has been made by any foreign Government accusing us of the above lack of compliance, we are punctually meeting all of our credits; we are still maintaining diplomatic missions cordially accepted in almost all the countries of the world, and we continue to be invited to all kinds of international congresses and conferences.

"With regard to our interior development, the following proof is sufficient, to wit: A contract has just been signed with Belgian capitalists which means to Mexico the construction of something like 5,000 kilometers of railway. In conclusion, we fail to see the evil results, which are prejudicial only to ourselves, felt in Central America by our present domestic war.

"In one thing I do agree with you, Mr. Confidential Agent, and it is that the whole of America is clamoring for a prompt solution of our disturbances, this being a very natural sentiment if it is borne in mind that a country which was prosperous only yesterday has been suddenly caused to suffer a great internal misfortune.

"Consequently, Mexico cannot for one moment take into consideration the four conditions which His Excellency Mr. Wilson has been pleased to propose through your honorable and worthy channel. I must give you the reasons for it:

"An immediate suspension of the struggle in Mexico, a definite armistice, 'solemnly constructed, and scrupulously observed,' is not possible, as to do this it would be necessary that there should be someone capable of proposing it without causing a profound offense to civilization, to the many bandits, who, under this or that pretext, are marauding toward the south and committing the most outrageous depredations; and I know of no country in the world, the United States included, which may have ever dared to enter into agreement or to propose an armistice to individuals who, perhaps on account of a physiological accident, can be found all over the world beyond the pale of the divine and human laws. Bandits, Mr. Confidential Agent, are not admitted to armistice; the first action against them is one of correction, and when this, unfortunately, fails, their lives must be severed for the sake of the biological and fundamental principle; then useful sprouts should grow and fructify.

"With reference to the rebels who style themselves 'Constitutionalists,' one of the representatives of whom has been given an ear by members of the United States Senate, what could there be more gratifying to us than if, convinced of the precipice to which we are being dragged by the resentment of their defeat, in a moment of reaction they would depose their rancor and add their strength to ours, so that all together we would undertake the great and urgent task of national reconstruction? Unfortunately they do not avail themselves of the amnesty law enacted by the Provisional Government immediately after its inauguration, but, on the contrary, well-known rebels holding elective positions in the capital of the republic or profitable employments left the country without molestation, notwithstanding the information which the Government had that they were going to foreign lands to work against its interests, many of whom have taken upon themselves the unfortunate task of exposing the mysteries and infirmities from which we are suffering, the same as any other human congregation.

No Armistice With Rebels.

"Were we to agree with them to the armistice suggested, they would, ipso facto, recognize their belligerency, and this is something which cannot be done for many reasons which cannot escape the perspicacity of the Government of the United States of America, which to this day, and publicly, at least, has classed them as rebels just the same as we have. And it is an accepted doctrine that no armistice can be concerted with rebels.

"The assurance asked of my Government that it should promptly convene to free elections is the most evident proof and the most unequivocal concession that the Government of the United States considers it legally and solidly constituted and that it is exercising, like all those of its class, acts of such importance as to indicate the perfect civil operation of a sovereign nation. Inasmuch as our laws already provide such assurance, there is no fear that the letter may not be observed during the coming elections, and while the present Government is of a provisional character it will cede its place to the definite government which may be elected by the people.

"The request that General Victoriano Huerta should agree not to appear as a candidate for the Presidency of the republic in the coming elections cannot be taken into consideration, because, aside from its strange and unwarranted character, there is a risk that the same might be interpreted as a matter of personal dislike. This point can only be decided by Mexican public opinion when it may be expressed at the polls.

"The pledge that all parties should agree beforehand to the results of the election, and to co-operate in the most loyal manner to support and organize the new Administration, is something to be tactily supposed and desired, and that the experiences of what this internal strife means to us in loss of life and the destruction of property will cause all contending political factions to abide by the results; but it would be extemporaneous to make any assertion in this respect, even by the most experienced countries in civil matters, inasmuch as no one can forecast or foresee the errors and excesses which men are likely to commit, especially under the influence of political passion.

Legality of Huerta Regime.

"We hasten to signify our appreciation to the United States of America because they agree from to-day to recognize the future, which we, the Mexican people, may elect to rule our destinies. On the other hand we greatly deplore the present tension in our relations with your country, a tension which has been produced without Mexico having afforded the slightest cause therefor.

"The legality of the Government of Gen. Huerta cannot be disputed. Article 85 of our political Constitution provides:

> If at the beginning of a constitutional term neither the President nor the Vice President elected present themselves, or if the election had not been held and the results thereof declared by the first of December, nevertheless, the President whose term has expired will cease in his functions, and the Secretary of Foreign Affairs shall immediately take charge of the Executive power in the capacity of Provisional President; and if there should be no Secretary for Foreign Affairs, or if he should be incapacitated, the Presidency shall devolve on one of the other secretaries, pursuant to the order provided by the law establishing their number. The same procedure shall be followed when, in the case of the absolute or temporary absence of the President, the Vice President fails to appear, when on leave of absence from his post, if he should be discharging his duties, and when in the course of his term the absolute absence of both functionaries should occur.

"Now, then, the facts which occurred are the following: The resignation of Francisco I. Madero, Constitutional President, and José María Pino Suarez, Constitutional Vice President of the republic. These resignations having been accepted, Pedro Lascurain, Minister for Foreign Affairs, took charge by operation of law of the vacant Executive power, appointing, as he had the power to do, Gen. Victoriano Huerta to the post of Minister of the Interior. As Mr. Lascurain soon afterward resigned, and as his resignation was immediately accepted by Congress, Gen. Victoriano Huerta took charge of the Executive power, also by operation of law, with the provisional character and under the constitutional promise already complied with to issue a call for special elections. As will be seen the point of issue is exclusively one of constitutional law, in which no foreign nation, no matter how powerful and respectable it may be, should mediate in the least.

"Moreover, my Government considers that at the present time the recognition of the Government of Gen. Huerta by that of the United States of America is not concerned, inasmuch as facts which exist on their own account are not and cannot be susceptible of recognition. The only thing which is being discussed is a suspension of relations as abnormal and without reason; abnormal because the Ambassador of the United States of America, in his high diplomatic investiture and appearing as Dean of the Foreign Diplomatic Corps accredited to the Government of the republic, congratulated Gen. Huerta upon his elevation to the Presidency, continued to correspond with this department by means of diplomatic notes, and on his departure left the First Secretary of the Embassy of the United States of America as Chargé d'Affaires ad interim, and the latter continues here in the free exercise of his functions; and without reason, because, I repeat, we have not given the slightest pretext.

"The confidential agent may believe that solely because of the sincere esteem in which the people and the Government of the United States of America are held by the people and Government of Mexico and because of the consideration which it has for all friendly nations (and especially in this case for those which have offered their good offices) my Government consented to take into consideration, and to answer as briefly as the matter permits, the representations of which you are the bearer. Otherwise, it would have rejected them immediately because of their humiliating and unusual character, hardly admissible even in a treaty of peace after a victory, inasmuch as in a like case any nation which in the least respects itself would do likewise.

"It is because my Government has confidence that when the justice of its cause is reconsidered with serenity and from a lofty point of view by the present President of the United States of America, whose sense of morality and uprightness are beyond question, that he will withdraw from his attitude and will contribute to the renewal of still firmer bases for the relations of sincere friendship and good understanding forcibly imposed on us throughout the centuries by our geographical nearness, something which none of us can change, even though we would so desire, by our mutual interests and by our share of activity in the common sense of prosperity, welfare, and culture, in regard to which we are pleased to acknowledge that you are enviably ahead of us.

"With reference to the final part of the instructions of President Wilson, which I beg to include herewith and which say, 'if Mexico can suggest any better way in which to show our friendship, serve the people of Mexico, and meet our international obligations, we are more than willing to consider the suggestion,' that final part causes me to propose the following equally decorous arrangement:

"1.—That our Ambassador be received in Washington.

"2.—That the United States of America send us a new Ambassador without previous conditions.

"And all this threatening and distressing situation will have reached a happy conclusion. Mention will not be made of the causes which might carry us, if the tension persists, to no one knows what incalculable extremities for two peoples who have the unavoidable obligation to continue being friends, provided, of course, that this friendship is based upon mutual respect, which is indispensable between two sovereign entities wholly equal before law and justice.

"In conclusion, permit me, Mr. Confidential Agent, to reiterate to you the assurances of my perfect consideration.

"F. GAMBOA,

ing he had not bought passage on the vessel.

The American President's emissary throughout the day and evening received many cable dispatches from Washington.

Mr. Lind visited during the day all the high city officials in company with Consul Canada. His visit to the Military Commander was extremely cordial. This evening Admiral Fletcher gave Mr. Lind an informal dinner at the Hotel Diligencias.

Public opinion is that the crisis is approaching, that Huerta will carry his point, and that even if Trevino is named as President provisionally it will be because his advanced age will guarantee that he can be easily managed.

Mexico Makes Notes Public.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 27.—Without comment Federico Gamboa, Minister of Foreign Relations, presented to the standing committee of the Mexican Congress to-night all the facts in the controversy between Mexico and the United States.

The Congressmen comprising the committee received the facts without comment other than that indulged in as individuals after adjournment. Unless there are new developments, it is improbable that discussion, even of a private character, will continue long.

The Congressmen in discussing the notes exchanged freely commended the action of the Mexican Government, and that a small part of the public which is cognizant of the character of that action was loud in its praise of what was characterized as the patriotic and dignified attitude of the Huerta Administration.

No afternoon paper in the capital carried any part of the correspondence between the countries or reference to President Wilson's message. Officials of the Government refused to discuss it, with the exception of Señor Gamboa, who referred to the exchanges, and then only sufficiently to explain that the documents he was handing out for publication were those exchanged up to last night.

All the Government cared to say regarding the situation was published to-night in the official Diario, a paper issued by the Government for the dissemination of official news.

"Since the strained relations existing between Mexico and the United States began," said Señor Gamboa in this article, "the ad interim Government, with a full understanding of the obligations and responsibilities, purposed with the greatest possible spirit of conciliation to preserve national decorum, which was in great danger of suffering a serious and transcendental affront, had another line of conduct been adopted from that which was taken under the present circumstances.

"The strictly secret character of the negotiations which were still under way decided the Government upon witholding until to-day the publication of the whole of the correspondence exchanged between the Chancelleries.

"In view of the fact that the President of the United States has already submitted the case to Congress, the Constitutional ad interim Government believes it to be its duty through the official organ to inform all the inhabitants of the republic of the state of these delicate negotiations. Purposely not a single comment is added, since the Government believes that the documents are eloquent enough in themselves. It confines itself to hoping for approval of its acts by the people whose destinies it temporarily guides, and recommending the greatest calm and discretion in order that the decorous and solemn course of the aforementioned negotiations may not be hindered."

President Wilson's second note, made public to-night, insists on an immediate answer only to the demand that Gen. Huerta be eliminated from the electoral contest. All other points, says President Wilson, may be taken up later. He suggests, however, that they be taken up without great delay.

Minister Gamboa, replying to the second note presented by Mr. Lind, said, in effect, that his first answer might stand for a reply to that note, but that President Huerta, desiring to exercise extreme forbearance, was willing to make further explanations to the suggestion offered by President Wilson that if the Mexican Government "acts immediately and favorably" upon the suggestions President Wilson would "express to American bankers and their associates assurances that the Government will look with favor upon the extension of an immediate loan sufficient to meet the temporary needs of the present Administration."

To this, Señor Gamboa replied:

"There could not be a loan big enough offered to induce those intrusted with the national dignity to put that dignity aside."

The Minister asserted that the recommendation regarding the withdrawal of Gen. Huerta's candidacy was impossible of fulfillment, saying:

"Not only would we forego our sovereignty, but compromise for an indefinite future our destinies as a sovereign entity, and all future elections for President would be submitted to the veto of any President of the United States. Such an enormity no Government will ever attempt to perpetuate."

He pointed out the clause in the Constitution which incapacitated a President ad interim from becoming a candidate at a forthcoming election, and said:

"If President Wilson had taken such paragraph into consideration before venturing to impose upon us the conditions in question, and which we have no power to admit, the present state of affairs between you and ourselves would have been avoided."

"There does not exist a newspaper, club, or group of persons that launched his candidacy or even discussed it. What, then, were the gratuitous suspicions on which the President of the United States based the demand that Gen. Huerta should enter into an agreement never before imposed on a governor of any nation?"

President Wilson, said Señor Gamboa, might have withdrawn definitely from his attitude, but at the risk of his action being wrongly or differently interpreted by the other nations. He withdrew the suggestion that diplomatic relations be resumed, and considered it enough that the staffs of the respective Embassies should remain in status quo, but on the basis that the Administration be announced as the ad interim Constitutional Government of the republic.

Gen. Huerta was not in the National Palace this afternoon, and at his home it was said he had gone to Popla, a suburb, where he was superintending the erection of a dwelling. A Cabinet Minister said that he was determined not to quit office, and that the summoning to the capital of Gen. Trevino had nothing to do with the change in the Presidency. Huerta appears to believe that the pacification of the country yet can be accomplished by him.

As a proof of the progress already made in that direction, the Department of War refers to the reports of Federal victories in various parts of the republic, and characterizes the stories of rebel successes as falsehoods. The administration points to the successful repairing of the main line of the National Railway, and expresses the hope that service will be resumed in a few days.

The Minister of Finance professes faith in the happy outcome of the negotiations with London or other European bankers in an endeavor to obtain $20,000,000, but it is stated generally that even should that loan fail there would remain as a last resort the possibility of raising money in Mexico through increased taxes paid in advance. That plan has been discussed seriously.

So far as the protection of foreigners is concerned, Mexico takes the position that she will do all in her power to guarantee this. The refusal of the United States to permit arms and ammunition to reach the Mexican Government through American sources will not be so serious a handicap to Gen. Huerta, as he has begun the purchase of supplies from Japan and long has been receiving consignments from Germany and Spain.

INTERVENTION NEAR, LONDON PAPERS SAY

Daily Mail Scoffs at Policy of Abandoning American Properties.

TALK OF A PROTECTORATE

Express Says Mexico Must "Climb Down or Fight"—British Sympathy Expressed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 28.—The Daily Mail, in an editorial on President Wilson's message, says it is clear that what the United States Government most needs is a policy of what may be called unattached boldness.

The principal clause of the message is a thing imagination boggles at. The President urges 60,000 or so American citizens residing in Mexico to clear out of the country. This group of men manage to control a great part of the railways, tramways and other utilities of Mexico. They represent as much as $500,000,000 capital, and unless they can put these trains and tramways into their pockets when they migrate, they must presumably leave them for the benefit of all and sundry. The message should be quite popular in Mexico.

"This policy, bold though it is, is in essence even more negative than previous contributions of Washington to the solution of the many problems raised by Diaz's fall."

The Daily News says:

"If only the European powers do not stiffen Huerta's back, Wilson's policy may prove as judicious as prudent."

The Daily Chronicle, referring to President Wilson's claim that his attitude is approved by other interested powers, says:

"That is true in a sense. None of them, least of all ourselves, desires to increase the difficulties of the United States or has failed to recognize how preponderant, for geographical reasons, is her interest in Mexican politics. Nevertheless, it was the powers' policy to recognize Huerta, and it is Wilson's not to, and those two policies are not only distinct but to a great extent the second undoes the first. Had the United States stood in line with the other powers, Huerta could have obtained the necessary money, supported as he is by most of the regular military and civil forces of the country."

The Times says:

"The world will read with a certain bewilderment the President's statement that 'if Mexico can suggest any better way in which the United States can show its friendship we are more than willing to consider the suggestion.' Not only Mexico, but all the foreign residents of Mexico and every Government whose nationals possess interests in that country have already pointed out a 'better way.' It is a simple and, we believe, an effective way, and it consists in Aemrica's following the example already set by other powers and recognizing Huerta.

"As to America's insistence upon a general election as a means of regularizing the status of the Mexican President, Mr. Wilson can hardly be unaware that there has never yet been a genuine poll of the people of Mexico, that elections there are automatically 'made' by the party or ruler in control, and that to hold one now with the idea of testing the real sentiments of the people would be little less than a farce. Huerta would no doubt be willing to go through with the farce if it were not for the American stipulation that he is not to play the principal rôle in it. That is a demand with which President Wilson can hardly expect him to comply. It is difficult, indeed, to resist the suspicion that in thus emphasizing its purely personal objections to Huerta the United States Government may be jeopardizing its best chance of the assisting country of which, for the first time, at all events, he is the effective ruler."

The Morning Post says:

"President Wilson will have his hands full if he sets himself up as a censor of morals for the Presidents of Latin-America. Among the republics of this region revolutions are, to say the least, not an uncommon incident, and if the United States is to withhold the light of her countenance from every administration which is not placed in office by strictly constitutional means her relations with her neighbors may well become somewhat strained.

"What guarantee can President Wilson have that, if a man of unblemished moral character is selected by the strictest constitutional methods to fill the office of President of Mexico, his rivals would allow him to reign in peace; and if the election did not establish peace between the hostile factions, the United States would be unable to escape from the responsibility of intervening to restore order; for if, as President Wilson declares, she is prepared to support a duly elected President by all the means in her power, she could be bound to take his side against all parties who tried to overthrow him and once she accepted this duty, Mexico would be in fact, if not in name, an American protectorate."

LONDON, Thursday, Aug 28.—The London morning papers, commenting on the message, are not altogether sanguine of the wisdom or success of President Wilson's policy, but are agreed that it is almost certain to lead to American intervention, therefore indicating that a grave crisis has been reached.

The Morning Post says:

"President Wilson will have his hands full if he sets himself up as the censor of morals for the Presidents of Latin America, and if the United States accepts the duty of supporting the duly elected President, Mexico would become in fact, if not in name, an American protectorate."

The Express says:

"President Wilson is not the man to bluff on such a question. From his stern and explicit message it is clear that Mexico must either climb down or fight. If the former, she admits American suzerainty; if the latter, she may lose her independence altogether. Great Britain has large interests and much to lose by war, but it is difficult to understand how British sympathy could otherwise be bestowed than on the United States."

BERLIN, Thursday, Aug. 28.—The Berlin morning papers print President Wilson's message practically without comment. Only The Deutsche Tages-Zeitung says that it is moderate and peaceable, but infers from the words that patience and forbearance are demanded in the present situation, and that "the United States is only waiting until the roast is cooked through."

PARIS, Thursday, Aug. 28.—The Paris newspapers give much prominence to President Wilson's message, but the majority of them abstain from comment. The Petit Parisien prints in italics that part of the message in which Americans are urged to leave Mexico at once, and at the same time calls attention to the fact that war is in no sense contemplated.

The Journal says that whatever hope President Huerta may have placed in the belief that President Wilson's policy would not be supported must now be dissipated, for, it declares, the message was an undoubted success.

WOMAN ASSAILS WILSON.

Indignant Wife of Mexican Publisher Finds His Policy All Wrong.

Mrs. Paul Hudson, wife of the publisher of The Mexican Herald, a Government controlled newspaper, published in the City of Mexico, sent for a TIMES reporter last night to take her comment on President Wilson's message to Congress on the Mexican situation. Mrs. Hudson is staying at the Hotel Collingwood, in Thirty-fifth Street.

"I am just burning up with indignation," Mrs. Hudson announced. "President Wilson has piled one shameful humiliation after another upon American citizens in Mexico, but this last—this advice to get out of Mexico and leave everything we have—is too much for words. I have been in Mexico seventeen years. I came up here three months ago. My husband went back about four weeks since. Everything we have is in Mexico. Are we to be stripped of everything and left without redress?

"This holier-than-thou attitude toward Huerta disgusts me. Who else in Mexico stands for anything? Mr. Wilson talks as though there were two factions in Mexico. There aren't. There's Huerta and half a dozen others, not at all united. Huerta was constitutionally elected. Everything would be all right to-day, if not for squeamishness in recognizing him. When he came in, everybody feared him. He had a great prestige. They dreaded him as much as the old Diaz when he first came in. But all that great prestige has been destroyed by the dilly-dallying of Mr. Wilson in not recognizing him.

"What kept the peons, the men who are the bandits now, good under the Diaz régime? Their moral character, their sweet dispositions? No, they were policed. Diaz policed them. They were afraid of him, and they worked instead of looting. They were afraid of Huerta, too, till the United States encouraged them to fight by its attitude toward Huerta. The United States has kept Huerta from getting money, though he needed it badly when he came in.

"Mr. Wilson speaks of Huerta procrastinating. Procastinating what? Refusing to resign, not promising to refrain from running for President? What self-respecting man would listen to proposals like that? Whom would he resign to? What for? Why in the name of goodness? Why should he pay any attention to the representations of a Government that refuses to recognize him?

"And Lind! To take a man who never had any diplomatic experience, who didn't speak Spanish, and knew nothing at all about Mexico and pick him out as the one to go down among a lot of suspicious Latins, and in a day or two butt into their affairs and give them a lot of cock and bull stuff about friendship. His mission was doomed before he started.

"If Mr. Wilson thinks he's going to avoid intervention he's mistaken. He may not take the initiative; some foreign nation will force him to go in there just the same. It's probably too late to recognize Huerta now. His prestige has been too largely destroyed for it to have the effect that it would have had months ago. The only thing that will do any good is to throw the fear of wrath into the hearts of the peons to let Americans and American property alone."

FEDERALS MAY QUIT JUAREZ.

Rush Order for Troop Train—Conditions Bad in Torreon.

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 27.—Preparations, apparently for a possible evacuation of Juarez by the Federal forces, were made hurriedly to-day. A special troop train of twenty cars was ordered made ready by Gen. Francisco Castro, the commander, and all of the more than 2,000 troops in the town were prepared for a quick move. Federal officials would not admit that withdrawal was planned.

American refugees who left Torreon Aug. 24 arrived here to-day and said 600 men had been killed in the fighting there when they left, and the Federals were burning their dead in the streets. An epidemic of typhoid fever had started, and conditions were desperate for Americans remaining there.

Federals had abandoned Gomez Palacio and Lardo, suburbs, and rebels had entered both villages and destroyed several stores. The refugees said rebels controlled both railroads leading to Torreon, and had dynamited six trains on the international railway.

REBELS BUSY GETTING ARMS.

Force American Smelting Company to Make Cannon for Them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The State Department was advised to-day by Consul Hamm at Durango that Gov. Carranza of Coahuila, the Constitutionalist leader, and his staff left that place yesterday for Sonora to confer with the revolutionary leaders in that State. Carranza is expected to return to Durango and to keep the headquarters of the revoluntionary forces there.

The revolutionists, Consul Hamm reports, are making desperate efforts, it is said, to perfect their military organizations and to obtain arms and ammunition for their regular organizations in the field. They are directing special energy to providing artillery, and have seized shops and supplies of steel and iron for that purpose.

The American Smelting and Refining Company, the Consul says has been forced by the revolutionist leaders to make cannon for them in its shops at Velardena. A large revolutionary force is centered at Velardena and Pedricent. is centered at Velardena and Pedricena. and drilled vigorously.

DESIGNATED TOO LATE.

Secretary of State Won't Accept D. A. Dugan's Name for Senator.

ALBANY, Aug. 27.—The Secretary of State, Mitchell May, declined to-day to accept the designation of Daniel A. Dugan of Beacon as Democratic candidate for Senator from the Twenty-sixth District to fill out the unexpired term of Franklin D Roosevelt, who resigned to become Assistant Secretary of the Navy. The designation, which was mailed at 2:30 P. M. yesterday, was not delivered until this morning. The time for filing party designations expired at midnight last night.

It was stated a court order would have to be obtained in order to place Mr. Dugan's name on the primary ballot.

Durango Land for Houseseekers.

EAGLE PASS, Texas, Aug. 27.—Land owned by Durango, capital of Durango State, is to be divided into small plats and sold to native homeseekers on long terms, according to Pastor Rouaix, Governor of the State, who says he hopes by this adaptation of the "plan of San Luis Potosi" to pave a way to the solution of Mexico's agrarian problem. Rules to prevent speculators from getting control of the cheap land have been adopted.

GAYNOR IN THE RACE WITH FULL TICKET

PLANS TO WRITE LETTERS

Novel Form of Campaign by the Mayor—Slightly Ill at St. James, He Plans Fight.

Mayor Gaynor, through his campaign managers, Fire Commissioner Joseph Johnson and R. Ross Appleton, announced formally last night that he would enter the Mayoralty race as an independent candidate. Campaign headquarters was opened at the Hotel Breslin, and Mr. Appleton said that the Mayor would make a vigorous campaign.

"He has entered this fight with his old-time vigor and spirit and will make the race at the head of a complete ticket, from Mayor to Alderman," said Mr. Appleton.

he Mayor is at St. James, L. I., ill in bed and he will not return to the city until next Monday at the earliest. The Mayor's indisposition is due to a recurrence of throat trouble as a result of the wound he received when the attempt was made upon his life in the Summer of 1910. It was said that he was not seriously ill. When inquiry was made at his home yesterday afternoon regarding his condition, Mrs. Gaynor said the Mayor was in bed, but that he would return to the city early next week.

In announcing the Mayor's candidacy, Mr. Appleton, who is Chairman of the Mayor Gaynor Fusion and Nominating League, made public this letaer he had received from Mr. Gaynor:

City of New York,
Office of the Mayor.
Aug. 27, 1913.

Mr. R. Ross Appleton, Chairman.

Dear Mr. Appleton: I understanl that different organizations have procured about 30,000 signatures to petitions for my nomination for Mayor, but under different emblems. I cannot too strongly urge that all these organizatons be brought together under one emblem, namely, the emblem of the shovel. Yours truly, W. J. GAYNOR.

In reference to the plans for the Gaynor campaign, Mr. Appleton said yesterday:

"We have opened permanent headquarters at the Hotel Breslin, which will be in charge of Joseph Johnson, Chairman of the Campaign Committee. We intend to proceed as rapidly as possible to bring together all the organizations favoring Mayor Gaynor's re-election, which are now procuring signatures under different emblems, and unite their efforts under the emblem of the shovel.

"We have decided upon this course at the suggestion made to me by Mayor Gaynor in his letter to-day. In order to obtain harmony of action, a conference of the various Gaynor organizations has been called at the Hotel Breslin to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock.

"I wish to make it as emphatic as possible that Mayor Gaynor has entered this fight with his old-time vigor and spirit, and will make the race at the head of a complete ticket, from Mayor to Aldermen. When Mr. Johnson and Mr. Adamson visited the Mayor at St. James to-day he expressed astonishment that any one doubted his determination to run.

"The Mayor said he would be in the city early next week and that he would then make a full statement of his position. He expected to be in the city today, but he has been suffering from a recurrence of throat trouble due to his wound, which will necessitate his remaining at St. James the rest of the week."

To Unite Gaynor Organizations.

Fire Commissioner Johnson said that as soon as the various Gaynor organizations had been brought together under one head the question of selecting other candidates to go on the ticket with the Mayor would be taken up.

"Will the candidates on the Fusion ticket, below that of Mayor, be indorsed by your organization?" Mr. Johnson was asked.

"It is too early to determine that," he replied. "That matter will be worked out in good time. Just at present we are busy establishing headquarters. It is certain, however, that a full ticket, even to that of Assemblymen and Aldermen, will be named."

It was pointed out that in his letter to Mr. Appleton the Mayor did not say whether he would run on an independent ticket.

"The Mayor has decided to enter the race," said Mr. Johnson, emphatically. "There is no question about that."

Earlier in the afternoon, when Robert Adamson, who with Commissioner Johnson and Mr. Appleton went to St. James to confer with the Mayor was called up on the telephone and asked if the Mayor had decided to run, he replied:

"Mayor Gaynor will run for re-election. I say this with the authority of the Mayor himself. He says you may make this statement as strong as you like."

Mr. Adamson said the Mayor's illness was not serious.

"Every year he has a recurrence of his throat trouble," he said, "and he is slightly indisposed at present. He wanted to come into the city to-day but I advised against it. The Mayor will be at his office early next week."

Bennet's Ingenious Plan.

Ex-Representative William S. Bennet, an organization Republican, who is opposed to the indorsement of the Fusion slate by the Republicans, outlined yesterday a plan whereby he thinks it will be possible for the Republicans to substitute the name of Mayor Gaynor for that of John Purroy Mitchel at the head of the election ballot. Mr. Bennet, Herman Ridder, and R. Ross Appleton had a long conference. Mr. Bennet said that within a few days a movement would be started among the enrolled Republicans to have them write the name of the Mayor on the Republican primary ballot as their choice for Mayor in place of Mr. Mitchel, and that if Mr. Gaynor received the majority of votes his name would replace that of Mr. Mitchel at the head of the column on the election ballot.

"I have had a talk with Fire Commissioner Johnson, Herman Ridder, and R. Ross Appleton, and they are in favor of the plan," said Mr. Bennet yesterday. "Our plan is to have watchers and instructors at the various polling places on primary day to show the voters how to write Mr. Gaynor's name on the ballots. I am confident that in this way Mr. Gaynor will obtain the majority of Republican votes, and thus be our candidate for Mayor."

Mr. Ridder said he was in favor of the plan, but that he would take no active part in its execution.

"If the Mayor should win at the Republican primaries there is no doubt but that Mr. Mitchel will be out of the running," said Mr. Ridder. "He would then have to retire, as he would have only the Progressive Party behind him, and that would leave the fight between Gaynor and McCall. The fight at the primaries will clarify the situation and determine whether the Republicans are for the Mayor or Mr. Mitchel."

Mr. Gaynor would remain in the race even if Mr. Mitchel won at the primaries, said Mr. Ridder. Mr. Ridder denied that he would be a candidate on the Gaynor ticket.

When Norman Hapgood was asked what he thought of the Bennet plan he said:

"Mayor Gaynor has as much chance of carrying the Republican primaries as I have."

It was said at St. James yesterday that the Mayor would not make any speeches during the campaign, but would write letters on the issues instead. When Commissioner Johnson was asked last night if this was true he replied:

"Well, what's the use of making speeches to a lot of people who are going to vote for you anyway?"

AUTO HITS POLE, ONE DEAD.

Car Driven by Woman Racing with Motor Cycle Swerves Suddenly.

Special to The New York Times.

GENEVA, N. Y., Aug. 27.—A fatal accident occurred on the Canandaigua road, one mile west of Geneva, late this afternoon, when an automoblie, owned and driven by Mrs. O. E. Schumann of Newark, who was racing with a motor cyclist, suddenly swerved to one side and collided with a telephone pole.

Miss Alma Wolf was instantly killed, while three other occupants of the car, the Misses Madeline Lake, Emma Lake and Nellie Olmstead of Newark, were severely injured.

IMPERATOR IN WITH RECORD CROWD

3,193 Aboard, a Number Never Before Equaled on a Single Ship in This Port.

FUNMAKER ADE ON THE LIST

He Tells Much but Adds, "Quote Glenn for It"—Glenn Trying to Hire the Imperator for a Trip.

With all records for the number of cabin passengers carried across the Atlantic on a single ship smashed, the Hamburg-American liner Imperator, the biggest of ships, arrived at her Hoboken pier at 7:30 o'clock last night. All told those who filled the cabins numbered 1,444, and of this number 767 were in the saloon and 677 in the second cabin. In the third-class accommodations were 618 more passengers, while in the steerage the passengers numbered 1,131, making a grand total of 3,193.

Hours after the Imperator had landed her passengers the customs officials were still at work, and some passengers were still on the pier at midnight waiting a change to prove up their baggage.

On the pier when the gangplanks went into position were at least 2,000 persons, who had come to meet friends or relatives. The temperature on the pier was stifling, but the crowd was good-natured.

Among the arrivals were George Ade, Samuel Untermyer, who returned with Mrs. Untermyer; Mrs. Claus Spreckels, Julius P. Meyer, F. W. Woolworth, Edward N. Hurley, John M. Glenn, William E. Corey, Charles H. Grasty, Mrs. George von Lengerke Meyer, and Jefferson Seligman.

George Ade was the most communicative one of the group. That's probably because Mr. Ade has had considerable dealing with newspapers and other publications. On the way across he hobnobbed with Messrs. Glenn and Hurley, and he it was who let the cat out of the bag concerning an effort of theirs to charter the Imperator for a South American cruise next Winter.

"They are a pair of live ones," said Mr. Ade, "and if they fail to hire this ship it won't be their fault. Two years ago they hired the Fuerst Bismarck for the Illinois Manufacturers' Association and took a run down to Panama. It cost them $3,500 a day, but they made the trip pay for itself and everybody had a great time. I ought to know, for I went along. However, don't quote me for any of this. Quote Glenn, he'll stand for most anything."

The fable and play-writer said he did not have a single new play in the making. All that he was interested in just at present, he explained, was the condition of the corn crop on the Ade plantation in Indiana.

"I am surely glad to get back again, even if it is as hot as blazes," said Mr. Ade, "and after a day or two sightseeing here I am going to hike it as fast as I can for the only real up-to-date bona-fide State in the Union, said State being none other than Indiana.

"I have had a pretty good time, but about the only thing that I ran across that really impressed me was the congregational way they do things in the Berlin beer gardens. They have a great scheme to hold the crowd there. Everybody who goes in gets a big song book—it looks exactly like an old-fashioned Hymn Book, and instead of a cabaret you have a congregational chorus in which everybody who can read German joins in.

"If it were not for the beer everywhere you might well get the idea that you were in a country church. The scheme struck me as a fine one and I think that if it was introduced in upper Broadway a lot of people who don't know that there is such a song as the Star-Spangled Banner might be taught to sing it.

"Everywhere I found the people interested in the Mexican question, but in London the situation south of the Rio Grande took second honors. There the first place in the news was given to the Thaw affair. I really believe those Englishmen are more interested in that fellow than we are ourselves, and, goodness knows, we saw him first.

"As for this ship she is a hummer all right. I had friends on board, and I did not know that they were within a thousand miles of me until I landed to-day.

While Mr. Ade was hustling about the pier trying to find his baggage Mr. Glenn appeared.

"How do you do," said he, "I am certainly glad I am home. Yes, I have some information, but kindly don't quote me, quote Ade.

"That's just what Ade said," it was explained to him.

"He did, did he, well, then suppose you quote Hurley," suggested Mr. Glenn.

"Hurley won't care. He's used to it."

"Yes, we are trying to hire this boat," Mr. Glenn then admitted, "and we have great hopes of getting her, too. If we do, we are going to sail down as far as Buenos Aires, visiting folk down there, and impressing upon them the advantakes of trade with this country. But the idea of our association, this time, is to make the trip a national affair, and we hope to have a great many manufacturers from New York, Philadelphia, Boston, New Orleans, and other big cities accompany us. To charter a boat big enough for what we have in view was the reason Hurley and I went to Europe. We talked the matter over with the Hamburg-American officials and we will be able to report progress when we get back to Chicago. On the way over I made a stab at Meyer, one of the line's American officials, and I think we will get this ship yet.

"Can we fill her? Sure we can. We wouldn't hire her if we couldn't. But say, don't quote me, quote Hurley. He is our best little talker, and will appreciate it."

Then Mr. Glenn cleared his throat and announced that when he got back to Chicago he was going to recommend that the lower end of Lake Michigan be filled in.

"In Holland I found that they had reclaimed thousands of acres out of the North Sea," he said, "and had run a great many canals through the reclaimed portion, the result being the artificial creation of some of the finest manufacturing sites in all the world. Now why can't we do the same thing in Chicago. The lake has fallen about a foot since the drainage canal was made, and by filling in several hundred square miles of it near Chicago the water would be forced back and the original level of the Lake in the Straits restored. I don't know how they will take the proposition in Chicago, but I am going to recommend it just the same."

F. W. Woolworth saw for the first time on his arrival the completed dome of the Woolworth building.

Dr. Oliver C. Smith of Hartford, Conn., one of the best-known physicians in Connecticut, was ill on board the Imperator. His illness had been reported by wireless to his brother, Winchell Smith of Farmington, Conn., who was at the pier to meet him. It was said that Dr. Smith would be taken to the Mayo Brothers' Hospital in Rochester, Minn. Soon after the Imperator docked it was rumored on the pier that one of the passengers had lost in the voyage a diamond necklace valued at $100,000. The report could not be verified.

ELLIS ISLAND INQUIRY.

Caminetti Names Commission to Examine Food Conditions.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Commissioner General Caminetti appointed a special commission to-day to begin an investigation to-morrow of restaurant conditions at the Immigration Station at Ellis Island. The commission is composed of James L. Hughes, Acting Commissioner of Immigration at Gloucester City, N. J.; P. L. Prentis, Immigration Inspector in charge, Chicago, Ill., and Richard H. Taylor, Inspector at Large, Washington.

The commission has been instructed to investigate the quality, quantity, and condition of food and supplies served or sold to the immigrants at Ellis Island, sanitary conditions, and the influence, if any, that the food contractors are said to have over Government employes at the station. It has power to summon witnesses, who will testify at public hearings.

CAMINETTI TRIAL GETS QUICK START

Four Witnesses Testify Soon After Second White Slave Case Begins.

WEALTHY MEN ON JURY

Judge Announces That It Will Not Be Necessary to Show That Defendant Bought Tickets for Trip.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27.—The trial of F. Drew Caminetti, charged with violation of the Mann White Slave act, proceeded to-day before the jury that was selected before the morning session ended. The interest and tension that characterized the trial of Maury I. Diggs, companion of Caminetti, who was convicted a week ago, were lacking, and counsel on both sides seemed anxious to hurry the case to a conclusion.

The jury is conspicuous for the number of wealthy men it includes, and, as in the Diggs trial, a majority of the jurors are married. Their names follow:

WILLIAM ADAMS, (No. 1,) dealer in light fixtures; married and has children.

CHARLES D. CLAUSEN, architect, bachelor, the only juror younger than the defendant, who is 27.

AZA L. WHITE, wealthy lumber dealer, 70 years old, married, has grown children.

FREDERICK S. MOODY, President of the Moody estate; married; has children; is wealthy.

FRANCIS J. CAROLAN, millionaire polo player, clubman, and society leader.

E. C. BRADLEY, former general manager of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company; married, one son.

CHARLES E. HUNT, retired shoe merchant; married, no children.

BENJAMIN H. DIBBLEE, former captain of the Harvard football team, now Pacific Coast manager for a firm of brokers; married, no children.

C. F. MICHAELS, member of a wholesale drug company; married, has children.

WILLIAH ADAMS, (No. 2,) insurance; bachelor.

THOMAS H. HASKINS, merchant; married, has children.

WILLIAM A. HEISTER, real estate; married, no children.

Lola Norris, the Sacramento girl Caminetti is accused of enticing with Marsha Warrington to Reno, is expected to take the stand to-morrow. Assistant United States District Attorney Theodore Roche said to-day that her testimony would be identical with that given in the case of Diggs. Miss Warrington will follow her on the stand.

Just before adjournment to-day a comment was made by Judge Van Fleet bearing directly upon Caminetti's responsibility in the Reno trip. Counsel for the defense stated that members of the train crew and the ticket agent had failed to connect Caminetti with the purchase of tickets or the engaging of the drawing room on the train.

"It is not necessary," said the court, in overruling the objection, "to show that the defendant handled the money or made the purchases. Certainly if the Government proves that he was in the party, under the circumstances they have set forth, it is sufficient showing to develop the connection of the defendant with the transaction."

Four witnesses testified to-day. They were R. J. Simon, the ticket agent at Sacramento; M. L. Jones, the conductor of the train upon which Caminetti and his companions rode to Reno on the morning of March 10; C. H. Walbourne, the Pullman conductor who sold Diggs the drawing room ticket for the party of four, and S. A. Dedrick, the colored porter.

Destroyer Breaks Records in Tests.

ROCKLAND, Me., Aug. 27.—Despite unfavorable weather conditions, the torpedo boat destroyer Cummings broke another record for the thousand-ton class to-day. In her builders' four-hour endurance test run she averaged 30.52 knots an hour. The best record for this, like that for speed, was formerly held by the Cassin at 30.13 knots an hour. To-day's trial was made in a heavy sea.

swered by telegram and by long-distance telephone I will not run against Mr. Whitman. This is my position and constant answer.

Mr. Whitman's friends said that he had decided to take the Tammany nomination for one reason, because he had heard it was Tammany's intention to nominate Mr. Moss in case he refused to run, and that Mr. Moss had said that he would also accept a nomination on the Gaynor ticket.

Norman Hapgood, Chairman of the Fusion Committee of 107, led the Fusionists who were opposed to the acceptance by Mr. Whitman of the Tammany nomination. Mr. Hapgood said that none of the Fusion candidates had been put under any promise not to take a nomination on another ticket, and that the matter must be decided by Mr. Whitman himself.

"As far as the Committee of 107 is concerned," said Mr. Hapgood, "Mr. Whitman is absolutely free to take what indorsements he pleases, as that was the understanding when he accepted the place of District Attorney on our ticket. The question of freedom, however, is, of course, quite separate from the question of advisability. The important thing for him to decide now is whether it will help the city for him to go on the Tammany ticket, and thus take some of the edge off the police issue, and also whether it will help his future career to take the safe course rather than the daring one."

The Progressive leaders took the stand that the District Attorney should refuse the nomination. Francis W. Bird, County Chairman of the Progressive Party, said:

"I think that Mr. Whitman ought not to accept the nomination from Charles F. Murphy. It is absurd for Mr. Whitman to talk about his gratification over the unanimous indorsement of his administration by the citizens of New York, because the Tammany Hall indorsement was not an indorsement by the citizens, but an indorsement by Mr. Murphy alone. Mr. Murphy's nomination of Mr. Whitman was for the express purpose of getting the District Attorney's support for the Tammany ticket, and should Mr. Whitman accept he would be lending his aid to the election of the Murphy candidates It really does not matter except from Mr. Whitman's own standpoint. If he accepts he can never run for office again north of the Harlem River. It will cripple his effectiveness as a campaigner, but even that does not amount to much, for he is not a very effective campaigner, and the police issue is about dead."

According to the Fusion leaders, the greatest danger which now confronts them is Mayor Gaynor running on an independent ticket. The leaders expressed fear yesterday that if the Mayor put the Fusion candidates on his ticket it would cut heavily into the Fusion vote. Borough President McAneny has not yet said just what he will do in case he is nominated by the Gaynorites. He had a conference last night with Norman Hapgood and said:

"I am not declining any mythical nomination. When anybody makes me a definite proposal I will take just one day to think it over and make my answer to it."

Col. Roosevelt Urges Prendergast.

This is the cable dispatch Col. Roosevelt sent to Controller Prendergast:

To William A. Prendergast, Hotel Hauffe, Leipzig, Germany.

Mitchel, in a most manly and high-minded way, has declined to run on Hearst's ticket because you and McAneny were left off.

Earnestly wish that you cable Hapgood immediately that you will not run on any ticket on which Mitchel or the other Fusion candidates for city offices are left off.

The Fusion platform is an admirable one and our candidates should stand together and show that this is a straight fight against Tammany and for principle and not a scramble for office.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Mr. Prendergast will sail from Southampton on the Olympic on Sept. 3 and will arrive in New York on Sept. 10. Learning of the message Col. Roosevelt sent him, several of the Controller's friends also cabled him not to commit himself at this time, but to wait until he returned and was familiar with the situation. They said they saw no reason why he should decline a nomination on an anti-Tammany ticket.

Friends of both Mr. McAneny and Mr. Prendergast are urging them not to decline a Gaynor nomination simply because Mr. Mitchel refused to run on the Independence League ticket. Mr. Mitchel's friends believe that both Mr. McAneny and Mr. Prendergast owe it to him to refuse a Gaynor nomination because he declined to follow Hearst.

Mr. Mitchel went to Washington at midnight to confer with President Wilson regarding the report which he soon is to make of his work as Collector of the Port. Mr. Mitchel refused to comment upon Mr. Whitman's acceptance of the Tammany nomination, but he said he might have something to say when he learned Mr. Whitman's reasons for accepting it. Mr. Mitchel said he would decide on Friday, when he returned, when he would file with the Board of Elections his declination of the Independence League nomination.

Widow Files Accounting in Surrogate's Office in Orange.

The estate of Meylert M. Armstrong, who died on Oct. 13, 1910, in his home at 586 Scotland Road, in Orange, N. J., was worth more than $3,000,000, according to the accounting filed yesterday in the office of the Surrogate by Mrs. Aldis B. Squire, the administratrix. Mrs. Squire was Mr. Armstrong's widow, and she was married again on Feb. 6.

The administratrix charged herself with $1,644,455. The rest of the estate, $1,584,892, will be divided among the six sons of Mr. Armstrong after one-third has been paid to Mrs. Squire.

dated that it did not try to repeat the wild scene of cheering and applause that marked the morning session.

Judge Globensky announced that he had granted the plea for the discontinuance of the habeas corpus writ, and that Thaw was remanded to jail.

Again the multitude rushed up to Thaw to shake hands, and he had the same experience in getting into his victoria that he had this morning. Even as he drove down the street the people came out to cheer him. When he passed the Magog House the visitors there came running out to wave their hats and give him godspeed. Men ran after his carriage yelling, and Thaw took off his hat and smilingly bowed his acknowledgments.

In the courtroom a NEW YORK TIMES reporter elbowed his way through the crowd and asked Thaw if he had anything to say. Thaw, smiling, replied just as some President or Ambassador might do, "I have no objections to you, but I don't like your paper."

Then he turned around and went on shaking hands with the crowd.

Jerome More Determined.

From the moment Justice Globensky refused to recognize the New York officials at the remarkable court proceedings in the morning, and would not even permit their counsel to present arguments, Mr. Jerome knew that he was beaten in the early skirmishing, and at once began to lay new plans. He smiled grimly when the newspaper men went to see him, and then hurried away to summon the other officials and counselors about the conference board. In all the excitement and chaos which followed the decision of the court favorable to Thaw Mr. Jerome was the dominating personality in the "anti-Thaw camp." He seemed to have a more complete grasp of the situation than the Canadian lawyers.

While by his victory in court to-day Thaw apparently gained nothing but delay, in that regard at least his victory was complete.

Judge Globensky merely remanded Thaw to jail pending the disposal of the charge against him "by due process of law," and the immigration authorities admitted that unless the commitment on which Thaw was being held was quashed they could not lay hands upon him, unless he attempted to obtain bail. E. Blake Robertson, Assistant Superintendent of Immigration, said after the court decision was announced:

"We will naturally wait until the courts have disposed of the case. Then we will deal with Thaw fearlessly and without favor. The immigration officials will not try to get him out of jail."

Bail No Aid to Thaw.

"If he were released on bail what course would you adopt?" Mr. Robertson was asked.

"There is no likelihood of his being deported while under bail," he replied. "Speaking as a private citizen and not an immigration official of Canada, I think that bail is extremely unlikely."

But by that Mr. Robertson did not mean that Thaw would be allowed to wander about at will if admitted to bail. Should bail be granted Thaw could be arrested on the charge that he was an undesirable under the immigration laws and held on that charge until the present commitment was disposed of by the courts. Then he could be deported, and not until then.

Just before he left for Ottawa Deputy Attorney General Kennedy gave out a statement indicating that he was confident his mission would be a success. He said:

"The efforts of Thaw to remain in prison in the Sherbrooke jail cannot delay for more than a few days his deportation into the United States. It is only a question of the proper proceedings which must be followed. Steps are now in progress which will result in Thaw being in the hands of the Canadian Immigration authorities in a couple of days.

"The matter must be proceeded with carefully, for irregularities would only result in numerous appeals to the courts which would require a long time for their decision. If Thaw should be released on bail he would be taken into custody the moment he was set free. He won't be allowed to run around free with the possibility of escaping from the jurisdiction of the Canadian authorities."

Only Gains Delay.

It also was indicated that assurances had been received from Ottawa that once Thaw was freed of the commitment now protecting him, he would be deported. The New York officials are satisfied that the Board of Inquiry will declare Thaw an undesirable and that the decision will be sustained in the event of an appeal to the Department of the Interior.

On this phase of the situation Mr. Jerome remained silent, although it was evident that he believed the present methods which were being employed by Thaw could serve no other purpose than that of delay. He feels quite sure that Thaw eventually will be returned to the States. But in regard to the court proceedings when the arguments on the withdrawal of the writ of habeas corpus was heard, Mr. Jerome had this comment to make:

"We who represent the interest of the State of New York in this matter are entirely unwilling to make any comment on the scene which occurred in one of his Majesty's courts this morning. The relations between the bar of the United States and the Dominion have been most intimate and most friendly. We realize keenly the sense of humiliation expressed by our professional brethren in Canada over such a scene. Mr. Jacobs, a leading member of the bar of Canada, was with us in representing the State of New York, and we would prefer not to say anything in regard to the occurrences of the morning."

Mr. Jacobs also was in a bad frame of mind over what had occurred at the morning session.

"The lawyers conceded that we had a right to appear in the proceedings by serving notice on us yesterday afternoon," he said. "But we were refused a hearing. Never in my experience as a lawyer have I witnessed such a scene. I believe that several of those who participated in the scene should have been arrested and the court cleared."

Of the Thaw counsel, C. D. White admitted that it was an unusual occurrence.

"I subscribe to all that his Lordship Judge Globensky said," he asserted, referring to the statement made by Judge Globensky at the opening of the session in the afternoon.

Rules Out Objections.

What Judge Globensky did was to refuse to hear arguments which the anti-Thaw forces had prepared against the granting of the withdrawal of the writ. He also ruled against their exceptions being entered on the minutes of the court. It was at this point that the crowd broke into its demonstration for Thaw.

Mr. Jerome was accompanied to court by Deputy Attorney General Kennedy, District Attorney E. A. Conger of Dutchess County and their Canadian counsel, S. W. Jacobs of Montreal. When the motion to permit the withdrawal of the writ was made by Mr. Shurtleff, Mr. Jacobs asked to be heard.

Judge Globensky asked whom Mr. Jacobs represented, and the lawyer replied that he appeared for the jailer.

"I never heard of such a proceeding," interjected J. N. Greenshields of the Thaw forces. "The jailor had nothing to do with it."

"The jailor is liable for damages in holding the prisoner," retorted Mr. Jacobs.

"Do you represent the New York State authorities?" inquired Mr. Greenshields.

By this time all of the attorneys in the case were bending forward in their chairs listening intently and fully realizing the importance of the exchange of words.

Then Judge Globensky added the last touch to the dramatic scene.

"I will not hear the New York State authorities," he said. "There is no complainant and you have no status."

"I want it recorded in the proceedings that I have been refused the privilege to address the court," said Mr. Jacobs with apparent feeling.

"It is not necessary," replied the court.

"I want it recorded that we desist from the judgment," persisted Mr. Jacobs.

"Make no entry," retorted Judge Globensky with some show of feeling.

Mr. Jerome didn't try to hide the surprise he felt. The crowd seized Judge Globensky's ruling as the signal for a Thaw demonstration, which in view of the passage of words, the New York officials felt was directed as much against them as for Thaw.

Mr. Jerome knew the ruling would be against him despite the fact that Judge Globensky adjourned court until 3 o'clock in the afternoon. He knew that the court would not recognize that New York had any standing in the case. So he marshaled his forces for another move. The decision quashing the writ was read by Judge Globensky in French soon after the opening of the afternoon session. Thaw's counsel had employed civil procedure, and at the morning session there had been a clash of opinions. The court held that civil procedure did not apply, but added:

"Therefore, I had to look at the question on broad principles of law. A party to a suit is master to that suit."

Thaw, he said, could dispose of all his rights in connection with the suit as effectively as he could of personal belongings.

If in custody even on a faulty proceeding, the Judge held, it was Thaw's right to apply for a writ, and no court could deny it. On the other hand, no court could force it upon him, and, therefore, he had come to the conclusion that the prisoner had a right to discontinue the writ.

Messrs. Jerome, Kennedy, Jacobs and the other lawyers representing New York immediately went into conference and announced that an attempt would be made to have a Justice of the Peace declare faulty the commitment on which Thaw was being held. But they found that could not be done according to Canadian law unless Justice A. L. Dupuis of Coaticook, who signed the commitment, would co-operate.

They tried to reach Dupuis, but learned that he had gone to Ayres Cliff and would not return before to-morrow night. The search for the Justice of the Peace was useless, however, as an effort was made yesterday to induce him to help get Thaw out of Canada.

Representatives of the United States Government and the Immigration Department, it was learned, had sought Dupuis in Coaticook and asked him to come to Sherbrooke and preside at a hearing for Thaw. The idea was to have the charge against Thaw dropped then as faulty. He refused. Then he was asked to delegate his powers in connection with the case to another magistrate, but he told the anti-Thaw lawyers that he was absolutely neutral and would take no action at all.

Mr. Shurtleff of the Thaw forces said that Dupuis had been to see him and told him of an attempt by the American officials to induce him to act. This incident only served to intensify the feeling which had cropped up. Mr. Shurtleff added that he did not think the Justice of the Peace could quash the case against Thaw if he wanted to do so. Thaw, he said, had not been remanded for a hearing, but had appeared before Dupuis and had been committed by him for trial. Thaw had a right, said Mr. Shurtleff, to demand that his case go the usual course to the Court of King's Bench in October.

The Thaw lawyers sat back wisely and comfortably and made but few comments on what had happened or concerning their plans. Col. H. R. Frazer, K. C., was asked for an opinion.

"We believe we've got them stumped," he said. "The next move is certainly theirs."

When they were asked what they had gained by the delays already won, and what they hoped to gain by further delaying the case until the October term of the Court of King's Bench. Thaw's lawyers remained silent.

"He is pretty well off in jail," said one.

"He is safe there for the time. You will have to await developments."

It is a well established fact, however, that the Thaw attorneys hope by delay to make the attempt to deport Thaw an international question of such prominence that no summary action will be taken by the immigration authorities. They even hope, it is said, to have the question of his sanity reviewed in the courts here. Day by day they feel that public sentiment in favor of Thaw is increasing.

And so the cry of British fair play is being raised again to-day and the demonstration for Thaw is being pointed to as proof that the people of Sherbrooke at least do not want to see him deported until he has had every opportunity to prove that he is not an undesirable citizen and that he is sane. How the counsel for Thaw hopes to get evidence of this kind before the courts is a problem for which no solution has been offered.

If he is able to fight off deportation until October and goes before the Court of King's Bench on the faulty commitment which now protects him, it seems assured that the case will be dismissed without evidence being heard. Certainly he could not be tried on the trumped-up charge, and thus make it possible to submit evidence.

But, with public sentiment aroused and the case assuming international proportions, Thaw's lawyers feel that an avenue of escape may be found through a test of the immigration laws or by some other means yet unrevealed. They are satisfied now that, unless they can win delay, he will be deported. Therefore delay is their best card. They admit that frankly enough.

Mr. Shurtleff said that no attempt would be made to get Thaw out on bail, and that, for a time at least, the defense would sit tight.

"And if they want to get him out of jail," he said, referring to Mr. Jerome and his associates, "they will have to go to some higher authority than a magistrate. You will find that when Thaw does get out of the Sherbrooke jail it will be by some higher authority than we have here in this town."

Jerome's Hurried Trip.

Just before he left for Quebec Mr. Jerome said that his mission was to find out whether the Premier of the province could and would cause the faulty commitment against Thaw to be quashed. He is expected back in Sherbrooke to-morrow night. If his mission proves unsuccessful, as Thaw's lawyers seem to think it will, then there promises to be a long legal struggle which apparently cannot be terminated before the October term of the Court of King's Bench.

The commitment under which Thaw is held in the Sherbrooke jail is one of the most-talked of documents in the Dominion. It has so far baffled the lawyers of both countries, and it is Thaw's best friend. In a case where one is guilty of an offense which is subject to be tried summarily, the commitment is the document used as an order to the jailor to keep the accused in prison until his term, stiplated in all cases, expires or until he pays his fine. The commitment again is used in cases where a person is guilty of a crime upon which he cannot be tried before a magistrate. In such cases the commitment is the document by which the jailor is empowered to detain the prisoner until the regular term of the Court of King's Bench when he must be tried.

The commitment in the Thaw case fulfills neither function mentioned above. Thaw has not been sentenced and has not been bound over to stand trial. He simply has been confined in jail. No limit has been set. No date for his trial is stated. He simply is ordered to be confined in jail, and there he is.

The case has passed from the hands of the complainant, and, therefore, it is held by Thaw's lawyers, cannot be withdrawn, and still the charge against Thaw is faulty and he committed no crime in the eyes of Canadian law. Thaw is confined illegally and can obtain his liberty at any time, but the prosecution seems helpless to get him out. As far as any one has yet been able to determine Thaw is committed to jail until such time as he sees fit to obtain a writ of habeas corpus and free himself. However, action in his case undoubtedly will be taken when the Court of King's Bench convenes in October if he is in jail then.

Had Thaw been arrested under the immigration laws, there would have been no long legal battle. It is that faulty commitment on which Thaw was sent to the Sherbrooke Jail which has enabled him to make the fight.

With Thaw's counsel asserting that no attempt to get him out on bail has been considered, the defense probably will rest its case, at least until the return of Mr. Jerome from Quebec. The ex-District Attorney is playing his best card, and if he loses there seems nothing in prospect by a long-drawn-out fight.

The occurrences in the Superior Court to-day were a surprise to Thaw's counsel, who were confident last night that it would not be necessary to produce Thaw in court or argue the application for the discontinuance of the writ of habeas corpus. Ordinarily such hearings are held in the Judge's private chambers, but so great a crowd gathered at the Court House that it was decided to use the large courtroom.

There is no denying the fact that Thaw was vastly pleased by the outburst of popular sentiment in his favor. He wore an expression of extreme delight as he was driven back to the jail this afternoon, and promptry wrote this statement for publication:

"May I acknowledge the fair play accorded by every one since my arrival in Canada and express my gratitude for the sympathy shown by Canadian people in my present struggle to regain my liberty, and to thank especially all the Canadians that I have come in contact with personally? It is much better than I deserve and entirely at variance with the malice shown in New York.

"It is only fair to make clear that the people of New York are all right; no unfairness can be found in the people of New York. A proof of this was found in the vicious opposition to giving me an honest jury trial, shown by the undemocratic Attorney General. He and his pals know that a New York jury would stand for fair play, too."

A score of Secret Service men and a dozen representatives of the Canadian Immigration Bureau are remaining in Sherbrooke. They admit that they are only awaiting the return of Mr. Jerome.

It was asserted late to-night that Mr. Jerome and the New York State authorities were determined to make the case a Federal one, and were certain it would be out of the hands of the provincial authorities by the end of the week.

SURPRISE AT OTTAWA.

Outburst in Thaw Case Most Unusual, Say Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Aug. 27.—Officials of the Department of Justice are reluctant to comment upon the extraordinary character of to-day's proceedings in the Thaw case at Sherbrooke. They hold that it would be as unusual to officially criticise the Sherbrooke demonstration as it was for the demonstration to have occurred.

The scene in court when Judge Globensky denied a hearing to counsel for the State of New York is conceded by lawyers here to have been absolutely at variance with the decorum of procedure characteristic of the courts of Canada. The course followed almost invariably in the case of such an outburst, whether spontaneous or otherwise, is to clear the court and conclude the hearing in the presence of the court officials and counsel and the parties immediately concerned.

Judge Globensky, in whose court to-day's unusual scene was enacted, has been regarded as one of the ablest of the French Canadian judiciary. He practiced law successfully for some years in Montreal and represented the Quebec Government as legal agent at Ottawa.

No additional instructions have been sent to Sherbrooke to-day by the immigration authorities. There is no idea here that Thaw's stay in jail at Sherbrooke can be indefinitely prolonged. Extradition proceedings can be pressed or dropped, but the short cut would seem to be to drop them and leave Thaw to the immigration officials, who are waiting to deport him. No protracted legal battle is contemplated by the Judicial Department, but the officers who have been commissioned to deport Thaw will stay in Sherbrooke until Thaw passes into their hands, as it seems he must do.

C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice and Acting Minister of the Interior, will be near the scene of the Thaw case in a day or two, when he goes to assist in the welcome to Lord Haldane.

Harry Thaw's Mother Ill.

CRESSON, Penn., Aug. 27.—Mrs. George Lauder Carnegie, sister of Harry K. Thaw, arrived at the Thaw Summer home here to-night. Mrs. Thaw, mother of Harry, is said to be ill.

There Are No Joints in the Indestructo Trunk

Secret Process of Manufacture Cannot Be Imitated.

The process by which Indestructo trunks are made is unknown to any save the company which builds them.

In the Indestructo factory there are rooms in which none but the employes may enter.

These are the workshops in which the jointless, smashless, Indestructo trunk is made. The Indestructo trunk has completely revolutionized the travel field.

Trunks are no longer bought upon the dollar and cents method of a few years back.

One very prominent merchant said: "It is certainly true that the trunk history could never have been written without the name 'Indestructo.' I know, and the general public knows, that there is no better trunk made than the Indestructo, but had they failed in their attempts to build a successful traveling package, they would still be worthy of much credit, because better trunks are made and sold by all manufacturers to-day, because of the spur given them by the Indestructo people."

You may be sure you are buying right when you choose the Indestructo.

You are buying the best and most convenient trunk made.

RUBBER-SOLED SHOE ENDS HAWKER'S TRIP

His Foot Slips Off Rudder-Bar, and Hydro-Aeroplane Drops Into Sea.

HE HAD GONE 1,043 MILES

$25,000 Prize Seemed to be Assured—Daily Mail Will Give Givo Him $5,000 as a Testimonial.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Just when victory appeared to be assured, Harry G. Hawker's brilliant attempt to win The Daily Mail's $25,000 prize for a hydroaeroplane journey around the British coasts, ended in disaster this afternoon, when he fell into the sea fifteen miles north of Dublin. Hawker had then covered 1,043 miles of the 1,540.

To-day's flight started ominously. The trouble began at Oban, where one of the floats of the machine was swamped, the repairs wasting precious minutes. Engine trouble again brought Hawker down off Argyllshire. Then he flew successfully across the sea to Larne, where he was delayed an hour and a half in adjusting his engine. He again ascended at 11 A. M. and sped toward Dublin. He flew steadily for 2¼ hours, when an unusual mishap brought disaster.

Hawker was preparing to alight at Lough Shinny. His boots were rubber-soled, and at a critical moment his foot slipped off the rudder bar. The hydro-aeroplane got out of control and plunged into the water from a height of fifty feet, a few feet from the shore.

Coast guards speedily rescued Hawker and his mechanic, Kauper. The former escaped with nothing worse than bruises, but Kauper's arm was broken and he has bad cuts on the head and neck. His condition, however, is not serious. The hydro-aeroplane was hopelessly wrecked.

Hawker was much fatigued at the time of the accident, but he asserts that it was not this that caused his foot to slip. Neither, he says, was the accident the fault of the machine or the engine—it was "just a piece of ghastly bad luck."

The Daily Mail will present £1,000 to Hawker in recognition of his skill and courage.

OBAN, Aug. 27.—Harry G. Hawker left here this morning to try to fly the remaining portion of his journey, 704 miles, within the next twenty-four hours. In the first six stages of his flight he covered 836 miles in 853 minutes flying time.

Hawker ascended in his hydro-aeroplane at 6:40 A. M. Engine trouble caused him to descend on reaching the Irish Coast at Larne, a distance of about 110 miles.

DUBLIN, Aug. 27.—Hawker's flight was ended near Portraine, fifteen miles from the control station here.

Coast guards went to the assistance of Hawker and his mechanic, who had fallen into the water. They were taken to the coast guard station.

Doctors later found that the mechanic had suffered a fractured arm and was hurt on the head, but that Hawker had virtually escaped injury.

It was Hawker's intention to fly today from Oban by way of Dublin to Falmouth, a distance of 502 miles, thus leaving 202 miles for a final dash in the morning from Falmouth to Southampton.

FOUND MAWSON STARVING.

Relief Ship Reached Antarctic Exploring Party Just in Time.

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand, Aug. 27.—Relief arrived in the nick of time to save the lives of Dr. Douglas Mawson, the Australian antarctic explorer, and his five companions, who were left on Macquarie Island, in the Antarctic Ocean, last March, when the remaining twenty-four members of Dr. Mawson's expedition returned to Tasmania on board the Aurora from their south polar trip.

The six men were believed to have ample provisions to last them until the antarctic Spring, but the commander of the Government steamer recently sent to their relief reports that the explorers had exhausted all their supplies and that the men had been living for some time on the hearts and tongues of sea elephants. All were in a very weak condition when the relief ship reached them.

Two members of Dr. Mawson's expedition lost their lives by accidents on the ice—Lieut. Ninnis, an English army officer, and Dr. Xavier Mertz, a Swiss scientist.

The original expedition left Hobart, Tasmania, on Dec. 2, 1911, its principal object being the exploration and survey of the antarctic coast line.

When the Aurora went to fetch the explorers back early this year the vessel was forced to depart before taking on Dr. Mawson and five of his companions, forming one of the parties, as she was in danger of being crushed by the ice. As they were said to be well equipped, no fear was felt for their safety.

EXONERATES STABLE FLY.

California Scientist Denies That It Transmits Infantile Paralysis.

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 27.—The stable or "biting" fly, which has been suspected by scientists of being a factor in infantile paralysis, was finally exonerated in a report to the State Board of Health to-day by Dr. W. A. Sawyer, Director of the State Hygienic Laboratory.

Dr. Sawyer's report is the result of a series of seven experiments, in which he and Prof. Herms of the University of California were unable to transmit infantile paralysis to sick or well monkeys through the agency of the suspected insect.

The experiments were ordered after the announcement last September by Dr. Rosenau of Harvard that under laboratory conditions it was possible for the fly to transmit the disease.

A Play on Social Evil Theme.

H. H. Frazee has obtained and now is rehearsing a new play by Butler Davenport called "Birds of Prey." It is described as a modern melodrama on the social evil theme, which has no characters of the underworld. It will be seen here early next month with a cast headed by Consuelo Bailey and Fred Truesdell.

NEW ENGLISH TOBACCO WAR.

John W. Surbrug Said to Plan a Chain of Retail Stores in London.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 28.—According to The Daily Chronicle, a repetition of the tobacco war of 1912 is expected shortly owing to the presence in London of John W. Surbrug of the Tobacco Products Corporation of America, which purposes to make a bid for the control of the English market in competition with the Imperial Tobacco Company. The fight will involve millions of pounds on both sides.

The prevailing opinion here is that no trust in the world is financially strong enough to monopolize the English tobacco trade.

Mr. Surbrug, it is said, seeks to establish a chain of retail stores in London. An uncontradicted rumor is current that he is negotiating with the Albert Baker firm, whose stores occupy the finest positions in London.

APPLAUDS MARIE DORO.

London Audience Sees "The Conspiracy," Which Has Been Renamed

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Marie Doro had a warm welcome back to London tonight, when she appeared at the Comedy Theatre in Emerson Baker's play, "The Conspiracy," which successfully ran in New York under Charles Frohman's management, and is produced here under the title "The Scarlet Band."

English managers seem at present to have got the idea into their heads that the London public wants melodrama, even of the crudest kind. The fate of "The Scarlet Band" may help to decide whether that theory is right or wrong.

A friendly first-night audience, in which were many Americans, gave the production a hearty send-off.

NOT AFRAID OF NEW GEM.

English Dealers Don't Think Heliodore Will Oust Other Stones.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Although Berlin dispatches state that the Emperor William has been much attracted by a new gem called heliodore, discovered in German East Africa, English dealers do not believe that it is likely to rival the better-known varieties of precious stones.

The Kaiser has had seven heliodore stones set with diamonds and pearls and made into a cross for the Empress. The chief characteristic of heliodore is that it changes color, being a golden yellow in daylight and green by artificial light.

DUTCH HONOR FOR CARNEGIE

Queen Wilhelmina Decorates Him—Leyden Degree for Root.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 27.—The Grand Cross of the Order of Orange-Nassau was conferred on Andrew Carnegie to-day by Queen Wilhelmina in commemoration of the inauguration of the Palace of Peace, which will take place tomorrow.

A similar decoration was bestowed on Abraham Pieter Cornelius van Karnebeek, President of the Carnegie Foundation, and minor distinctions on others connected with the Palace of Peace.

Mr. Carnegie arrived here this morning and is staying at the residence of the United States Minister as his guest.

LEYDEN, Aug. 27.—Degrees were conferred to-day by the University of Leyden on United States Senator Root of New York and other prominent public men.

Among those present were the American, French, and Austrian Ministers, and Dutch Secretaries of State, and many other distinguished persons.

TO SEND LECTURERS HERE.

New Bureau of French Ministry of Public Instruction Formed.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—The French Government took a further step to-day in the development and organization of the exchange of culture between France and the United States. It created in the Ministry of Public Instruction a special bureau, of which Jules Coulet was appointed Director.

Among the first announcements made by the bureau is that next October it will send Prof. Jean Baptiste Perrin, professor of physical chemistry of the Faculty of Sciences, to lecture on chemistry at Columbia University; Prof. Abel Jules Maurice Lefranc, professor at the College of France, to lecture on literature at Chicago University, and Prof. Pierre Boutroux, professor of mathematics at the University of Poitiers, to lecture on mathematics at Princeton University.

GERMANS SILENCED CHINESE REBEL FORT

Commander Reports Fight Near Wu-Hu Between Cruiser Emden and Southerners.

MORE DEPUTIES ARRESTED

Others Flee from Peking, Fearing for Their Lives—Yuan Declares He Did Not Order the Arrests.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—The commanding officer of the German East Asiatic cruiser squadron reports to the Government that the Chinese rebels in the fort near Wu-Hu recently fired on the cruiser Emden with both rifles and cannon. The Emden immediately answered with twenty-five shots, silencing the fort.

Advices received a week ago by the Foreign Office indicated that trouble was impending between the German warships and the southern revolutionaries. The rebel leader, in a letter to the German Consul at Nanking, declared that the Emden had bombarded the rebel positions on Lion Hill, and he announced his intention of retaliating on the German cruiser and the Consulate.

PEKING, Aug. 27.—A crisis was reached here to-day owing to the arrest of nine more Members of Parliament. Since the proclamation of martial law in the capital arrests and summary executions have been of frequent occurrence, several of the victims being Deputies.

Many of the Deputies have departed for the South in fear of their lives, and the assembly of a parliamentary quorum has been prevented on numerous occasions owing to rumors that the police intended to make further arrests.

The Seanet to-day passed a motion delegating the Speaker and Deputy Speaker to visit Provisional President Yuan Shih-kai and ask him for an explanation of the arrests, and also to inquire whether or not he still desired to govern China with the help of the Parliament. At the same time the Senate resolved not to sit again if the reply of Yuan proved unsatisfactory.

The lower house passed resolutions of a similar kind.

Yuan Shih-kai, replying to the parliamentary delegation which visited him at the palace this afternoon, said he knew nothing about the arrests of Deputies and would investigate the matter immediately.

FIRM IN REFUSING EXHIBIT.

German Government Says We Have Not Aided Foreign Expositions.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—Germany has no intention of changing her recent decision not to exhibit officially at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco in 1915.

Joseph C. Grew, Chargé d'Affaires of the United States Embassy, conferred on the subject for a considerable time last evening with Gottlieb von Jagow, the German Foreign Minister. Mr. Grew asked the Minister whether, in view of the announced intention of various branches of German industry to exhibit at San Francisco, the German Government would not revise its decision in regard to official non-participation.

Herr von Jagow replied in the negative, giving as the Government's grounds for its action the high cost of an official exhibit, the general disinclination to participate, and America's backwardness in aiding foreign expositions.

Mr. Grew conferred this afternoon with Consul General Thackara and Frederick J. V. Skiff, Director of Exhibits at the Exposition, in regard to the organization of non-official participation in co-operation with Albert Ballin, Manging Director of the Hamburg-American Steamship Line.

WON'T MARRY RICH WOMAN.

Artist Breaks Off His Engagement to the Widow of Gustav Mahler.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 27.—The possession by the fiancée of a large fortune received from her former husband is the reason given for the breaking off of the engagement of Oskar Kokoschka, the painter, and Frau Alma Mahler, who is one of the most beautiful women in the artistic world of Vienna. She is the widow of Gustav Mahler, who died here soon after his return from New York.

Frau Mahler is much younger than was her late husband, but was greatly attached to him, and considerable astonishment was caused by the recent announcement that she was about to marry Herr Kokoschka.

Frau Mahler has now left Vienna, and the explanation given by Kokoschka's friends of the sudden breaking off of the match is that Kokoschka learned at the last moment that she had an income of $10,000 a year from her late husband's estate, and he will not allow his wife to live on money received from a former husband.

FORBES IS NOT ANGRY.

He Says He Has No Complaint to Make Against President Wilson.

MANILA, Aug. 27.—The manner in which W. Cameron Forbes was notified of the appointment of his successor to the Governor Generalship of the Philippines aroused much comment here. Only on Aug. 24 was he notified that Francis Burton Harrison had been named, and the following day he sent his resignation to Washington. It is effective on Sept. 1.

Many of the friends of the retiring Governor General have been loud in their protests against what they term the "discourteous treatment" of him, but to-day the Governor made the following statement:

"I have no complaint to make of my treatment at the hands of President Wilson. While the manner of my notification that my services were no longer wanted lacked somewhat in formality, I feel certain that no offense was intended. Nor have I taken any. The President is a very busy man, with many cares and anxieties. Details of this sort are usually left to subordinates. It is improbable that he or Mr. Harrison even had cognizance of the matter."

OFFICIALS USE CANDLES.

British Government Offices Without Electricity Owing to Strike.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Strong pickets of strikers belonging to the construction and electrical trades to-day endeavored to induce the workmen to lay down their tools at Buckingham Palace, Marlborough House, the Admiralty, and Premier Asquith's official residence in Downing Street, all of which are in the hands of repairers.

The strikers appear to be gaining ground, and many firms have granted their demands.

Most of the museums and Government institutions are suffering from the absence of electricity. Candles were the sole means of illumination last night at the Colonial Office, where the elevators also have been put out of commission.

PROTEST AGAINST BOOK TAX

German Dealers to Appeal Against Our Proposed Tariff.

LEIPSIC, Aug. 27.—The German Booksellers' Association decided to-day to present a petition to the German Government protesting against the proposed American tariff on German books.

One of the members at the meeting declared that only Spain and two of the South American republics imposed a similar tax.

REFUTE McMICHAELS CHARGE

McDermott's Lawyers Produce Witnesses in Defending Congressman.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Lobby investigations continued on both sides of the Capitol to-day. Before the House Committee counsel for Representative McDermott of Illinois, charged by M. M. Mulhall and I. H. McMichaels with corruption and misconduct, concluded the cross-examination of McMichaels and introduced a dozen witnesses to contradict testimony against their client.

Attorney Easby-Smith, for McDermott, took the stand himself and contradicted various statements of McMichaels. J. P. Bird, General Manager of the National Association of Manufacturers, testified concerning the presentation of a letter of introduction to him from Mulhall by McDermott, and said the Congressman tried vainly to get him to arrange for credit for an aeroplane venture.

James A. Emery, Washington representative of the National Association of Manufacturers, denied that his association was affiliated with the anti-boycott association or similar organizations.

He admitted on cross-examination that he had been mistaken when he testified recently that he had little to do with the employment of former Representative James E. Watson to work for a tariff commission. Senator Reed read several letters written by Emery showing he took an active part in the negotiations that preceded Watson's employment. Emery said he had forgotten.

Call Off Strike of Hamburg Line.

The strike of the longshoremen on the Hamburg-American Line in Hoboken came to an end last night, when the men decided to return to work. The officials of the line sent word to the strikers that there would not be any discrimination in the employment of the laborers.

CAUCUS ABSENTEES HALT CURRENCY BILL

Lack of Quorums and Radicals' Tactics Embarrass Leaders, Who Appeal to Members.

CLASH ON REFUNDING BONDS

Bill Amended to Place Issues of Federal Reserve Currency on a Gold Basis.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—A peculiar situation has developed in the currency caucus. For two days it has lacked a quorum by a narrow margin, and unless a quorum is obtained to-morrow or the following day, the bill cannot be disposed of by the caucus before next week, while the friends of the Administration in the House will be in an embarrassing situation.

This is because Representatives Robert Lee Henry of Texas, Ragsdale of South Carolina and other radicals who have been outgeneraled and outvoted on their "corn tassel credit and currency," and interlocking directorate proposals, are now raising the point of no quorum every time a vote is taken and goes against them. They are not exactly conducting a filibuster, but the effect is about the same, as it postpones the disposal of the bill at a time when the leaders want to get the measure into the House before the tariff bill is returned from the Senate.

As a result of this situation Representative A. Mitchell Palmer, Chairman of the caucus, has sent out a hurry call to all Democratic members urging them to attend the caucus or, if absent, to return to Washington immediately to enable the leaders to maintain a quorum for the consideration of the bill. The absentees are mostly friends of the bill. They did not absent themselves, it appears, to embarrass the leaders, but more from carelessness, believing, after the first decisive test votes were taken, that their votes probably would not be needed.

To-day there were eighty-one Democrats present when a test vote was taken. A quorum in the caucus is 146 members, so there were sixty-five less than a quorum present, despite the fact that nearly 200 Democrats only a few hours before were in the hall of the House when President Wilson delivered his message on the Mexican question. Mr. Underwood has also sent an urgent appeal to all Democrats to be present. The bill could have been disposed of in the caucus to-day if there had been a quorum present.

The main issue was the provision of the measure for the refunding of the Government 2 per cent. bonds. Representative Henry and the radicals are opposed to this proposal. Accordingly, Mr. Henry moved to strike out all of Section 19 of the bill, which provides for the refunding of the bonds, and asked the caucus to substitute the proposal of Senator Shafroth, embraced in the bill the latter introduced in the Senate last week, providing for the retirement of all paper money, and the issuance of a new series of United States notes, redeemable in gold, with a 50 per cent. gold reserve fund behind them.

Mr. Henry's motion was defeated by 68 to 13. Thereupon Mr. Henry moved to strike out the section without offering a substitute. Aware that the vote would be against him, Mr. Henry suggested the lack of a quorum, and forced an adjournment of the caucus. Then it was that the leaders decided to make an urgent appeal to the Democrats to attend the caucus, explaining that the absentees were not only endangering the success of the Administration programme and making the party look ridiculous before the country, but that the delays occasioned by adjournments through lack of quorums were doubling the burden of those who did attend.

The caucus votes show that the leaders have a majority of from five or six to one in favor of the bill and of the programme of the committee in practically all of its details. The proposal of the committee made yesterday by means of the Bulkley amendment to eliminate the payment by the regional reserve banks of interest on deposits, either from the Government or individuals, failed because of the lack of a quorum. The vote stood 92 to 38 in favor of the Bulkley amendment, but this was 16 less than a quorum, and the final vote on the matter had to be postponed until a quorum can be obtained.

The most important change in the bill, in fact the only one made to-day, was the adoption of the Wingo amendment striking the words "or lawful money" out of the note issue section of the bill, where it is proposed to give the Federal Reserve Board power, in its discretion, to require Federal reserve banks to maintain on deposit in the United States Treasury a sum "in gold or lawful money equal to 5 per cent." of such amount of the proposed Federal reserve notes as may be issued to the regional banks under the terms of the bill.

The adoption of the Wingo amendment will require the deposit of only gold with the Treasury for that purpose, and displaces the proposal to allow the deposit of lawful money, which might have been silver or any other lawful form. The change thus made would have the effect of putting the proposed issue of Federal reserve banking currency on an absolute gold basis.

The caucus voted down an amendment by Representative Harrison of Mississippi, which provided that nothing contained in the bill should be construed to prevent any member bank from making reasonable charges for collecting and remitting for checks and drafts except against Federal reserve banks.

The caucus will meet at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning and resume the consideration of the 2 per cent. bond refunding section. There yet remain to be considered, besides this section, those relating to bank reserves, bank examinations, loans on farm lands, the proposal to allow national banks in the Federal reserve system to operate savings departments, and foreign branches of national banks.

DANIELS RIDES IN WAGON.

Impresses Delivery Motor Into Use to Get to Capitol.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, who is credited with an intention of "democratizing" the naval service, did a little stunt in the democracy line to-day that is probably unprecedented in the official history of Washington.

Mr. Daniels was detained in his office at the Navy Department and made a late start for the Capitol to hear President Wilson deliver his address on the Mexican situation. His carriage was not available at the time, and when Mr. Daniels left the department building the only vehicle in sight was a delivery motor wagon belonging to the Commissary Department of the Washington Navy Yard.

But Mr. Daniels did not hesitate for a moment. "I'm the Secretary of the Navy," he said to the enlisted man who sat on the driver's seat, "and I guess my authority extends over this wagon. I want to get to the Capitol in a hurry to hear the President read his message. Could you take me there?"

"Sure!" said the driver. "Jump in."

Among those present on the floor of the House of Representatives during the delivery of President Wilson's address this afternoon was the Hon. Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy. He wore a white linen suit.

MRS. LEONARD WOOD ILL.

Condition Not Serious—Army Chief Hurrying Back to Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Mrs. Leonard Wood, wife of the Chief of the Army General Staff, is ill with pneumonia at her residence at Fort Myer, Va., three miles from Washington.

Major Gen. Wood left Fort Leavenworth, Kan., last night when he received a telegram saying there had been a slight increase in Mrs. Wood's temperature. He is expected to reach Washington to-morrow. Gen. Wood has been absent from Washington for a month, accompanying Secretary of War Garrison on an inspection tour of army posts.

Mrs. Wood's physicians say that she is not in any danger, and that there are no complications.

NEWPORT MISSES SAILORS.

Mayor Expresses Regret at the Shortness of the Fleet's Stay.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The sailing of the Atlantic Fleet from Narragansett Bay prompted Mayor MacLeod of Newport to write a letter to Rear Admiral Badger, Commander in Chief, expressing regret at the departure of the officers and men, and conveying his appreciation of the assistance the shore patrols rendered the local Newport police while living off Newport.

"It is a source of pride in our navy," wrote Mayor MacLeod, "that so many of the men can congregate in one place and conduct themselves in so orderly a manner that the residents and authorities regret the short duration of their stay."

FOUGHT OVER A HOUSEMAID.

Employer Thought Neighbor Sought to Lure His Jewel Away.

Special to The New York Times.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., Aug. 27.—The moss-grown comedy of the commuter's difficulty in keeping servants was revived here to-day, when the question became so acute that blows were exchanged on the street. The trouble began with a Polish girl, said by all the envious housewives of the town to be a jewel. She presides over the kitchen of Harris Goldstein, a dry goods dealer, and the family was much exercised at a report that an effort had been made to lure her away with the bait of higher wages.

Goldstein and his son-in-law, Louis Gottlieb, were in their store to-day when Samuel Swett, a Manhattan real estate broker, drove up to the curb. Swett lives in the Bay Crest section of Huntington. Goldstein and Gottlieb went out and charged him with designs upon their maid. Swett jumped down and, a moment later, his mother, Mrs. Swett, and Mrs. Gottlieb were trying to haul the three men apart.

Later Goldstein and Gottlieb swore out a warrant charging Swett with having assaulted them, and he was held in $200 bail for examination on Friday before Justice Lowndes.

PAYS $276,000 FOR TIMBER.

Senator Stephenson's Purchase Will Keep Mills Going Five Years.

MARINETTE, Wis., Aug. 27.—The purchase of 70,000,000 feet of timber in Florence County, Wis., and Iron County, Mich., by United States Senator Isaac Stephenson for a lumber concern in which he is interested was announced to-day. The consideration was $276,000 cash paid to a Cadillac (Mich.) company.

The deal insures the running of the mills of Mr. Stephenson's company in Marinette for at least five years.

LA FOLLETTE TILTS WITH GALLINGER

LOSES INCOME TAX FIGHT

Bristow's Surtax Plan Defeated by 46 to 16—Hitchcock's Monopoly Tax.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, who had the support of a radical faction of the Republicans for the Presidential nomination last year, to-day made it plain that he was as far as ever from wishing to heal the wounds in his party. In the course of a running debate on the income tax section of the tariff bill, after deploring the lack of Republican unity in support of drastic amendments, he told Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, the minority leader, that he and his conservative colleagues had been the cause of the party's defeat, and that he could see the retirement of Mr. Gallinger and Republicans of his type without regret.

Mr. La Follette's bitterness was the more noticeable as Mr. Gallinger was scrupulously moderate in his replies. The colloquy arose after the Democrats, with the aid of thirteen Republicans, had defeated by a vote of 16 to 46, an amendment proposed by Mr. Bristow of Kansas, a radical Republican, greatly increasing the surtax on large incomes. Mr. Bristow proposed that the surtax should begin on incomes of $10,000 and be increased at the rate of 1 per cent. for every additional $10,000 until the rate was 10 per cent. Mr. La Follette then proposed an almost identical modification.

"I regret to notice," said Mr. La Follette, "that Senators who voted against the amendment are the same who always opposed an income tax in any form. I regret that there is a line of division in the Republican Party where I had hoped there would be but one mind. There is a new day coming, however, in the country. If the Republican Party does not see it, some other party will."

Mr. Gallinger suggested that the votes of the radicals against amendments proposed by regular Republicans to the tariff schedules had been allowed to pass without adverse comments.

Mr. La Follette vehemently declared that the votes would be analyzed before the subject was dropped, and Mr. Gallinger said that he viewed that warning with no alarm.

"There was no alarm," angrily retorted Mr. La Follette, "when in my discussion of the physical valuation of the railroads some years ago, I predicted that seats then temporarily vacant, might be permanently vacated. But as I look around to-day I see that my warning has come true."

"Seats on both sides have been voluntarily vacated by Senators who disagree with the Senator from Wisconsin," said Mr. Gallinger. "The Republican Party has gone out of power because of a party represented by the Senator from Wisconsin and his associates."

"The people of the country," shouted Mr. La Follette, "have put the Republican Party out of power because the Senator from New Hampshire and his associates did not listen to the warning I uttered then. People of the country agreed with my policy then and with what I am saying now."

"I am ready to accept what ever fate befalls me," said Mr. Gallinger calmly, "and if the Senator means me, I'll add that I may also voluntarily retire. That will cause him no grief."

"It will not," agreed Mr. La Follette.

Debate on the Bristow amendment took up the whole day in the Senate. The Republicans who voted with the Democrats against it were Senators Bradley of Kentucky, Brandegee and McLean of Connecticut, Catron of New Mexico, Colt of Rhode Island, Gallinger of New Hampshire, Lodge and Weeks of Massachusetts, Oliver and Penrose of Pennsylvania, Root of New York, Smoot of Utah, and Townsend of Michigan.

Senator Williams, who directed the progress of the Tariff bill for the Democrats, said that the framers of the bill had considered all phases of the subject, and had dismissed the idea of a heavier tax in favor of the policy of starting the new form of taxation upon a "moderate basis."

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska to-day introduced his proposed amendment to the Tariff bill, to levy a graduated tax upon corporations, for the purpose of curbing monopolies and breaking up trusts. This represents a plan that has many supporters in both parties, and a strong effort will be made to have it incorporated in the Tariff bill. It provides:

A tax of 5 per cent., or five times the normal corporation tax, on the income of any concern that produces or sells from one-quarter to one-third of the total amount of any given line of production; 10 per cent. on corporations producing or selling from one-third to one-half of the total, and of 20 per cent. on corporations producing or selling over one-half of the total.

This penalty tax would not apply to concerns whose product was valued at less than $10,000,000 per year, nor to concerns having a total of capital less than $50,000,000.

Order Inquiry Into Speer Charges.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The House passed a resolution to-day authorizing an investigation of charges against Judge Emory Speer of the Federal Court of Georgia. The investigation will be conducted by a sub-committee of the Judiciary Committee, which originates impeachment proceedings.

CLOAK MAN THREATENED.

Says Two Alleged Union Men Tried to Extort $1,500 from Him.

Bernard Rapp, manufacturer of suits and cloaks at 115 Lewis Street, charged yesterday that two rough-looking men, representing themselves as union men, had demanded $1,000 from him as the price of his continuance in business. Rapp has been running a small-non-union shop in defiance of the protocol entered into three years ago in the cloak and suit-making industry between manufacturers and employers. The money, Rapp's callers said, would be held to guarantee obedience to the union's rules.

"I see we'll have to handle this fellow differently than usuasl," Rapp reported one of them as saying when Rapp continued to resist them.

"Do you mean that you'll kill me?" asked Rapp. "You know what you would get for that."

"We have plenty of money, thousands of dollars," replied the larger of the two intruders, according to Rapp. "It's easy enough to kill a man in America to-day if you have money enough to fight the case. We give you fair warning."

Rapp called up the newspapers and so reported the case.

Rapp said he unionized his shop by inviting all of his employes into the firm as partners. That made each one of them a proprietor, he argued, and a proprietor could work as long and as cheaply as he desired. He admitted, however, that his employes were not partners in the real sense of the word.

At the headquarters of the Settlement Committee of the Ladies' International Garment Workers' Union, at 85 East Fourth Street, it was said that the union did not employ strong-armed men. If two men called at the Rapp shop, it was said, they did not come from the union.

CATCH MISSING CHAUFFEUR.

Two Girls Held with Man Wanted for Taking Dr. Muller's Auto.

The police of Mamaroneck, N. Y., notified Police Headquarters in this city last night that they had arrested James Murray, the chauffeur who disappeared a week ago with the $2,500 automobile belonging to his employer, Dr. Emil A. Müller of 316 East 120th Street. The Mamaroneck police also arrested two girls who were in the auto with Murray, Sarah Ryan, 16 years old, of 158 East 126th Street, and Anna Murphy, 19 years old, of 39 West 120th Street, but a young man, who was the fourth member of the party, escaped.

Lieut. Martin at the Mamaroneck Police Headquarters said last night over the telephone that the young chauffeur and his three guests had been recognized from descriptions sent out by the New York police.

"They ran out of gasoline as they were passing through town," he said, "and their car stopped."

MURDOCK IN MAINE FIGHT.

Appeals to Voters to Send a Progressive to Congress.

OAKLAND, Me., Aug. 27.—An appeal to the people of Maine to send a Progressive to Congress was made here to-night by Representative Victor Murdock of Kansas, the first speaker from another State to appear in the Congressional campaign for a successor to the late Congressman Forrest Goodwin. Edward M. Lawrence of Lubec is the Progressive candidate in whose behalf Mr. Murdock spoke. William R. Pattangall and John Peters are the Democratic and Republican nominees, respectively.

"There is no hope for the nation in the partisan habit which persists in a mechanical seesaw from one old party to the other," said Mr. Murdock. "There can be no progress in the profitless trip from the Republican frying pan into the Democratic fire and back again.

"The most dangerous factor in this country to-day is the dilly-dallying Congressman and Senator."

PISTOL WINS IN DUEL, KNIFE WIELDER DIES

Angry Tenant Lunges at Landlord, Who Shoots Him in His Tracks.

MOB THREATENS SLAYER

Brooklyn Police Reserves Run to His Rescue—Threatened, He Was Ready for Assailant.

Two men, one armed with a revolver, and the other with a long knife, fought yesterday at the corner of Clinton Street and Hamilton Avenue, in Brooklyn. The man with the revolver although badly slashed, managed to kill his antagonist.

John Monforte, 53 years of age, is a barber living over his place of business at 341 Hamilton Avenue. He also owns a tenement house at 582 Clinton Street. One of the tenants in the house was Pietro Scozzaro, 23 years of age.

Monforte met a glazier in the neighborhood yesterday who asked him if he had any rooms to rent in his house. Monforte who did not desire Scozzaro as a tenant any longer took the glazier to the house and showed him Scozzaro's rooms. The tenant became incensed when he heard that the landlord wanted him to move.

"I'll kill you to-day," Scozzaro it is reported said to Monforte. Monforte went home much worried. Just before noon his wife asked him to go to a fruit store on Court Street. As a precaution he put a 38-calibre revolver in his pocket. At Clinton Street and Hamilton Avenue he met Scozzaro who at once lunged at him with a long knife and made a deep wound on the barber's arm near the shoulder. As Scozzaro drew back to thrust the knife again, Monforte fired his revolver.

The first bullet struck Scozzaro in the shoulder inflicting a flesh wound. The second struck him in the right side and penetrated the lungs and the heart. He died almost instantly. Policeman Charles Kuhnemund of the Hamilton Avenue Station was passing on a car and saw the shooting. He ran to catch Monforte who, panic stricken, tried to escape. As the policeman approached him he pointed his revolver at him and pulled the trigger. The revolver missed fire and before he could fire again Kuhnemund knocked the weapon from his hand and placed him under arrest.

The neighborhood where the killing took place is densely populated. A great crowd gathered about the policeman and his prisoner and threats were made to take Monforte from his captor. Word was sent to the Hamilton Avenue Station and the reserves came on a run. They rescued Kuhnemund and his prisoner from the center of the mob and protected him on the way to the station house.

CLIMB DARK LIGHTHOUSE.

Stamford Yachtsmen Restore Light—High Seas Kept Keeper Ashore.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Aug. 27.—There was no light in the Stamford Lighthouse last night until 1 o'clock A. M. to warn Long Island Sound mariners of the dangerous reef at the mouth of Stamford Harbor and to guide vessels. The lighthouse keeper, Josephs Meyer, having come ashore yesterday for provisions, was unable to make a landing at the lighthouse, he said, because the sea was too high and heavy.

Walter Muench, Malton Richmond, and Charles Ottman, Stamford yachtsmen, put out in a small open power boat, and at personal risk reached the lighthouse and climbed up to the tower. They forced open a window, and, entering the tower, restored the light. They then put back to shore, coming safely through the rough sea.

EXONERATE MRS. SHARPE.

Police Withdraw Charge of Murder Made Against Her.

The police yesterday withdrew the formal charge of murder which they made late on Tuesday night against Mrs. Mary Sharpe following the finding of the body of her husband, Joseph Sharpe, in the apartment of Mrs. Minnie Chase, at 142 West Eighty-third Street, where the Sharpes had a furnished room. Mrs. Sharpe was found in an adjoining room with blood issuing from wounds in her head and body.

Mrs. Sharpe told the detectives that her husband had committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor after first having attacked and wounded her with an ice pick. Yesterday at the Polyclinic Hospital, where she was taken, she repeated her story to the police and also to Assistant District Attorney Breckenridge, who came to the conclusion that she had told the truth, and the formal murder charge against her was withdrawn. At the hospital it was said that while her condition was serious she had a chance to recover.

On Sharpe's body the detectives found an envelope with a lawyer's name on it. This lawyer, it was said, was engaged in a suit on Sharpe's behalf, the exact nature of which could not be learned, but it was reported that the dead man was a disowned member of a wealthy New Orleans family. Mrs. Sharpe does not know the address of her husband's relatives in New Orleans.

TOURISTS' BAGGAGE SEIZED.

Two Passengers by German Liners Did Not Declare Valuables.

Several trunks belonging to Mrs. Adele Beirig, a widow, who arrived from Bremen on the North German Lloyd liner Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm on Monday, were ordered seized yesterday by Surveyor of the Port Henry and the papers in the case were sent to the office of United States District Attorney Marshall.

Mrs. Beirig, who is said to be wealthy, has been living abroad for some time. She told the customs officials that while she had lived in New York before going abroad she had no permanent home here at present.

When the steamer arrived Mrs. Beirig declared only $30 worth of dutiable goods. Customs Inspector Tracy, who examined her trunks, found in them eight foreign-made gowns. Acting Deputy Surveyor Bradley then directed that the baggage be sent to the Appraisers' Stores for a more careful examination. This revealed that aside from the gowns Mrs. Beirig had failed to declare a silver bracelet watch and an imitation pearl necklace.

When questioned by Surveyor Henry yesterday at the Custom House Mrs. Beirig explained that she did not think it was necessary to declare the gowns or jewelry. All of her baggage was seized.

On the Kronprinz Wilhelm, another North German Lloyd liner, which arrived from Bremen on Tuesday, came Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hartman, who told the Customs Inspectors that they did not have any dutiable articles in their baggage. An examination revealed a solid gold watch, a meerschaum pipe set, some cheap jewelry, and a number of pieces of linen and embroidery. Hartman explained to Surveyor Henry yesterday that he supposed passengers could each bring in $100 worth of merchandise. Articles found on Hartman's person were ordered seized, and, with the other articles, were sent to the Appraisers' Stores for examination.

GUARDS FIRE ON STRIKERS.

Six of Latter Wounded in Riot at Ohio Tin Mill.

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, Aug. 27.—Six men were shot, two probably fatally, in a riot at the Pope tin mill to-night when guards fired into 2,000 strikers who threatened to rush the mill.

The most seriously hurt were Joseph Miller and John Doran, strikers. Chief of Police Frankhauser was hit in the head.

GOVERNORS ON MT. MANITOU

Session in Shadow of Pike's Peak—Address by Gov. Baldwin.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Aug. 27.—An executive session, 9,500 feet above sea level, on top of Mount Manitou, in the shadow of Pike's Peak, was a feature of to-day's programme of the Governors' Conference. An improvised banquet hall was arranged to accommodate several hundred persons, and luncheon was served to visiting executives in the open air pavilion on the mountainside. Burro races along the mountain trails afforded the Governors keen delight.

Just as the State bears the expense of conducting elections, so should it bear the expenses—or most of them—of candidates for party nominations at the primaries, in the opinion of Simeon E. Baldwin, Governor of Connecticut, who addressed the conference to-day.

The burden of these expenses, Gov. Baldwin said, deters the poor man from entering the political lists.

Gov. Ernest Lister of Washington spoke on "A State Department of Efficiency and Economy," taking the place of Gov. Cruce of Oklahoma on the programme. Gov. Cruce wired his regrets at not being able to attend the conference, stating that he was unwilling to leave the affairs of State in the hands of the Lieutenant Governor, in view of recent trouble over State matters with that official.

CREDITORS OPPOSE MOORE.

Fight Discharge from Bankruptcy—Cummins Deals Caught Him.

Charles A. Moore, Jr., who was involved in the failure of the Carnegie Trust Company and was forced into involuntary bankruptcy in July, 1911, with liabilities of $2,000,000, applied yesterday, through his attorney, for his discharge from bankruptcy in the United States District Court. The attorney said that his client was still in Europe. Two creditors appeared to oppose the discharge, and the matter was put over for two weeks.

Young Moore, who is a son of C. A. Moore, the wealthy head of the firm of Manning, Maxwell & Moore, was one of the friends and associates of William J. Cummins, who hoped to clean up a fortune through that financier's bold operations. Whatever personal fortune he possessed, it is said, was entirely swept away as a result of his participation in the Cummins syndicate. Mr. Moore's connection with the failure of the Carnegie Trust Company came through the fact that he had indorsed notes on which the Cummins syndicate borrowed money from the Carnegie Trust Company, of which he was a Director.

In February, 1912, Justice Vernon M. Davis, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, discharged the Supreme Court Grand Jury for March, 1911, after that body had dismissed the complaint against Mr. Moore, who was alleged to be involved in one of the transactions resulting in the larceny of $300,000 from the defunct Carnegie Trust Company.

Still In The Lead

For over fifteen years Grape-Nuts, the pioneer health cereal, has had no equal, either in flavour or nutrition.

Thousands of families use it regularly because

Grape-Nuts

Has qualities which make it the ideal food—

Delicious Flavour,

Rich Nourishment,

Quick Preparation, and withal, easily digested.

Grape-Nuts and cream, in place of heavy, indigestible food, helps to make one cooler and more comfortable on hot days; and builds body and brain in a way that gives zest and energy.

STRONG WORDS

From a Doctor with 40 Years Experience.

"In my 40 years' experience as a teacher and practitioner along hygienic lines," says a Calif. physician, "I have never found a food to compare with Grape-Nuts for the benefit of the general health of all classes of people.

"I have recommended Grape-Nuts for a number of years to patients with the greatest success and every year's experience makes me more enthusiastic regarding its use.

"I make it a rule to always recommend Grape-Nuts, and Postum in place of coffee, when giving my patients instructions as to diet, for I know both Grape-Nuts and Postum can be digested by anyone.

"As for myself, when engaged in much mental work my diet twice a day consists of Grape-Nuts and rich cream. I find it just the thing to build up and keep the brain in good working order.

"In addition, Grape-Nuts always keeps the digestive organs in a perfect, healthy tone." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Strong endorsements like the above from physicians all over the country have stamped Grape-Nuts the most scientific food in the world.

GLYNN RECOGNIZED BY LEGISLATURE

Despite Protests, Messages from Acting Governor Are Received by Both Houses.

HENNESSY QUITS SULZER?

Impeached Governor's Chief Defender Said to Deem Himself Misled as to Campaign Fund Checks.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 27.—Martin H. Glynn to-night received ormal recognition as Acting Governor from the Legislature when both branches received messages from him—the first communications of this nature since Gov. Sulzer was impeached. There were protests in both houses against receiving the messages.

In the Senate the objection was raised by Senator Gottfried Wende of Erie, the only Sulzer man present. He made the point that receiving the messages would validate the position of those who maintain that the filing of the articles of impeachment automatically barred William Sulzer from exercising the functions of the Governor. The message was received and read, Senator Wende reserving the right of further protest.

In the Assembly Mr. Schaap of the Bronx, the Progressive leader, objected, but was overruled by the Speaker.

"On the strength of an opinion handed down by the Attorney General, I received this message from Acting Gov. Glynn," said the Speaker.

Harold J. Hinman, Republican leader of the Assembly and law partner of L. J. Arnold, after this ruling entered upon an elaborate protest against receiving the message or recognizing Acting Gov. Glynn.

The reception of Acting Gov. Glynn's messages, which dealt with routine matters, and the introduction of bills carrying out his recommendations, marked the sole activities of the Senate and the Assembly. The Senate met without a quorum present, and adjourned to noon to-morrow as soon as the messages had been read. The Assembly session was held under a closed call, and with a quorum. The debate on the reception of the messages lasted until midnight, when the Assembly adjourned until noon to-morrow. Twenty-four members, two less than a quorum, were present in the Senate.

Sulzer and Hennessy Out?

Official and political Albany was greatly interested in a report that went the rounds to-night, and which had it that the relations between Mr. Sulzer and John A. Hennessy, who has been looked upon here as Mr. Sulzer's alter ego, has become severely strained.

Mr. Hennessy is said to be in New York City. The report is accepted here as well founded, and there have been some developments which seem to lend color to this belief. Mr. Hennessy's friends here who were questioned about the report were exceedingly reticent.

For some time it had been hinted that Mr. Hennessy had been laboring under the impression that Mr. Sulzer had not been altogether frank with him in their discussion of the charges brought against the Governor as a result of the Frawley Committee's disclosures. It is rumored that there has been serious conflict between the version of his case given by Mr. Sulzer to his legal advisors, and that given to Mr. Hennessy.

According to report, Mr. Hennessy, following what he regarded as a most exhaustive and satisfactory talk with Mr. Sulzer regarding the campaign fund disclosures, felt so confident that nothing could come of the charges, that he prepared at once to unlimber his heaviest guns and train them on Mr. Sulzer's foes. Mr. Hennessy, according to his friends at the Capitol, when, as a result of legislative hostility to Mr. Sulzer's plans, found himself without any appropriation to defray the cost of his inquiry into the State departments, assumed personal liability for a considerable sum necessary to enable him to carry on the investigation.

When the Frawley Committee brought out evidence that contributions to the Sulzer campaign fund had been used to speculate in Wall Street, the revelation is said to have come to Mr. Hennessy as a stunning surprise. Another blow, it is said, came within the last two or three days when he was directed by Mr. Sulzer to suspend the investigations on which he had spent money raised at a personal sacrifice.

What Mr. Glynn Recommends.

The first series of messages sent to the Legislature by Lieut. Gov. Glynn as Acting Governor, urged action upon a bill to provide for a direct State tax of six-tenths of a mill to meet the yearly instalment of the sinking fund, upon a bill to provide $75,000 for the legislative expenses, upon a measure providing $225,000 to meet the claims of owners of diseased cattle and horses slaughtered under the law by the State, and upon a bill to legalize a bond issue of $68,000 in the city of Niagara Falls.

Mr. Glynn takes a view opposite to that of the Committee of Inquiry appointed by Gov. Sulzer in relation to the sinking fund. The committee presented a brief to show that the accumulations in the sinking fund were so large that a portion could be used to meet the obligations imposed by the law. Gov. Sulzer accepted this proposition, but failed to obtain the passage of a bill permitting the withdrawal of $12,000,000 from the sinking fund.

Gov. Sulzer vetoed the direct tax bill passed at the regular session, making action at the extraordinary session necessary in order to maintain the State's credit. Several weeks ago Gov. Sulzer sent to the Legislature a recommendation for the passage of a direct tax bill. Such a measure was introduced at that time, but was not acted upon.

"Unless the State is to default in interest payments upon its bonds," Acting Gov. Glynn says in his message, "it is necessary that the Legislature immediately make provisions for a direct tax. To avert this stigma upon the majesty of the State, this menace to its credit, the several counties must soon be in possession of authority to levy a State tax.

"The condition of the State's finances is the most important problem confronting us. In the turmoil of other issues the all-important question of ways and means has been sadly overlooked and less important questions have forced into obscurity the momentous problem of how the State is going to pay its debts.

"Through unusual items in the regular appropriation bills and numerous special appropriations the expenses of the State have been increased to a degree demanding serious consideration. If the present policy is continued, the expenses of the State will soon largely outstrip the revenues and necessitate a heavy direct tax. It should be the serious study of all public officials to avoid the imposition of this burden upon the people. The condition of the finances of the State demands a halt for the time being upon special appropriations except for purposes absolutely necessary.

"The appropriations of 1913 from the general fund are $47,856,595. The sinking fund requirements are $9,725,398, making the total obligations to be provided for this year $57,581,994, an increase of $4,392,759 over last year. To meet this great demand upon the State's resources, it was estimated on Jan. 1 last, that at the beginning of the fiscal year there would be a surplus of $11,589,758, that revenues would be increased to the amount of $40,210,000, and that former apropriations would lapse to the extent of $625,000. The total estimated resources are therefore $52,424,758. This amount is less than the amount required to meet the obligations of the State for the current year. It has happened, however, that the revenue derived from the transfer inheritance tax is now estimated to be at least $3,000,000 greater than the estimate at the beginning of the year. Therefore, by using at last $8,000,000 of the surplus and by the imposition of a direct tax of approximately six-tenths of a mill for the sinking fund requirements of the Canal and Palisade bonds, the State will be able to meet its obligations and preserve a surplus sufficient to properly conduct the State's business.

"The legislature of 1914 will be compelled to inaugurate some entirely different policy in the treatment of the State's finances than has been pursued this year."

Funds For Investigators.

The message relating to the expenses of the Legislature recommends the appropriation of a "reasonable amount of money to pay the necessary expenses of the Legislature during the extraordinary session, and also for the expenses of legislative committees which have already been appointed but are unable to perform any of their duties because of lack of funds."

The bill to cover this recommendation carries an appropriation of $75,000. The appropriation bill of the regular session provided $150,000 for contingent expenses of the Legislature, but it was vetoed by Gov. Sulzer.

The message in relation to the reimbursement of claimants for the slaughter of diseased cattle and horses states that the $217,157 already has been allowed by the Commissioner of Agriculture.

"It seems unnecessary," the Acting Governor said, "to argue that the State of New York should not impose upon its citizens unnecessary delay in reimbursing them according to its statutory requirements for property of which it deprives them. In many instances the owners of the cattle destroyed are citizens who cannot well afford to be deprived of their property and to be compelled to wait an unreasonable time for the reimbursement which the very statute that authorizes the deprivation commands shall be paid to them. The State of New York should not sanction such an injustice."

William Sulzer and Martin H. Glynn were in their respective Executive Chambers to-day. Neither transacted any official business of importance.

The Legislature, according to the leaders, will take steps to-morrow to punish Louis A. Sarecky, Mr. Sulzer's former confidential secretary, and Frederick L. Colwell, his agent in Wall Street, for contempt. Both failed to answer questions put to them before the Frawley Committee.

WHITMAN AND ARNOLD CONFER

District Attorney Looking Into Impeachment Bribery Charges.

Ex-Judge Lynn J. Arnold of Albany, supporter of William Sulzer in his impeachment troubles, had a four-hour conference with District Attorney Whitman yesterday on the subject of his frequently-asserted charge that Sulzer was ousted as the result of a conspiracy headed by Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy.

Mr. Whitman would not comment on any of the testimony laid before him by Arnold beyond saying that there was a vast amount of it and that he expected to have another talk with Arnold on the subject to-day. Well-known Tammany men, he admitted, might be examined by him to ascertain whether the Arnold charges would stand the fire of a Grand Jury inquiry.

"Will Charles F. Murphy be called?" he was asked.

The District Attorney smiled, but made no definite reply.

To questions touching on the political angles of the case Mr. Whitman replied that a thousand indorsements by Tammany Hall would not swerve him in the least from sifting to the bottom anything that might be placed before him bearing on illegal doings in the Murphy-Sulzer war.

Following ex-Judge Arnold two other men were heard by Mr. Whitman. One of these, it was learned, was a lawyer whom Arnold charged with being a go-between in the bribery of an Assemblyman. Although this Assemblyman was active in the impeachment proceedings, it was intimated that the bribery charge itself had nothing to do with the impeachment.

When the conferences were over rumors began to float from the Criminal Court Building, and some of these dealt with a supposed confession of ex-State Senator Stephen J. Stilwell, now serving a four-year-term in Sing Sing for bribery. One was to the effect that Stilwell had been approached by two men while in the Tombs. These men, so the story went, said they were friends of Charles F. Murphy, and begged Stilwell to remain silent, promising him a pardon just as soon as Sulzer could be impeached. Stilwell, this rumor said, stood willing to reveal the names of the two men and much more in return for a pardon from Sulzer.

Another version of the Stilwell tale was that the ex-Senator had written a letter to Sulzer shortly after the latter's impeachment promising to "tell everything" in return for a pardon. This letter, it was said, was taken to Sulzer by a trusted friend of Stilwell. Sulzer kept the letter as evidence, despite Stilwell's objections, according to this report, and sent word to Stilwell that he would not be pardoned unless convictions of prominent co-workers in the Legislature could be had on his testimony.

Both of the Stilwell stories were generally discredited here and in Albany last night. It was pointed out that a Sulzer pardon at this time would hardly be honored with the great seal of the State in the hands of Secretary of State May, a Glynn man. According to law, the Secretary of State must attest every Executive pardon.

NEW BANK MAY BUY ROSEVILLE TRUST CO.

Directors Propose a Private Audit to Learn How Much Cash Will Be Needed.

WOULD ASSUME LIABILITIES

Plan Submitted to Banking Commissioner of New Jersey, Who Is Expected to Favor It.

Following a meeting yesterday afternoon of the Board of Directors of the wrecked Roseville Trust Company, from which Raymond E. Smith, its missing Treasurer, is allegd to have embezzled $358,000, Director Edward D. Dunn sent a letter to George M. La Monte, Commissioner of Banking and Insurance of New Jersey, in which he asked permission to have a private audit made of the Roseville Trust Company. In this letter he also outlined a plan for relieving the depositors by organizing a new bank to purchase the wrecked trust company and its assets outright and assume its liabilities.

Mr. Dunn held a conference with Mr. La Monte in New York yesterday. He said the Commissioner showed great interest in the new plan for protecting the depositors, and expressed a willingness to assist the Directors, but required that the proposition of the Board of Directors be submitted in writing for his consideration. Edwin F. Rorebeck, a banking expert, has been engaged by Mr. Dunn to make an audit of the trust company's books in order to expedite matters and clear the ground for the proposed reorganization.

Mr. Rorebeck will start work on the books as soon as Mr. Dunn receives permission from the Commissioner for the expert to go ahead. Mr. Dunn's letter outlining the proposed reorganization as worked out by the Board of Directors follows:

Newark, N. J., Aug. 27, 1913.

Mr. George M. La Monte, Commissioner of Banking and Insurance of New Jersey, Trenton, N. J.:

Dear Sir: We respectfully ask your permission to have a private audit made of the Roseville Trust Company for the purpose of establishing a bank to relieve the depositors. The banking examiners have been working steadily at the institution, and the necessary interruptions in their work have hampered them decidedly in getting at the figures we need to save the situation. We have procured the services of Edmund F. Rorebeck, who will be able to get us the figures we need in a very short time.

We propose to form a new bank with $100,000 capital that will purchase the Roseville Trust Company and its assets outright by assuming its liabilities. Taking the shortage as estimated by Deputy Commissioner Vredenberg at $358,000, and deducting the capital, surplus, and undivided profits of $189,000, there would appear a shortage of $169,000. It would be necessary to raise this amount, together with the capital of $100,000, making a total of $269,000. We propose to raise $300,000, so as to have ample funds, if figures turn out to be as high as have up to this time been estimated.

We propose to issue capital stock of $100,000 at $300 a share. The Roseville Trust Company has been earning 14 per cent. and paying 10 per cent. on its capital stock of $100,000, notwithstanding it has had no benefit of earning power of the amount of shortage. Figuring only 10 per cent. paid on its capital stock would show an investment of 3 1-3 per cent. on the new stock issued at $300.

We propose to form a syndicate made up of stockholders of the Roseville Trust Company, and of the new organization to take over the claims against Smith and the National Surety Company, and to divide the amount thus collected among members of the syndicate according to the original issue of stocks; three to one to the new stockholders, and one and one-half to one of the Roseville Trust stockholders.

The only hope we have of conserving all interests depends entirely on prompt action, and that is why we are willing to put our auditor in there at our own expense, wishing to expedite the matter.

Thanking you for your assurance of help and for your favors, we are very respectfully,

EDWARD D. DUNN,
For Board of Directors of Roseville Trust Company.

The object of the private audit by Mr. Rorebeck is to enable the Directors to speedily obtain a statement of the exact condition of the trust company in order to know just how much money they must raise in order to organize the new bank, which they desire to put in operation as quickly as possible.

The trust company officials are hopeful that in the bankruptcy proceedings against Smith the missing treasurer, the claims of all creditors other than the trust company will amount to less than 10 per cent. of the assets, and it is said that the Directors may try to have the bankruptcy proceedings expedited for the sake of economy both in time and money.

It was said yesterday that Wilfred C. Roszel and his counsel, George Furst, were still trying hard to find both Smith and additional assets. The receiver has found a receipt for $250 as a quarter payment on 2,000 shares of stock bought by Smith in the Hackberry Silver Mines Company, but has not yet found where the mines are located. Mr. Furst found a statement of the financial condition of Smith dated Feb. 28, 1912, showing alleged assets of $64,200, including $35,000 worth of real estate and merchandise to the value of $13,700, with liabilities consisting of $15,000, mortgages on real estate, and bills payable of $700, indicating an excess of assets over liabilities of $48,500.

DIED IN SURF UNDERTOW.

Heart Disease Killed John Sydell as Life Guards Came.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 27.—Heart disease killed John Sydell of Philadelphia, one of the oldest burlesque managers in the theatrical business and for twenty-five years manager of the Rose Sydell London Belles Company, while he was bathing off Mississippi Avenue to-day.

Sydell, in company with Frank Lusch and F. A. Fisher, were in the surf. They had gotten out pretty far from shore and were splashing around when all three were caught in the undertow.

The life guard crew at once put out their boat. Sydell seemed to be safe, while Lusch was struggling in the undertow and losing ground every instant. The lifeboat picked him up first and then shot over and picked up Sydell and Fisher.

Dr. Charles Bossert used the pulmotor on Sydell, thinking his lungs were filled with water. A further examination showed that Sydell had died from heart trouble.

WOMAN AID TO FLAXNER.

Dr. Louise Pearce Gets Important Position at Rockefeller Institute.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 27.—Dr. Louise Pearce, the only woman on the staff of Johns Hopkins Hospital, has been appointed an assistant to Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute, New York. Her apopointment is unique, as she is the only woman ever named to work directly with the famous specialist. There are two other women doctors at the Rockefeller Institute, but their work is in other branches. Last month Dr. Pearce had the distinction of being named as the first woman to go on the psychiatry staff at the Phipps Clinic of Hopkins. Speaking of the broad field the appointment as aid to Dr. Flexner gives her, she smilingly said:

"I just think it's ripping."

Dr. Pearce was born in Boston and went out to California to take the academic course at Leland Stanford University. She was graduated in 1907, and went back to Boston, where she began the study of medicine. In 1909 she came to Baltimore and started in at Hopkins.

Dr. Pearce said she expected that in her research work with Dr. Flexner she would confine her efforts chiefly to the isolation of the bacillus of scarlet fever, whooping cough, and measles.

CONTEST CAHEN'S WILL.

Wife of Suicide Who Was Cut Off with $1 Plans a Contest.

The will of Bailey Cahen, who committed suicide at his apartments in the Van Cortlandt, Park Avenue and Ninety-sixth Streets, on Aug. 7, offered for probate yesterday, cut off his wife, Rose Cahen, with $1, household effects, bric-à-brac and articles of small value.

Counsel for Mrs. Cahen visited the Surrogates' Court yesterday and announced that they would contest the will. They said they would show that Mr. Cahen had been unduly influenced by his daughter, Valentine Simons, and others and that the statement in the will that his wife had during his life time gained unlawful possession of Consolidated Gas stock and a railroad bond belonging to him was one of his hallucinations, and that Mrs. Cahen had a rightful claim to them. They said also that Cahen would be shown to have been unfit to make a will, because of suicidal mania for many years.

Mrs. Cahen, it was said, would also sue the estate for $50,000, which she contends Mr. Cahen promised to leave her by his will, but of which he made no mention either in the will or its codicil.

NEW SAN FRANCISCO CALL.

Will Appear as Evening Paper, Spreckels Holding Minority Interest

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27.—Announcement was made to-day that The Call, a morning paper, would appear on Sept. 1 as an evening paper. M. H. De Young, proprietor of The Chronicle, who bought the plant of the morning paper, has sold the equipment, with the exception of the color presses, to the new owners, F. W. Kellogg, publisher and President, representing 80 per cent. of the stock, and John D. Spreckels, formerly proprietor of The Morning Call and now holding 20 per cent. of the stock of the evening paper.

The new alignment will give San Francisco two papers in the morning field—The Chronicle and The Examiner—and four in the evening—The Bulletin, The Post, The News, and The Call.

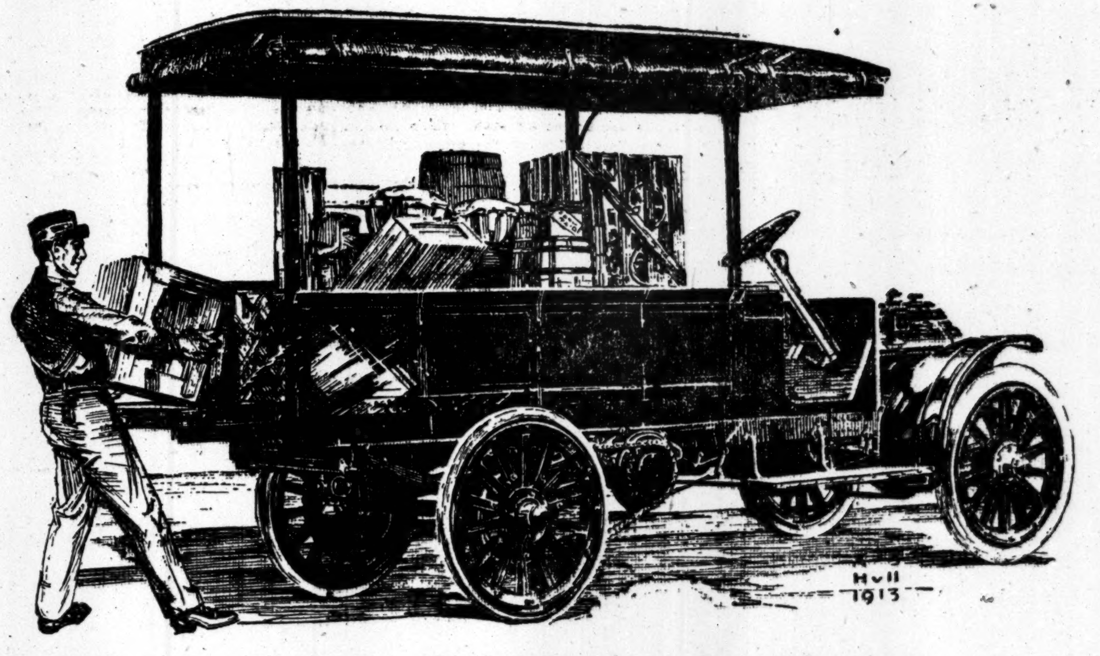
Willys Utility Truck
3/4 Ton



The most profitable trade developer you can get

THE Willys-Utility Truck is intended for those who want more business, bigger business and better business.

You can get along without a Willys truck if you are content with a limited radius of trade, which means a limited amount of business. But unless you increase your business area you cannot increase your profits.

(Chassis only f. o. b. Toledo)
Body as shown $150 extra

Look around you. Practically every live merchant in this city is using trucks. It will pay you to investigate our proposition. We have more to offer for less than any other manufacturer in the industry.

The Willys-Utility Truck can make five to ten calls while a horse vehicle makes one. It will do 200% to 300% more work and it will make the cost of your individual deliveries the lowest in the history of your business.

The Willys-Utility Truck is the lowest priced truck of its size and capacity built. It costs 30% less than any other similar truck in the world. Get that—30% less than any other truck of equal power and ability.

With the cost less and the utility 200% to 300% greater it seems like good business judgment to, at least, investigate.

This truck is built in the largest exclusive truck factory in the world. It is designed and produced under the direct supervision of trained and practical truck experts.

This truck has a very powerful thirty horsepower motor, which is controlled by our patented governor. It is impossible for the truck to be driven over eighteen miles an hour. It has a heavy reinforced pressed steel frame; both the front and rear axles are unusually rugged; it has a selective transmission—three forward and one reverse; it has 34 x 4½ pneumatic tires on the front, and 36 x 3½ solid tires on the rear. The distribution of weight is correctly solved.

If you haul things you can use one or more of these Willys Utility trucks to advantage.

Let our representative call on you. A 'phone call will bring him immediately. And he'll have some interesting concrete illustrations and examples of how a Willys Utility Truck can broaden your business at a reduced cost.

Some Logic
(ours)
and Some Questions
(yours)
If Our Answers Are Satisfactory, You Will Become Owner of the Best Car in the World

"Let Me Think!"

IF every mechanical part—of the car you own is the best that the world is able to produce, then—

You are the owner of the best car in the world. Because—every man knows: A Whole ought to be equal to the Sum of All Its Parts.

Agreed. So much for logic. But—

QUESTION 1.

How is it possible for any one car to obtain the best in the world of each and every mechanical part?

Because specialists (not automobile makers, but specialists) in every case make the best parts. Proof of this is the fact that all the famous specialists below supply their parts to one or another of the highest priced cars.

QUESTION 2.

Couldn't the Best Car in the World be made of parts which are not bought of specialists—if each maker of a $5000 car offered to furnish the best mechanical part he makes?

It could not. For instance, if a car were famous for its easy riding quality, its maker would not be able to furnish springs. He hasn't any springs to sell. The reason is that the Detroit Steel Products Company makes springs for all high priced cars. Therefore, this "best car in the world" would have no springs.

For exactly the same reason it would have no chassis, no starting or lighting system, no wheels, no demountable rims, no accessories whatever. It would not even have Timken bearings, transmission or axles!

The only way to own the Best Car In The World is to buy the car which is entirely built of the parts which $4500 and $5000 cars buy of the great specialists.

The new Cole, series nine, is the only car built wholly of these famous specialist parts.

If the master car builders of Europe were to combine their talents on one car of all-round service qualities to challenge the American cars, this new Cole model would have to be selected to represent America.

GIANTS DEFEATED BY BROWN, OLD-TIME FOE--YACHTING--GOLF--TURF

AGED MINER BROWN CHASTISES GIANTS

Reds' Farewell to Polo Grounds a 5 to 1 Victory—Schauer and Showers.

The venerable, worn figure of Mordecai Brown, with three useful digits attached to his pitching hand, emerged from the dusty, cob-webbed archives of the baseball past and stalked boldly out on the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon, where he told the Giants that it was about time they were informed that there are a few other teams in this league besides the New Yorks that could win a game.

Brownie's argument carried considerable weight—just about enough to shape up numerically into a 5 to 1 Zinzinnattee victory.

When the Reds got through winning the game off Art Fromme, Mr. McGraw exposed to public gaze two young pitchers who will be in town a long time before folks will be able to pronounce their names. Ferdinand Schupp and Rube Schauer are the suspects in question, each being permitted to pitch an inning.

Schauer was bought out in the Wisconsin cornstalks on the "what-do-we-care-for-expense" plan. He cost anywhere from $1.98 to $15,000. Schauer pronounces his name "Shower," and all the merry wags took occasion to perpetrate sparkling quips about the young stranger's title. Some said his first name was April, but it isn't; it's Rube.

When Schauer began to pitch in the ninth inning rain began to fall, so somebody said that it never Schauers, but it pours. As there seems to be no law against this sort of thing, there is no telling where the comedy will end.

As this was the last appearance of the Reds here this year, the crowd was the smallest of the season, not more than 2,500 fans being in at the valedictory. The New York crowds have been very patient and tolerant toward Cincinnati and have watched them lose game after game this season without protest. Joseph Faversham Tinker wound up his season here in a blaze of glory, and besides hammering out a home run in the sixth inning, he covered acres of territory with boyish agility. The next time Joe comes here he hopes that he will be a free man again and will be given a chance to live down his connection with the Redlegs.

A touch of rough stuff was instilled into the Reds' farewell by Heinie Groh, who deemed it necessary to pick on poor old Hank O'Day and make remarks about his eyesight. O'Day's sight wasn't so bad that he could not see Heinie all the way to the clubhouse. The umpire called a strike on Groh and Heinie told Mr. O'Day that he couldn't stand in a glass cage at high noon and see daylight. Now that's not a nice thing to say, is it? This is Mr. O'Day now speaking: "You're out of the game, you are," (finger pointing at Groh.) And so he was.

The Reds bunched hits on Fromme and caught him when he was a bit wild. Miner Brown pitched as well as he did years ago, and was impressively stylish in the pinches, refusing absolutely to permit the New Yorks to hit when runners were on the highways.

Marsans got an infield hit in the second inning, Fletcher throwing the ball wildly to first while Marsans raced to second. After Hoblitzel skied out Tinker singled to right, scoring Marsans. Dodge then hit into a double play. In the fourth Bates walked and Groh fouled to Shafer, after which Groh was ejected from the meadows for giving Mr. O'Day too many earfulls of conversation.

Marsans also got a pass and Hoblitzel singled to short centre, filling the bases. Tinker lifted a sacrifice fly to left, scoring Marsans. Fromme was rudely treated in the sixth. After Bates had grounded to Merkle, Egan hit a double to left, and Fletcher tossed Marsans out at first. Hoblitzel singled to right, scoring Egan, and when McLean missed Murray's throw in at the plate Hobby went to second.

Tinker's farewell slap at New York was a mighty crash into the left-field bleachers, which sent Hoblitzel home ahead of him.

The lone Giant run appeared in the seventh inning. After Larry Doyle went out meekly at first Merkle got a hit in the vicinity of third base. He went to second while Murray was being thrown out at first and scored on a single to left by Snodgrass. The score:

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27.—St. Louis walked away with to-day's game with Philadelphia by 15 to 4. Brennan was driven off the rubber in two innings, during which the visitors piled up eight runs and ten hits. Imlay lasted three innings, Rixey one, and Haislip, formerly of the Dallas (Texas) Club, finished the game. Philadelphia also hit the ball hard, but could not bunch safeties with run-getting effect. In six times at bat Oakes made four singles and a triple. Mowrey and Knabe each made four hits and Whitted and Luderus secured three hits each. The score:

Wilmington's Tri-State Pennant.

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 27.—Although the local team lost to-day's game to Trenton by 5 to 2, Wilmington has clinched the Tri-State League pennant for 1913. This was made certain by the defeat to-day of York by Atlantic City. Wilmington still has six games to play. If the locals lose them all and York should win all five contests yet to be played, Wilmington would still win the pennant by half a game. Including to-day's contests, Wilmington has won 63 games and lost 42, while York has won 57 and lost 49. The season will close next Monday.

Yankees Tie with Jamestown.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The Jamestown independent team played the New York Americans to a standstill here this afternoon, the score being 2 to 2 after eleven innings. The game was called to allow the visitors to catch a train. Brown was strong in the pinches and was accorded sensational support. Keating allowed three hits and one earned run in the first five innings. Wolter finished the game. The score:

Ten Eyck to Coach Duluth Oarsmen

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 27.—James F. Ten Eyck, Jr., was to-day given a three-year contract to continue as coach of the Duluth Boat Club rowing crews. The salary figure is withheld. Mr. Ten Eyck was engaged by the boat club in 1911. The oarsmen under him were winners in the international and Boston regattas.

JIM VAUGHN WINS; SUPERBAS BLANKED

Former Erratic Yankee Pitcher Brings His First Victory to the Cubs.

Johnny Evers notified Big Jim Vaughn yesterday that it was about time he started something in the National League, so Jim started out for his first victory. Last week Big Jim got a chance after the Cubs had been distanced at the Polo Grounds, but yesterday was the first time the ex-Yankee began a game since joining the Cubs. When Jim's effort was completed the Cubs were resting on the heavy end of a 3 to 0 score.

In his late career as a Yankee, just before he rocked himself out of the American League, Jim was not noted for his ability to win games, strike out opposing batsmen, or hit safely. As a National Leaguer the big fellow showed a little of each. Besides blanking the Superbas in his first journey over the nine-inning route Vaughn chased eight of them back to the bench on strikes, and he delivered one clean hit himself, this wallop starting the rally that brought victory to the Cubs in the seventh inning. All of his old-time faults were carefully hidden in yesterday's game, and the big fellow may be destined for more success in the majors than he experienced in his first attempt.

The Cubs and Ed Reulbach lived up to tradition for six innings, the visitors being next to helpless before their one-time teammate. Three little hits, coming at intervals of two innings, was the extent of the Chicago stick work against Reulbach, and when wildness or loose playing opened up avenues for Chicago runs the ex-Cub had his former comrades even more helpless. But in the seventh the Cubs jolted tradition and Reulbach at the same time.

It was from an unexpected quarter that the trouble developed. Vaughn, with two strike-outs to show for his previous trips to the plate, and the future holding a similar fate on his fourth visit, was the first to face Reulbach in the seventh inning, and he spanked the first ball pitched to him for a single to left field. Wee Tommy Leach bunted along the first base line and Reulbach tagged him out while Vaughn advanced to second. Johnny Evers grinned at Reulbach and Big Ed could not locate the plate, passing his former boss to first. Ward Miller crashed into a Reulbach special and the ball hopped down the left field foul line, eluding Zach Wheat when he tried to check its progress. The hit chased Vaughn home from second base, so it is easily understood that it was a prodigious punch. Evers got home from first on the same blow and Miller pulled up at third, but neither burst of speed can be compared to Vaughn's travel from second base to the plate. On Phelan's grounder to Fisher, Miller was run down and tagged out, Phelan reaching second. Saier hit another tripple into left field and Phelan hurried home with the final run.

The Superbas were in position to score several times, and only one inning failed to produce a prospective chance for the home team, but it always went to waste. In the seventh Vaughn fanned Otto Miller and Pinch Hitter Hummel with two on bases, retiring the side. In the eighth Brooklyn had two on the paths with none out, and in the ninth Smith opened with a double, but all the opportunities drifted. A stop by Smith and a catch by Saier were the fielding features. The score:

GERMAN SAILORS HERE.

Sonder Yachts Weighed and Measured for Races Next Week.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 27.—The German helmsmen, main and jib sheet men, who are to handle the three sonder yachts—Angela VI., Serum, and Wittelsbach X.—in the fifth international series between Germany and the United States, all reported for duty to-day. The races will begin Monday. John W. Duncker, representing the Kaiserlicher Yacht Club of Kiel, and Chairman of the Board of Umpires for the series, is expected here to-morrow with Mrs. Duncker.

The six yachts, three from each country, which will race for the President Wilson and Governor Foss Cups, have been weighed and measured, and all have been found to be within the requirements governing this special, or sonder, type of boat. In other words, the total water-line length, beam, and draught is not over 32 feet; their sail area is a trifle less than 550 square feet, and their weight exceeds 4,170 pounds. The Germany yachts cost a trifle less than $1,500 and the American boats not over $2,400.

The German boats were certified yesterday by Prof. H. H. Everett, the official measurer, while the American defenders—Cima, Ellen, and Sprig—were measured to-day.

Brooklyn Yacht Club Meeting.

Members of the Brooklyn Yacht Club held their monthly meeting at the Jamaica Bay Yacht Club yesterday. During the afternoon the yachtsmen went for a sail on the bay, using the flagship Sculpin II., the property of Commodore Conrad V. Dykeman; Wunderlust, which belongs to Commodore P. J. Steiner, Bayswater Yacht Club, and the sloop Curlew, the racing boat that flies the burgee of Vice Commodore Wilson, Jamaica Bay Yacht Club. The meeting followed a dinner at the Jamaica Bay Yacht Club. Only routine business was transacted. Among others at the dinner were C. M. Camp, President of the Yacht Racing Association of Gravesend Bay; George R. Le Sauvage, Commodore of the Bensonhurst Yacht Club; Commodore Conrad V. Dykeman, Commodore P. J. Steiner, C. A. Kelly, John N. Portor, A. C. Soper, F. A. Aldrich, Dr. C. L. Reeve, E. L. Goldschmidt, N. B. Smythe, John Lewis, A. MacDougall, W. Graham, G. W. Tucker, D. C. Griffen, D. A. Illinois Swimmers' Clean Sweep.

PUT IN BAY, Ohio, Aug. 27.—Illinois Athletic Club swimmers made a clean sweep to-day, capturing each one of the events constituting the Central States championship series, a feature of "aquatic sports week," a continuation of the Interlake Yachting Association's Perry's victory centennial programme. They won easily from the best entries of Cleveland, Detroit, and Toledo athletic clubs. Winners in the several events were:

50-Yard Swim—A. C. Raichel, Illinois A. C.
150-Yard Dash.—A. J. Hebner, Illinois A. C.
Plunge and Swim Under Water.—L. C. Reitman, Illinois A. C., who was in the water at a depth of 15 feet for 55 seconds.
Quarter-Mile Swim.—A. J. Hebner.

The Culver Summer Naval School crew of Culver, Ind., won the cutter contest by ten lengths in a close brush with a crew representing the naval training ship Essex. The Essex crew won the "chippy race" for naval militiamen weighing under 135 pounds.

F. M. GOULD'S GOLF BEST.

Sixty-six Starters in New York Golf Club Tournament.

The qualifying and first match rounds of the annual tournament of the New York Golf Club were run off yesterday over the public links at Van Cortlandt Park. Frank M. Gould of the home organization won the medal in the testing circuit with a score of 75, a stroke better than C. H. Smith of the Scottish-American Golf Club. Gould was also successful in the match play, his opponent being Smith. Gould had to go to the last green to win.

Once more the luck of the draw brougt together some of the star performers, with the result that besides the elimination of Smith. W. F. Purcell of the Scottish-Americans won over John Bredemus, unattached, the former champion all-around athlete. Purcell beat Bredemus 5 up and 4 to play. This makes it necessary for Gould and Purcell to come together to-day. Purcell was the finalist against J. A. Boot, last year's winner, but Boot could not play this year, for he is in California.

There were sixty-six starters, twelve more than a year ago, and at the last moment two alterations were made in the original conditions. Besides the golfers beaten in the second round to-day continuing for a consolation prize, those beaten yesterday afternoon will form a beaten sixteen division for a special cup, while the other change was the addition of a flight of sixteen to the thirty-two already provided. The summary:

One-Arm Caddie Star in Golf.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 27.—The caddies of the Essex County Country Club today started their annual handicap golf tournament, playing the first and second rounds. The performances by the youngsters were generally good, but the golf of Louis Martucci, the one-armed assistant caddie master, who recently established the amateur record of the course, was the star, turning in scores of 73 in the morning and 72 in the afternoon. He won both matches, though he started four strokes behind scratch. In the forenoon he beat Joe Bradley, who had 7 strokes on him, and in the afternoon match he defeated Jack Quinn, who was allowed 5 strokes. His total of 145 for the thirty-six holes has never been equalled by an amateur at the course. Fred C. Reynolds, the club's golf captain, has donated a watch as the prize for the winner in the first and second sixteens. The semi-finals and finals will be played to-morrow. The summaries:

First Sixteen—John Quinn, (5,) beat H. Vincent, (5,) 3 up and 2 to play; L. Martucci (plus 4) beat Joseph Bradley, (7,) 4 up and 3 to play; William Kent (5) beat James Hanley, (6,) 8 up and 7 to play; Jesse Smooks (3) beat Edward O'Connor, (3,) by 2 up; Harry Brothers (8) beat Edward Baldwin, (3,) 2 up and 1 to play; William Walker (6) beat Ronald McGuirk, (3,) 2 up and 1 to play; J. O'Connor (5) beat John Bradley, (3,) 8 up; G. Martin (7) beat Robert Wolfe, (6,) 3 up and 2 to play.

Second Round—Martucci beat Quinn, 1 up; Kent beat Smooks, 2 up; Baldwin beat McGuirk, 3 up and 2 to play; Martin beat O'Connor, 2 up.

Second Sixteen—Frank Kearney (10) beat Joseph McCarthy, (2,) 3 up and 2 to play; John Sharkey (9) beat William Higgins, (14,) 8 up and 7 to play; Tom Freeman (2) beat Charles Mack, (scratch,) 2 up and 1 to play; James Higgins (6) beat R. Morrino, (2,) 3 up and 2 to play; Henry Savage (scratch) beat Paul Sinkler, (scratch,) 2 up and 1 to play; Michael Brennan (10) beat John McNulty, (10,) 2 up; R. Lyons (scratch) beat Martin McNulty, (10,) 2 up and 1 to play; James Kearney (scratch) beat James Martucci, (9,) 6 up and 5 to play.

Second Round.—Kearney beat Sharkey, 6 up and 5 to play; Freeman beat Morrino, 6 up and 5 to play; Brennan beat Savage, 7 up and 6 to play; Kearney beat Lyons, 2 up.

BOSTON YACHT WINS.

Little Rhody II. Takes First Race in New Class G Series.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Aug. 27.—Little Rhody II., owned by William M. Wood of Boston, won the first race of the first series for the cup offered by the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club off Centre Island here to-day. The trophy is for the Q Class and the deed of gift states that the boat and not the owner scores on the prize.

The race to-day was to windward and return. Four boats, two from Boston and two from Gravesend Bay, started. The down East yachts did the better work, Little Rhody finishing first over the ten-mile course. The second craft to finish was Manataqua, the new Owen-designed craft, which belongs to Arthur W. Stevens. She was beaten by 4 minutes 57 seconds actual time. The summary:

First race for the Seawanhaka Cup for Class Q yachts. Start, 3:25. Course, 10 miles.

Wishart Makes Fast Time at Elgin.

ELGIN, Ill., Aug. 27.—All previous practice records for the Elgin Auto Speedway were smashed during the tuning up for Friday and Saturday's races to-day, when Spencer Wishart was clocked on two successive laps at 6:46 for the eighth and a fraction miles speedway. This gave him an average speed of seventy-eight miles per hour. All but one or two of the pilots entered in the races had their mounts on the track to-day. De Palma and Gil Anderson let their speed creations out to the limit and thundered around the course in seven minutes flat.

Travers Island Swimming.

Fancy diving for the Amateur Athletic Union championship will be seen at Travers Island on Sept. 6, under the auspices of the New York Athletic Club. All the best men in the country have announced their intention of appearing at this meet, which will include as extra events the 880-yard American championship swim and a 110-yard handicap. Entries for the championship events close next Monday with James E. Sullivan, Chairman, 21 Warren Street, New York, while the handicap race entrants close with B. J. Giannini, New York A. C., Central Park South, New York.

DAVIS CUP MATCHES AGAIN NEXT YEAR

Australia Will Send Strong Team to Recapture Tennis Trophy.

Davis Cup matches are assured for 1914. This announcement was made last night by Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco, the National tennis champion, at a dinner to the members of the American Davis Cup team at Delmonico's, Forty-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue. While teams from England, Germany, South Africa, Canada, and France are expected, Champion McLoughlin, in the course of his speech, said Alfred Dunlop of Australia had written to a prominent tennis player in America, saying he would leave Australia on March 15, 1914, and expected to be accompanied by A. F. Wilding, who defeated McLoughlin in the championship round for the All-England championship, and Norman E. Brooke, two of the best players in Australasia. Should the trio compete in the Davis Cup matches the task of defending the trophy will be a difficult one, as the three players are classed among the eight leading exponents of tennis in the world.

The dinner, which was in honor of the Davis Cup players, was attended by many of the leading tennis players in America. With three exceptions, every title holder since the first championship was played, was present. The guests of honor were: Harold H. Hackett of New York, Captain; R. Norris Williams, 2d., Philadelphia; Wallace F. Johnson, Philadelphia; Maurice E. McLoughlin, San Francisco, members of the cup team; Raymond D. Little, who was selected but did not accompany the team, and Dwight Davis, the donor of the cup.

Robert D. Wrenn, President of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association presided and the banquet room was decorated with American, English and German flags. President Wrenn briefly reviewed the Davis Cup Competition in England and then introduced Dwight Davis, whose remarks consisted of a history of the origin of the competition, which he said was for the purpose of establishing a better understanding between countries engaged in sports and raising the standard of athletics throughout the world.

Capt. Hackett, who followed Mr. Davis, paid a glowing tribute to the sportsmanlike qualities of the other teams in the Davis Cup matches and the treatment the American players received in England. He gave McLoughlin the credit for the return of the cup and praised the work of the other mmbers of the American team.

William C. de Mille, who filled the position of toastmaster, said he regretted that the British writers should suggest that the cup was won by a trick, and suggested that in order to prevent future tricks the service of McLoughlin and others should be limited to ten miles an hour. His humorous remarks were well received, as were those of Robert H. Davis, who is an uncle of McLoughlins. Davis related the history of the champion and explained how he obtained his remarkable racquet wielding abilities.

McLoughlin received a splendid reception and loud applause followed his announcement of the visit of the Australian team in 1914. He reviewed the tennis playing of the French, German, and English teams, and said that outside of Australia the most likely contender for the trophy was Germany, which country had made remarkable strides in tennis during the last few years. The other speakers included R. Norris Williams, M. D. Whitman, William J. Clothier, and other former tennis champions, George T. Adee, and others. Among those present were:

Robert D. Wrenn, President, United States National Lawn Tennis Association; Dwight F. Davis, donor of the Davis Cup; Holcomb Ward, Maurice E. McLoughlin, National singles champion; R. Norris Williams, Harold H. Hackett, captain Davis Cup team; former Champion Malcolm D. Whitman, E. C. Conlin, Robert H Davis, Karl H. Behr, P. A. Valle, Dr. William Rosenbaum, Ollie S. Campbell, George L. Wrenn, William J. Clothier, S. W. Merrihew, Lyle E. Mahan, Miles Charlock, former champion Henry W. Slocum, Charles M. Bull, Jr., former champion William A. Larned, Raymond D. Little, George T. Adee, Fred H. Hovey, William C. de Mille, Stivi Club; George Phelps, Carlton R. Gardner, Charles R. Leonard, Henry Torrence, Harry Parker, H. C. Martin, O. W. Heineke, William M. Chadburn, Frank L. Slazenger, Homer M. Moore, Edwin F. Torrey, A. L. Hoskins, Palmer E. Presbry, S. Howard Voshell, Dr. Wallace Krugler, Dr. Robert Chapman, W. B. Bourne, Mr. Howland, Ralph Baggs, Mr. Lukin, Mr. Miller, and Dr. Chapbourne.

International Lawn Tennis.

NIAGARA ON THE LAKE, Ont., Aug. 27.—The weather to-day favored the players in the International Tennis Tournament and the courts were fast. The hard-fought set between Baird, the Canadian champion, and Devereux of Utica, interrupted by the storm yesterday, ended in Baird's favor, 7—5, 6—2. Baird's speedy driving and his smashing of high lobs from the back of the green were the features.

Continuing the second round of the singles, Hall, Toronto, beat Wright, Buffalo, 6—3, 6—2; Leggett, Toronto, beat Waugh, Fort Erie, 7—5, 5—7, 7—5; Sherwell, Toronto, beat Bissell, Buffalo, 6—1, 6—3; Seaver, Massachusetts champion, beat Glassco, Toronto, 6—2, 6—3; Calder, Toronto, beat McLean, 6—2, 9—11, 6—4; Boultbee, Toronto, beat O'Grady, 6—2, 6—3.

In the ladies' singles Mrs. H. Bickle, Toronto, Canadian champion, played against the American doubles champion, Mrs. Robert Williams of Philadelphia, and went down to defeat after a hard-fought three-set game, 6—1, 2—6, 6—2; Miss Mary Brown of Los Angeles beat Miss Boultbee of Toronto, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Edith Roach of Boston beat Miss Evelyn MacDonald, Toronto, 6—0, 6—0.

Baird and Sherwell, Canadian doubles champions, won from Larned and McLean in straight sets.

REILLY FAILS TO APPEAR.

In Substitute Bout at St. Nicholas Lavinsky Knocks Out Muller.

The scheduled main attraction at the St. Nicholas A. C. last night was not decided, through the non-appearance of Young Reilly, who was advertised to box Johnny Lore at ten rounds. It was stated that the west side lad did not relish a battle with Lore, and in the language of the talent he "ran out." In their stead a heavyweight bout was put on, with Battling Lavinsky, who formerly fought as Barney Williams, and Nick Muller of the Bronx as opponents.

The latter lasted six rounds, when he received his quietus, after his seconds had thrown the sponge in the ring to save their man further punishment. He had a moment before the end been sent to the floor with a right facer, immediately following which defeat was admitted by the seconds. The inattention of the referee caused Muller to be put out for keeps, but he recovered in about five minutes, and was seemingly all right when he left the ring.

Joe Stacey won a well earned victory over the Fighting Irishman, Paddy Callahan, who seemed to be bent upon knocking his man out. In the meanwhile Stacey delivered numerous rights and lefts and, although he was on the ragged edge during the final three or four runds, his big lead during the early part rather easily got him the popular decision.

Young Clancy beat Silent Martin in six rounds, while in the final bout Young Lustig earned any honors which might be awarded in a ten-round go with Young Wagner, who hung on and wrestled most of the bout.

50-MINUTE CYCLE RECORD.

Chapple and St. Ives Motor 67 Miles on Brighton Track.

Arthur Chapple, teamed with Henri St. Yves, set a new track record last night at the Brighton Beach Stadium when they won the fifty-minute team race, covering a distance of 67 miles and 2 laps. A full mile behind came Martin Kessler and Paul Ohne, with 66 miles and 2 laps, and third place went to Mike Costello and George Mercier, credited with 65 miles and 1 lap. The former record for fifty minutes was 61 miles and 2 laps, made in a recent seventy-five-minute race by Davis and St. Ives.

In the first fifteen minutes of the race the field hung well together, all in good positions, and without making any attempts at stealing a lap. When Chapple took up his place in the period of twenty-five minutes it was seen that he was out for speed, and he led the field a merry chase in keeping up with him.

When the 35-minute score was posted the leaders were credited with 49 miles. From here on Chapple in taking up the relief used all his speed and at the finish managed to encircle the other four teams twice. At 45 minutes the leaders traveled 61 miles and 2 laps, and in the last 5 minutes took the new record.

Two short-distance races served as preliminaries to the 50-minute grind. In the first, a two-mile invitation Chester Hagan of Brooklyn, was returned the winner, leading home Paul Lambert of Cleveland, and Pete Cronin of Brooklyn.

One lap handicap proved too much of a "give-away" for Mike Costello in the 5-mile handicap and his field of three, consisting of Fischer, Cronin and Sperl, all beat him to the finish line, finishing in the order named. The summary:

Two-Mile Invitation.—Won by Chester Hagan, Brooklyn; Paul Lambert, Cleveland, second; Pete Cronin, Brooklyn, third. Time 1:32 2-5.

Five-Mile Handicap.—Won by Ray Fischer, Brooklyn, (1 lap;) Pete Cronin, Brooklyn, (1 lap,) second; George Sperl, Brooklyn, (1 lap,) third. Time—3:31 2-5.

Fifty-Minute Team Race.—Won by Arthur Chapple and Henri St. Yves, distance, 67 miles and 2 laps; Martin Kessler and Paul Ohne, distance, 66 miles and 2 laps, second; Mike Costello and George Mercier, distance, 65 miles and 1 lap, third.

Clark, Krebs, Kaiser Cycle Victors.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 27.—Jackie Clark, the Australian cyclist, "killed off" the aspirations of another contender for sprint honors to-night at the Newark Velodrome when he defeated Robert Spears, a countryman, in two straight heats of a mile match race. Clark went out in front in each heat, and in the final spurt more than matched his speed with that of the lanky Spears. Clark won the second heat by more than the length of his machine.

National Champion Frank L. Kramer again took a beating in a handicap race, being unable to reach the leading handicap men in the one-mile event. Floyd Krebs and Eddie Root were out in front after the first lap and finished in that order, the former having 50 yards and the latter 45 yards. Percy Lawrence, who started from the 40-yard line, beat Kramer, the scratch, out for third place.

Harry Kaiser, the Bronx amateur rider, won a notable victory in the one-mile open race, where he outclassed a crack field, including Aubrey Taylor, the Australian champion, and William Hanley of San Francisco. The New York rider by his work to-night, following so closely upon his victory over Champion McDougall in a handicap race on Sunday, established himself as one of the leading amateur riders of the country. His time was 2:13 4-5.

CRUSADE AGAINST BOXING.

Sport Conducted by Professional Clubs in California Is Condemned.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 27.—Official approval was given to the crusade for the prohibition of boxing in California last night when the county supervisors adopted resolutions declaring this the only means to prevent prize ring fatalities such as the death last Saturday of John ("Bull") Young after his fight with Jess Willard. The sport as now conducted by professional athletic clubs was condemned.

Announcement has been made that the initiative law would be invoked at once to bring the matter before the voters of the State. The proposed measure has not been drafted as yet.

Ritchie and Welsh Sign for Bout.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 27.—Articles for the world's lightweight championship bout here between Willie Ritchie and Freddie Welsh, Sept. 20, were signed to-day. Forfeits will be posted to-morrow. Jim Griffin of San Francisco probably will referee.

Notes of the Boxers.

The Athletic Committee of the Newark Turn Verein decided to hold a three months' series of boxing bouts for amateurs in their clubhouse, 211 Bruce Street, Newark, on the first Saturday and Monday evenings of October, November, and December. The following weights will be contested: 108, 115, 125, 135, and 145 pounds. Valuable prizes will be awarded to the first, second, and third men in each class, while a point trophy will be given to the club whose representatives score the greatest number of points during the series.

Three ten-round bouts will be contested to-morrow night at the New Polo A. A. The pairs will be Bobby Williams vs. Al Thomas, Kid Ghetto vs. Willie Chandler, and Jack Keating against Larry Coyle.

CRACK 3-YEAR-OLDS MATCHED FOR A RACE

Belmont's Rock View and Johnson's Cock o' the Walk to Run for Cup on Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 27.—August Belmont's Rock View and Frederick Johnson's Cock o' the Walk are to meet in a match race for a pewter cup next Monday over the course of the Saratoga Racing Association. The distance will be either a mile and a furlong or a mile and a quarter, and each colt will carry 112 pounds. Mr. Belmont was not in Saratoga to-day, but before he left he expressed a willingness to match Rock View against the Johnson three-year-old, and that is the only reason that the minor details of the match cannot be announced at this time.

This race is one of the most important sporting events of the year, and it will go a long way toward settling the championship in the three-year-old division. It is to be purely a sporting affair, and the only trophy is to be a pewter cup that the loser must present to the winner. Before the two colts were shipped from Belmont Park it would have seemed ridiculous to give Cock o' the Walk a chance against Rock View, but it is different now. At Belmont Park the only defeat that Rock View suffered was a fluke, when Prince Eugene took his measure in the Belmont Stakes, while he had won the Withers, Realization, and the Brooklyn Derby. Since his arrival here he won the Travers, but he was well beaten in the running of the Saranac Handicap.

Cock o' the Walk, on the other hand, has won all his starts at Saratoga. He began by taking the Saratoga Handicap the opening day, and has followed that by scoring in the Champlain and the Huron Handicaps. In this last named stake he carried 123 pounds, and the impressive manner in which he won gave Mr. Johnson every reason to believe that he was capable of beating the son of Rock Sand under equal weights.

The racing to-day was excellent, and it marked another notable victory for the Western division, when M. B. Gruber's Little Nephew, carrying top weight, was returned winner of the Adirondack Handicap over a first-class field. There was an element of luck in his victory, for, while he beat Harry Payne Whitney's Blackbroom in handy fashion, Capt. E. B. Cassatt's Spearhead, who finished third, and J. L. Holland's Gainer, which was fourth, each met with a deal of hard luck, and enough to have changed the result had the break been an even one. Gainer was almost left at the post, and he had to race all around his field and close an immense gap to be fourth, while Spearhead was hardly better off, and he ran into third place.

A race of almost equal importance was the mile handicap, and it was marked by another brilliant performance by a member of the Cassatt string, when Flying Fairy stopped the winning streak of Frederick Johnson's Reybourn. She beat him at his own game by racing him off his feet, and still having enough left to withstand the determined stretch challenge of Sam Jackson, who on his last previous appearance had won the Merchants' and Citizens' Handicap. The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Selling, for three-year-olds and upward, $400 added; six furlongs. Won by J. H. Benz's b. g. Joe Knight, 118 pounds, (Butwell,) 8 to 5, 1 to 3, and out; E. F. Condron's Moncrief, 107, (Ward,) 15 to 1, 3 to 1, and out, second; J. Whalen's Honey Bee, 108, (J. McTaggart,) 6 to 5, 1 to 3, and out, third. Trifler also ran. Won by one length; four lengths between second and third. Time—1:14.

SECOND RACE.—Steeplechase handicap, selling, for three-year-olds and upward, $500 added; about two miles. Won by B. Tuckerman, Jr.'s, ch. g. Maltbie, 155 pounds, (Klink,) 4 to 1, 6 to 5, and 1 to 2; R. J. Cremen's Juverence, 137, (Kermath,) 2 to 1, 3 to 5, and 1 to 4, second; Miss Chamblet's Bill Andrews, 146, (Fain,) 18 to 5, 4 to 5, and 1 to 3, third. Gun Cotton and Octopus also ran. Won by six lengths; five lengths between second and third. Time—4:24.

THIRD RACE.—Selling; for three-year-olds and upward; $500 added; one mile. Won by T. G. Enright's ch. s. Grassmere, 109, (J. McTaggart,) 7 to 20 and out; R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s, Beaucoup, 111, (Butwell,) 4 to 1, 3 to 5, and 1 to 4, second; J. M. Zimmer's Inspector Lestrade, 114, (Davies,) 12 to 1, 2 to 1, and 1 to 2, third. Sir Denrah and Servicence also ran. Won by one and one-half lengths; one and one-half lengths between second and third. Time—1:41 4-5.

FOURTH RACE.—Adirondack Handicap; for two-year-olds; $2,500 guaranteed; six furlongs. Won by M. B. Gruber's b. g. Little Nephew, 125, (Killingworth,) 3 to 1, even, and 1 to 2; H. P. Whitney's Black Broom, 116, (Ambrose,) 15 to 1, 6 to 1, and 3 to 1, second; Capt. E. B. Cassatt's Spearhead, 106, (Davies,) 20 to 1, 8 to 1, and 4 to 1, third. Gainer, Roamer, Flittergold, Punch Bowl, Mr. Sniggs, and Vandergrift also ran. Won by three-quarters of a length; three-quarters of a length between second and third. Time—1:15.

FIFTH RACE.—Handicap, all ages, $600 added; one mile. Won by Capt. E. B. Cassatt's br. f. Flying Fairy, 107 pounds, (Davies,) 6 to 1, 2 to 1, and even; V. M. McGinniss's Sam Jackson, 120, (Loftus,) 8 to 1, 2 to 1, and 1 to 2, second; F. Johnson's Reybourn, 112, (A. Wilson,) 6 to 1, 2 to 1, and even, third. Coy Lad, Ocean Blue, Mission, Bally Cliff, Lady Lightning, and Shakleton also ran. Won by one length; two lengths between second and third. Time—1:40 2-5.

SIXTH RACE.—Selling, for two-year-olds, $400 added; five and one-half furlongs; Won by J. M. Zimmer's ch. c. RUMSON BEATS QUAKERS.

First of Matches for Borden Cup a Victory for Home Team.

In the first of the matches for the Rumson Country Club Cup and the individual prizes presented by Bertram H. and Howard S. Borden, which was played on the field at Seabright yesterday, the home team defeated the Philadelphia Freebooters by a score of 11½ goals to 7½. Each of the teams was penalized a half goal for fouls.

Philadelphia conceded six goals to its opponents, who were handicapped at six, with Walter McClure, playing No. 2, the ranking man with three goals penalty. W. H. Tevis Huhn was the star of the Quaker aggregation, and, although greatly aided by L. J. Hunt, the former Squadron A player, was unable to roll up enough points for a victory. McClure showed to advantage time and again, and received the best of help from his mates.

To-morrow's game will bring together the Rumson Invaders and Great Neck. The first named have Devereux Milburn in their makeup, and a capital game is expected. The summary:

RUMSON C. C.	Hdc.	PHILADELPHIA.	Hdc.
1—W. S. Jones	1	1—A. C. Schwartz	2
2—Walter McClure	3	2—Philip Boyer	2
3—C. L. A. Whitney	1	3—W. H. T. Huhn	5
Back—Arthur Jones	1	Back—L. J. Hunt	3
Total	6	Total	12

Goals earned—Rumson, 6; allowed by handicap, 6; lost by penalty, ½. Total—11½. Goals earned—Philadelphia, 8; allowed by handicap, 0; lost by penalty, ½. Total, 7½.

NOTES OF THE ATHLETES.

Under the sanction of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union the Staten Island Fair Association will stage a set of track and field games next Saturday afternoon at Dongan Hills, Staten Island, the prizes for which are said to eclipse any given this season for similar sports. The following events, open to all registered A. A. U. men, will be decided: 100-yard dash, handicap; 440-yard run, handicap; one-mile run, handicap; three-mile run, handicap; half-mile run for novices, and running high jump, handicap. There will also be a one-mile relay race, handicap, for members of clubs, Young Men's Christian Association, Church Athletic League, Catholic Athletic League, Recreation Centres, and Intersettlement A. A.

Entry blanks have been issued for the second annual games of the Young Men's Hebrew Association Athletic League, to be held at Pelham Bay Park Sunday afternoon, Sept. 7. The following events will be held: For juniors under 18 years of age, 75-yard dash, 150-yard dash, 880-yard run, putting eight-pound shot, and running broad jump. For seniors 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 880-yard run, twelve-pound shot put, and running high jump. For seniors and juniors, two-mile run and one-mile relay, each man to run 440 yards.

The Century Road Club of America will hold an invitation 100-mile moonlight run under the auspices of the New York State Division next Saturday night, starting from Columbus Circle at 7 P. M. The Brooklyn contingent will be met at Richmond Hill, from which place the riders will journey along the Merrick Road to Bayshore and Babylon. Fast riding in this event will be taboo.

The New York Caledonian Club will hold its fifty-seventh annual sports next Monday at Washington Park, Maspeth. The games will begin at 11:30 A. M. Thirty events have been carded, and it is announced that $734 will be awarded in cash to the various winners. Nineteen events are open to the world. The five-mile race, for which prizes aggregating $300 will be given, will start at 5 P. M. sharp.

The New Jersey Division of the Century Road Club Association will hold a fifteen-mile open bicycle handicap next Sunday morning under sanction of the N. C. A. Twenty prizes will be awarded and entries will be received up to post time. The course can be reached from New York via Cortlandt Street Ferry to Jersey City, up Montgomery Street to Henderson Street to Mercer Street to Hudson County Boulevard, left four miles to Bayonne course.

OUR MEXICAN POLICY.

Cordial support of President Wilson's attitude upon the Mexican question, at this crisis, is inevitable and is right. He has acted according to his convictions, and in a spirit of broad humanity and exalted statesmanship. He has disregarded precedents in his friendly negotiations with the neighboring republic as he disregarded them yesterday in his appearance, personally, at a joint assemblage of both houses of Congress, to read his lucid and able message, setting forth the failure of the mission of mediation and his idea of the course the United States should pursue in regard to Mexico in the immediate future. But it should be said, at once, that while Mr. Wilson's message is an inspiring and candid document, reflecting, as Senator O'Gorman has said, "the sober thought of the nation" at this juncture, the reply of the Provisional Government of Mexico, through Mr. Gamboa, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, is also lucid and statesmanlike, free from rancor and pettiness. It is necessary to say this because the translation is obviously rude, verbal felicities in the Spanish language being exceedingly difficult to transfer into English. The repeated address, "Mr. Confidential Agent," though in the translated form it suggests irony, was never so intended by the writer.

The whole strength of the Mexican reply rests on the assertions of the Foreign Secretary in contradiction of our Government's statement that no progress has been made toward the establishment in the Mexican capital of a government which may enjoy the respect and obedience of the people. Mr. Gamboa declares that of the twenty-seven States, three Territories, and one Federal District, constituting the Republic of Mexico, eighteen States, the three Territories, and the Federal District are absolutely under control, and that the Provisional Government has 80,000 effective troops in the field. President Wilson, however, asserts in his message that while we have waited many months full of peril and anxiety for conditions in Mexico to improve, they have not improved but have grown worse; that "the territory in some "sort controlled by the provisional "authorities in Mexico City has "grown smaller, not larger"; that the prospect of pacification has seemed to grow more and more remote, and that "those who claim to constitute the "legitimate government have not "made good their claim."

The President's view of the situation, based, as it must be, on information from unprejudiced sources, we are all bound to accept. It cannot well be denied that "we are expected by "the Powers of the world to act as "Mexico's nearest friend." This is gracefully admitted by Mr. Gamboa, who says that both European and American Governments made use of their good offices to the end that Mexico should accord a hearing to President Wilson's personal envoy, and Mr. Wilson himself makes known the fact that "several of the great "Governments of the world have "given this Government their gen"erous moral support" in the effort toward mediation. The Mexicans, therefore, should not find it difficult to understand what our Government means when it says that "it does not "find itself in the same case," with "reference to the other nations of the "earth, concerning what is happening "and is likely to happen in Mexico."

Mr. Wilson may be justified in his belief that the American proposals were rejected "because the authori"ties at Mexico City had been grossly "misinformed and misled and be"lieved that the present Administra"tion did not speak for the people of "the United States." Mexico now knows that Congress and the people stand firmly behind the President in his treatment of the Mexican question. But the workings of the Latin-American mind are not easy to comprehend, and it is not safe to conjecture what the next move of the Provisional Government may be, or what effect the message of President Wilson may have upon the leaders of the revolt, who have been rather inactive of late, but have, assuredly, enjoyed, as the Mexican note intimates, too many opportunities to foment rebellion on our neutral soil.

President Wilson adheres firmly to his policy of non-intervention. He counsels strict neutrality and will forbid the exportation of arms and munitions of war of any kind from the United States to Mexico. He would have us pledge ourselves to be partisans of no Mexican party, and insists that our Government shall not act as a virtual umpire between the contestants. It would be well, also, if the activities of the various rebel juntas in this country could be wholly suppressed. These suggestions are all reassuring. There can be no great danger of a serious rupture if they are lived up to. That the President realizes the danger of the situation, however, is indicated by his advice that all Americans in Mexico should be urged to leave the country at once and assisted to get away by every possible means; but there is assurance that the fortunes of those who cannot get away will be watched vigilantly and that those responsible for any loss or suffering they may incur will be "held to a definite reckoning." Negotiations for friendly mediation are open to resumption at any time. The President is convinced that "the steadying pressure" of moral force will soon break down the barriers, and that "we shall triumph as Mex"ico's friends sooner than we could "triumph as her enemies."

Mexico's friends we are, assuredly, and the best and most useful friends she has. But the gravity of the situation cannot be ignored. No progress whatever has been made in our efforts to lighten the burdens of a distracted country, but it will be felt throughout the world that our Government has held with commendable firmness to a humane and broad-minded policy.

A FURTHER DUTY.

Mr. Mitchel must now see that if the Fusion ticket is to hold together at all he will have to make it clear beyond all doubt that he has broken with Mr. Hearst, and that he is no longer in any way subject to the Hearst influence. Being weak in judgment and altogether incompetent for the task it attempted to perform, the Fusion Committee made up its mind that it would be necessary to cater to the Hearst following and to the somewhat unauthenticated Independence League, as well as to that other political body of unknown present density and dimensions, the Progressives. It was in this spirit and for this reason that Mr. Mitchel was made the candidate for Mayor. If he does not take effective means to destroy the general belief that he is a Hearst candidate, he certainly cannot expect Mr. McAneny and Mr. Prendergast to make the canvass as the nominees exclusively of the Fusion movement, refusing to permit their names to be placed upon any other ticket.

How can he expect them to go through the campaign subject every day to the vilifying abuse of the man who is supposed to have got his own candidate put at the head of the ticket? In other circumstances Mr. McAneny and Mr. Prendergast would, of course, decline to give the aid and support of their names to a ticket put up in opposition to the Fusion candidates. But all minor points of campaign ethics would have to yield to controlling considerations of common decency. Mr. Mitchel cannot let it be any longer assumed that Mr. Hearst finds him acceptable because of his readiness to yield to the Hearst influence, unless he is willing to release his associates upon the ticket from all obligation to decline other support.

But it is surprising that any members of the Fusion Committee should take it upon themselves to censure Mr. Hearst for attacking their nominees. He is proceeding according to his ordinary custom and usage, with which, from many examples, the members of the Fusion Committee were already perfectly familiar.

SHORT-HAUL 'BUSES.

The city would drive a mighty poor bargain with the company which appeals to it for the installation of omnibuses to operate in its congested streets along "short-haul" routes, which, if followed from the Washington Arch to Harlem, would cost the passenger 20 cents with four fares of 5 cents each. For the privilege of exacting these fares the company would pay to the city a license fee of $10 a year for each omnibus. The company which now operates on Fifth Avenue and gives good service, charging but 10 cents upon the long route mentioned, pays more than this for its license. Secretary Cornell of the National Highways Protective Association has ascertained that the city receives for each motor stage now in operation $20—twice as much as the new company wishes to pay—plus 5 per cent. of its gross receipts on each vehicle; that brings the total to $496 of city revenue last year for every coach.

The 2,000 coaches which the new company would place on the city's streets would net the municipality at this rate $992,000, instead of the $20,000 which the company wishes to pay. Looked at merely from the point of view of receipts to the city, the proposal is absurd. But when it is considered that new rapid transit lines are being built with the express purpose of relieving the congestion on the surface and providing a commodious mode of travel for the entire population, it will be seen, we think, that the application merits little consideration.

THE COURT OF APPEALS VACANCIES.

Members of the Bar throughout the State and the committee named at the meeting of the representatives of the State and New York City Bar Associations in June are desirous that the principle of nonpartisanship shall be observed in the nominations for the two vacancies upon the Court of Appeals bench caused by the coming retirement of Chief Justice Cullen and Associate Justice Gray. The principle is sound; it is desirable that partisan considerations and interests should be laid aside when Justices are to be chosen, and more than once this plan has been adopted by the co-operation of both parties, with good results.

There is ground for hope that the parties may unite this year in making nominations for that bench. The State Committees have power to make the designations, but the Republicans are to hold an "unofficial" convention at which names to be recommended to their State Committee will be considered. The Democrats who last year refused the Republican overtures for union upon judiciary nominations may be in a more consenting mood this year, owing to troubles which have arisen in the party. The Justiceships are now very unevenly apportioned between the parties, Justice Werner being the only Republican, sitting with six Democrats, although three Republican Supreme Court Justices, Hiscock, Chase, and Miller, have been designated by the Executive to lend their aid in clearing up the Court of Appeals calendar.

A just recognition of merit of long service and of seniority should strongly commend Associate Justice Werner to the consideration of both parties and to that of the Progressives as well for the Chief Justiceship nomination. Justice Werner has been upon the Court of Appeals bench for thirteen years, having been first appointed by Gov. Roosevelt. He was elected to the place he now holds in 1904, on the nomination of the Republicans indorsed by the Democrats. His learning, his ability, his marked fitness for judicial office, and the great value of the service he has rendered on the Court of Appeals bench are universally recognized by the Bar and by the people of the State. By the test of the place he holds in his own community, which is one of the best of all tests, Justice Werner's character, standing, and qualifications are further made clear, since he was three times elected County Judge in Monroe County, twice by large majorities, and once without opposition, and after that he was raised to the Supreme Court bench with the support of both parties, the Democrats having indorsed his nomination. Upon the retirement of Chief Justice Cullen, Justice Werner will be the senior member of the court. That fact, his great experience, and his demonstrated ability and fitness constitute reasons that, it would seem, may well be controlling with all parties in the Chief Justiceship nomination to be made next month.

THE HOUSE OF GOVERNORS.

Elihu Root was right. The House of Governors as at present constituted, and as it sits to-day in Colorado Springs, is not composed of men fit to engineer uniform laws or interstate understandings. With any one of twenty things crying to be done, which are not within the province of the Federal Government, and which the States cannot undertake singly, the Governors have met five times, feasted, gossiped, and done nothing. The first meetings of the Governors related to conservation. That is a splendid subject of action. Mr. Roosevelt's and Mr. Pinchot's propaganda to save the forests was impotent because, in most of the States of the Union where the forests need conservation, they have passed completely into private hands and are under State jurisdiction exclusively. There is no reason why States should not take common action that would compel the private owners of forests, in President Taft's words, to "at"tend to those forests with a view "to the welfare of the community "of the neighbors who live there, or "of those who are affected by the "denudation of the land of the "trees." The Governors have done nothing to this end.

Yet the forests are vanishing so fast that they will in a generation or so go the way of the American bison, unless the felling of them is checked. In his masterly address to the National Civic Federation in Washington in January, 1910, Mr. Root instanced the ease with which the foreign powers of Europe mustered delegates specially trained to sit in congresses that resulted in the production of things in black and white—treaties for the mutual interests of them all. Although these foreign Powers have no such intimate bonds of friendship as the American States, they have held, since the congress in Vienna in 1815, over 120 conferences of such representatives.

These have been wholly voluntary, not compelled by any superior power. They have established an international postal union, rules for the protection of industrial property, patents, and copyrights; for sanitation of dwellings and prevention of diseases; for the abolition of the slave trade and of privateering; for rules of private international law; for the enforcement of humane measures in the conduct of war by sea; for uniform weights and measures throughout the greater part of the world; for the protection of labor, for telegraphic intercommunication, for the protection of ocean cables and of wireless telegraphy. Sixteen nations met and brought about the abolition of the sound dues imposed by Denmark; seventeen nations met, and, by an adequate payment, rid themselves of the duties imposed by Hanover upon the navigation of the river Elbe; twenty Powers united in securing the free navigation of the Scheldt; the procedure of the civil courts of fourteen European countries has been affected by mutual conferences; all the Powers having an interest in the Far East have conferred and acted regarding the prevention of the traffic in opium. These, and many other things, have been done by competent delegates of the jealous European Powers for their mutual benefit.

Why the American States have failed so lamentably in the same field of interstate negotiation must be because their delegates are not competent. Instead of a House of Governors who are intent upon junketing or making political capital for themselves, why not substitute a House of Delegates, made up yearly of experts specially charged with the functions of considering a group of interstate measures, covering some special field? The field might be conservation one year, the regulation of divorce the next, State taxation at the third annual conference, and so on. Each session of these competent delegates should agree upon something to be done, something that might be drawn up in black and white and presented for the ratification of the several States.

THE PASSAIC SEWER.

Naturally, a New Jersey court upholds a New Jersey statute authorizing the construction of a trunk sewer accommodating several cities. Sewers are a necessity, and the construction of a sewer is not a nuisance. A different question will be presented when the nuisance question is raised. The New Jersey cities then will have on hand a sewer for which they have paid, and which they cannot use on conditions objectionable to other courts than those of New Jersey, any more than the Bronx sewer can be used. It is even likely that then the New Jersey Judges will change their mind, just as the engineers have changed their mind about the methods of disposal of sewage.

The Chancellor says, obiter, that sewage which would defile Newark Bay can safely be discharged into New York Bay. The argument and the facts are wrong. There is a propriety about the discharge of New Jersey sewage into New Jersey waters which is violated when it is proposed to discharge New Jersey sewage into waters belonging either to New York or to the United States. The courts will take notice of the violation of this propriety, just as they took notice of it and prevented the use of the Bronx sewer until the sewage was purified. New York Bay is not the "ocean"—using the Chancellor's word—and the sewage experts have proved that sewage emptied into New York Bay does not go to sea. It swashes up and down with the tides, defiling whatever it touches and endangering health wherever it goes. The Jerseymen are building this sewer for the excellent reason that they cannot endure their own nuisance. By that same token they may be sure that New Yorkers will not endure it, and the Federal authorities have taken action assuring that they need not endure it.

The Chancellor thinks that the disposal works would be as much of a nuisance as the sewer. Those who have ridden past the fertilizer factories on the Jersey meadows have a right to their own opinion about it. Jerseymen may be pardoned for wishing to get rid of both. But that is a matter for Jerseymen. The interest and right of New Yorkers simply is to see that New Jersey endures its own nuisances, or remedies them in some way compatible with good neighborhood and good health. It is well-meaning advice that the New Jersey taxpayers should not allow themselves to be led into building a sewer which they cannot use when it is finished without cost of establishing works which would make the sewer unnecessary.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Accidents at Grade Crossings. Of all automobile accidents, so-called, those which take place where railroads cross highways at grade are at once the most terrible in their effects and the most clearly preventable by the exercise of simple precautions, the need of which is as well known to everybody as is the fact that their neglect means disaster and death. Yet these so-called accidents continue to occur and in what seem to be constantly increasing numbers. Yesterday three of them were recorded in our news columns, one in Pennsylvania, one in Massachusetts, and another in Illinois. Nine victims were killed outright and two escaped with injuries.

From one point of view the railways that maintain the grade crossings and leave them improperly guarded are responsible for such slaughters. This is a just charge, but it falls little if any more upon the railway corporations than upon the general public which first permitted and still tolerates the grade crossings. To both the builders and the users of the lines—and of course the users include everybody—these crossings were really or nearly a necessity, in spite of their well-realized dangers, if we were to have transportation to the extent and with the rapidity it was desired, and now the raising or depressing of the tracks at every highway is so expensive, directly to the companies and indirectly to the public, that naturally enough the process of elimination is a slow one.

Abolished they all must be, in time, certainly, but meanwhile it is well to remember that nobody ever was or ever will be killed at a grade crossing who did or will do what everybody knows he always should do—assure himself, as he easily can, that no train approaching in either direction was or is near enough to make the crossing perilous. Probably not one automobilist in a thousand—perhaps not one in ten thousand—seeks and gains perfect safety by coming to a full stop before getting in what always may be the way of a train. A large minority, if not a majority, of them entirely ignore the familiar warning of the roadside signs. Their looking and listening, if done at all, is too often so late as to be of no use in case of emergency, and for stopping they substitute—sometimes—a reduction of speed which, in itself, for the many not overskillful drivers, brings in the new danger of a stalled engine on the track. This danger is particularly great when, as often, the approach is up an incline more or less steep.

Bad Logic in a Bad Cause. A New Yorker interested in the protection of the world's birds from the extermination with which the feather-hunters are now threatening so many of the most valuable as well as most beautiful species, recently wrote to Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia asking him to vote against the proposed change in the Tariff bill which will, if adopted, do so much to defeat the efforts making in several countries to stop a cruel and destructive trade. Senator Smith promptly and bluntly refused to take the action requested, but, rather incautiously, he added an explanation of the refusal—incautiously, because the explanation is extremely bad, since it reveals an amazing lack of knowledge as to the facts of the situation.

Declaring himself to be strongly in favor of protecting our own birds, the Senator wrote that the bill as drawn would injure and not help them. In this opinion he is at direct odds with everybody of whom we have ever heard who has really studied the subject—who is an authority in ornithology, that is—for they all say that to permit the importation of wild bird feathers from abroad is to make practically impossible the protection of our own wild birds, so difficult is it to prove that plumage in the hands of dealers is of domestic, not foreign, origin. If Senator Smith does not know this it is either because he has not read or listened to the proofs that have been presented to him as to all the other Senators, or because his mind is not open to argument on this subject.

The only reason besides this wretched one given by the Senator for favoring the destructive amendment is that it will save to the country the million a year from the duty on foreign feathers which it now receives. That is true, in a way, but the saving will not be for long if the slaughter of the foreign birds be permitted to go on at the present rate, and go on at that rate it will if the great American market remain open. And in a much more important way the Senator's fear of lost revenue is not justified, since it rests on the obviously false assumption that if wild bird feathers are not imported, nothing else will be, in their place. How little he knows the ladies—and he a Southerner, too!

Probably a Poor Salesman. That young man who wrote to us complaining of ill success "on the road" ascribed his failure to a disinclination on the part of buyers for the houses he wished to serve to let him inform them in any way of the merits of his wares. As if it were a typical case, the discouraged youth described a buyer who didn't want his name printed in the papers when he came to town, who objected to letters because he got them by the million, who never read circulars and threw business cards into the wastebasket, who was always out to callers or too busy to receive them, who had no time to examine samples, and who wouldn't hear prices or compare them.

Now, the chances are that such a buyer, instead of being typical, is nonexistent. It is quite possible, however, that a tyro "traveler," especially if lacking in natural qualifications of manner and personality for a profession that demands those indefinite things almost as much as experience and specialized knowledge, may have had some sad adventures while trying to do business with very busy men. Doubtless other salesmen have found it possible to approach the busiest of them, else they would not be busy, and as the buyers are presumably competent in their own work, the probabilities are that if any of them talked to this young man in the way he describes, it was because they knew or thought time devoted to him would be wasted and they eluded this danger by making statements of which he realized neither the purpose nor the humor.

To be sure, not all failures to sell goods are due to incompetency; occasionally "the times" have something to do with it; but times are never so hard that the born salesman cannot get into communication with the coyest of purchasers, and even in the hardest of times the real genius can make men buy at least a little by finding out just what they want or must have.

The indications are that our complaining correspondent needs first to study what his experiences reveal as to himself. The difficulties he has encountered may or may not be due to corrigible faults and mistakes of his own. In the one case he must correct them; in the other, he should turn his energies in a new direction.

COTTON FINANCING.

Southern Corporation Aims to Free Grower from Speculative Markets.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have before me your editorial article headed "Blue Sky Boomerang," which reads:

> We do not ask any one to take it from us that there was $27,000,000 of money used in this way, but they may believe President Wadley of Bolingbroke, Ga., if they like.

I am sending you an article taken from The Arkansas Gazette, in which Attorney General William L. Moose of that State shows that the reports on which you based your article were false. I am also inclosing a paper signed by a number of well-known and reputable citizens of the South, going to show that the statements made by myself as to the arrangements for financing the affairs of the Southern States Cotton Corporation were true. This corporation only proposes to show the Southern farmer and cotton grower that in his cotton he has the collateral which will enable him to free himself from speculative markets, and that if he will place this cotton in the hands of the corporation, which is managed by intelligent and honest citizens of the South, he will see that his cotton finances itself and that he shall secure remunerative prices for his product. To do this the corporation proposes to act as a medium through which 75 per cent. of the market value of cotton in cash can be paid to the farmer provided the farmer will accept the difference between that amount and 15 cents in notes of the corporation, these notes to be paid when the cotton has been sold at 15 cents net to the grower.

DRINKERS OF LIQUORS.

Abolish Them and Beverage Plants May Be Used to Denature Alcohol.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your note upon the article in The Popular Science Monthly by Prof. G. T. Patrick on the "Mystery of Alcohol" is very interesting. But it seems to me that Jack London in his "John Barleycorn," published recently in The Saturday Evening Post, explains whatever mystery there is in this matter much better than Prof. Patrick. Jack London shows that it is through the ever-present saloon, with its temptations to drink because of the treating habit and because of the influence and example of those who have already learned to like the drink, that new recruits are won for alcohol. Young lads think it is smart to take risks with both tobacco and alcohol, and sometimes with worse things than these. London believes the only way to hinder fresh crops of alcohol drinkers is to do away with the saloon—indeed, to do away with both the manufacture and sale of beverages containing the poison, alcohol. Several Governors of Kansas have said in print that there are many youths in Kansas who never saw a saloon nor a drunken man, and that the youths of Kansas have not drinking models before their eyes constantly to tempt them to indulgence, consequently young men in that State are not learning to use alcoholic liquors. If we are ever to be rid of the evils of alcohol drinking we must educate in the public press in favor of national prohibition. This is not a crazy idea. Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale University, in a recent address, said that Sweden is on the verge of national prohibition of both alcoholic beverages and tobacco, for she is the foremost nation in the world in knowledge of personal hygiene.

There need not be loss to manufacturers of alcoholic beverages through prohibition, because their plants could be used to manufacture denatured alcohol for scientific and industrial purposes.

THE SEASON OF SUICIDES.

Has It Something to Do with Vacations and Politics?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Times declares the present to be the suicide season, and plaintively speculates on the causes. It is an occult study. May it not be attributed in part to an early return from country sojourn of individuals whose presence is undesirable, collapsed purses, or presentation of bills of indebtedness for the sought-for pleasure which was not attained?

We next have to worry over the approaching election, the abuse of opposition candidates, wild imaginings, frenzied oratory, gracious promises, and the gaseous accompaniment of the event. During this period the press is saturated with all this to the exclusion of normally interesting matter. The suffragettes grievously torment themselves and sisters about a vote that a small percentage of the sex will exercise. Huerta shows no inclination to yield to President Wilson's wishes, of the precise character of which we are ignorant, but yearn for information. The dreaded Autumn public dinners and complimentary oratory, filched from the after-dinner speeches in the first three volumes of the fourteen of "Modern Eloquence" and the voluminous "The World's Best Orations," reiterations from which we would flee in frenzied fright. The most of us have in mind also the Christmas holidays which entail upon the married ones the furnishing of funds to wives for the purchase of gifts to those we abhor.

Of course suicide is a habit or relaxation of the feminine temperament, when its financial means are contracted and it cannot bring itself to a resolution as to what kind of a pattern of gown it shall buy from the hundreds offered for selection. Some few earnestly believe themselves to be in love and that the emotion is unrequited. To such suicide may become a habit for which no valid reason can be given by the participants. From any aspect life is an affair that most of us would decline to enter if we could have found the means of avoidance of its certain sorrows.

Mr. Bryan's Prohibition Views.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent who seems to think Secretary Bryan must have "moral courage" because he drinks grape juice and favors so-called prohibition evidently does not know how Mr. Bryan happened to take up this paramount issue. Briefly, some four years ago the Anti-Saloon League and its allies were carrying on their usual kind of a hurrah campaign in Nebraska. It was some time before Mr. Bryan decided to seize on the county option issue to help his political fortunes, which, at that time, were on the down grade. It must be admitted that Mr. Bryan showed a little more shrewdness in this than he has in seizing on many other old and new "issues."

Those who are familiar with the Nebraska situation know that it required no great "moral courage" for Mr. Bryan or any one else to use the temperance and prohibition agitation for his own benefit. The City of Lincoln went "dry," but at the last election it became "wet" again. According to my way of thinking, the politicians, by their lack of moral courage and by their hypocrisy and cowardice, have done more to encourage cranks, troublemakers, professional agitators, grafting reformers, and fake uplifters than any other set of men in our community.

Daughters of Aesculapius.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a letter printed in The Times a few days ago your correspondent made a statement to the effect that, although medical colleges are now open to women and all opportunities available for the study of medicine by women, the number of women students of medicine (according to the results of his research) has not increased in proportion.

In another publication I find this quotation: "There are twice as many students taking lessons in mind cure and kindred theories as are to be found in all the medical colleges."

Might not this throw some light on the subject, as women practitioners are largely in the majority in many of the healing cults?

A READER.
New York, Aug. 25, 1913.

A REQUEST.

If you should meet a cat by night or day,
With street-grimed fur and wild,
fear-blazing eyes;
If to your ear should come shrill,
anguished cries,
I beg of you that you'll not turn away,
But pause, and, stooping to the poor thing, say:
"Fear not, lone creature, my strong
aid to ask!
To my own heart forever I am true!
As I'd have others do, I'll do my task;
For should I leave you, frightened and astray,
Torture of conscience would be long my due!"

Friend, if you'll do this for each cat you see,
Throughout your life my gratitude shall bless;
For these lost creatures who are in
Are each my own. They have but strayed from me.

LURANA SHELDON.

SEX HYGIENE FOR SCHOOLS.

Educators in Health Congress Advocate Teaching It to Children.

BUFFALO, Aug. 27.—In all probability the American scientists and educators who are attending the Fourth International Congress on School Hygiene here will make a long journey when they attend the session next year. The next meeting place of the congress was informally discussed to-day, and at the meeting of the International Committee, scheduled for to-morrow, the question will be decided. Brussels probably will be selected.

In an address before the congress to-day, Dr. Edward C. Spitzka of New York declared that New York City, in its classification and care of defective and abnormal children, stands on no higher level than a country village. He agreed with other scientists and educators of world-wide fame, who said to-day, with practical unanimity, that the time had come when the attitude of the world's educational institutions toward sex hygiene should be revolutionized. They saw in the silence of the past on the subject a growing and real menace to the future of the race that must be combated by a system of education without exaggeration or morbid suggestion. Public opinion, they maintained, has already reached the point where this revolution is demanded.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President of the congress; the Rev. Richard J. Tierney, S. J., of Woodstock College, Maryland; Dr. Hugh Cabot, Miss Laura B. Barrett of New York, and other prominent delegates spoke on the subject at a symposium attended by the entire congress and a large number of citizens at Elmwood Music Hall this afternoon. Dr. Eliot presided.

"A remarkable change in public opinion has taken place in regard to sex hygiene," Dr. Eliot said, "using the term in its broadest sense. The policy of silence was almost universal. Medical discoveries have contributed to the shift in public opinion which also has been moved by the many signs of physical deterioration consequent on the rush to city life. Fathers and mothers feel a new duty toward their children. Churches take a new interest.

"The most important question is, What force can now be put in play against the formidable evils which gravely threaten the very life of the race? No one force or agency can be completely relied upon."

"This attack," he said, "must be made against the three principal causes of the present evil conditions: First, lust in men; second, complete lack of moral principle in certain classes of women, and, third, depravity of those who make a commerce of these two.

"Commercialized vice should be attacked in all its forms by all the powers of the law. The ancient policies of toleration and licensed segregation and regulation must be uprooted. Segregation has nowhere been successful. Regulation is a confessed failure. The laws against undesirable marriages need to be revised.

"Public progress in regard to sex hygiene and eugenics is to be procured chiefly through educational methods. The work must be done delicately and without interference with parental rights or religious conviction."

The American Federation for Sex Hygiene, which arranged the symposium this afternoon in connection with the congress, held a business session to-night at which these officers were elected: President—Dr. Charles W. Eliot; Vice Presidents—Dr. David Starr Jordan, Leland Stanford University; William T. Foster, Portland, Ore.; Felix Warburg, New York, and W. T. Sumner, Chicago; Secretary—Dr. Donald R. Hooker, Baltimore; Treasurer—Henry L. Higginson, Boston.

VACATES TAXI INJUNCTIONS.

Court Makes Possible Full Enforcement of Hacking Ordinance.

The last legal obstacles to the complete enforcement of the new public hacking ordinance were removed yesterday by the action of Supreme Court Justice Donnelly, who vacated the last two temporary injunctions obtained by interests opposed to the ordinance. These injunctions were those of the Sight-seeing Motor Vehicle Corporations, and of the American Taximeter Company, manufacturers of fare recording instruments.

Both decisions of Justice Donnelly were brief. He dismissed at once, on Justice Seabury's opinion in the other taxicab cases, the contention that the new ordinance was invalid and unconstitutional. He held also that there was no new question raised in the sight-seeing car cases, in which the Broadway Auto Touring Company, the Gotham Sight Seeing Corporation, Peter J. Walker and Frederick Bachus were the petitioners.

The case of the taximeter manufacturers, however, raised the point that it was physically impossible to comply with the terms of the ordinance, since only seven new machines could be turned out each day, and that the effect of immediate enforcement of that provision of the ordinance requiring taximeters registering the new rates of fare would put large numbers of independent taxicabs out of business.

Justice Donnelly said that the papers submitted on behalf of the company did not bear out its claim that it was physically impossible to get out the new meters on time. He also called attention to the fact that early in the Summer, when the ordinance was under consideration by the Board of Aldermen a sample machine, registering the new rates of fare had been provided and exhibited. This he held was an answer to the contention that it was not possible to produce a meter which would thoroughly meet the requirements of the ordinance, which was one of the company's points.

In discharging a chauffeur who had been summoned to court on a charge of violating the new taxicab ordinance, Magistrate Herbert in the West Side Court yesterday afternoon asserted that the ordinance as at present worded defeated the purpose for which it was enacted.

The part of the ordinance to which the Magistrate referred was the clause providing that the ordinance should not apply to nor govern any vehicle hired or obtained from a stable or garage and which did not solicit patronage on the street.

The case before the Magistrate was that of John J. Lang, a chauffeur employed by Hess Brothers, who have a garage in West Forty-third Street, near Seventh Avenue. He was served with a summons on Tuesday evening by Chief Inspector Drennan of the Bureau of Licenses, who charged the chauffeur with soliciting patronage from the street. Lang said that he was not soliciting patronage on the street, but that his car was for hire in the garage, and that he was on the street waiting to answer a call.

Inspector Drennan said this was a stock excuse. He also said that it was the habit of taxis and cabs to line up on the street near the stable or garage and when hired the proprietor would call the chauffeur from his stable or garage. The Inspector asserted that this was against the spirit of the law.

A Wife's Efforts.

While the young father of three children is having a chance to get physically strong and so better able to cope with his intemperate habits, which nearly brought ruin to his home, his wife is in need of help. At first thoroughly discouraged and worn out, she is now recovering her interest in the home and is eager to make the best use of what she has. She has proved to be a good manager, and with five dollars a week is able to give the children proper food. The rent she herself earns as janitress. The Charity Organization Society asks for $90 to continue the payment of this weekly allowance until the man is able to return to the city and make a new beginning.

Gifts may be sent to the office of the society, 105 East Twenty-second Street, and will be acknowledged.

The society acknowledges with thanks the following contributions received in response to previous appeals in The Times:

DANIELS SEES DEAL IN ARMOR-PLATE BIDS

Suspects the Bethlehem, Midvale, and Carnegie Firms Combined in Quoting Same Prices.

ALL MAY BE REJECTED

Concerns to Explain and Congress to be Urged to Provide for a Government Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Secretary Daniels expressed surprise to-day when bids opened for the armor plate for the new dreadnought, No. 39, showed that the three big armor manufacturers had submitted identical proposals for each class of plates embraced in the specification. Such a thing had never before happened in any Government bidding. Even in all the bids heretofore made by the three concerns, the Bethlehem Steel Company, the Midvale Steel Company and the Carnegie Steel Company, for armor plate and other kinds of plates for naval vessels, there has been a slight difference in their figures. It is likely that the bids will be rejected.

The companies have always maintained that they do not combine in any manner in making their bids. The Naval Appropriation act of last August expressly forbids such a combination. There is, however, no penalty in a case of a violation of the law beyond the forfeiture of a contract.

If the Government should refuse to give a contract to the lowest bidder, and the successful company was proved to have entered a combination, it would have to go without armor plate, as the three companies named are the only concerns in this country able to produce the armor required.

Ever since the Midvale Company came into the combination it has been the practice of the Navy Department to invite armor bids, and on finding that they were all within a few cents of the same price, to divide the contracts equally between the three companies at the price of the lowest bidder, which in most cases was only slightly below the bid of the highest bidder. In all cases the representatives of the various companies have been required to make oath that there was no collusion or combination among them in making their bids.

The bids to-day were not only identical, but were the same as those made for the same classes of plate for the battleship Pennsylvania, the sister ship of No. 39. The bids per ton were as follows:

	Bethlehem Steel Co.	Midvale Steel Co.	Carnegie Steel Co.
Class A1—6,839 tons	$454	$454	$454
Class A2 Turret—900 tons	518	518	518
Class B—252 tons	496	496	496

The same companies quoted identical figures for sixty-one tons of deck plates for No. 39, a class of plate technically described as specially treated steel plate, none of it being over four inches thick, used for decks and the skin of the ship, for two tons of bronze plates, and for 708 tons of hollow forgings, except that the Carnegie company did not bid on this item. In the bids for the deck plates the Carbon Steel Company of Pittsburgh, which the other day got the contract for 3,900 tons of special treatment steel plates, put in a bid which was $100 lower than that of the three other concerns, the latter bidding $548 a ton and the Carbon company $448.

Secretary Daniels gave out this statement in commenting on the bids:

"It is more apparent than ever that if the Government is to secure the benefits resulting from competition in the supply of this material, additional responsible and adequate sources of supply must be established.

"We find that where competition is possible more favorable terms are to be had. The Carbon Steel Company is not equipped to handle the heavier grades of armor. The only three firms in the country that are, are the three who bid and whose bids were identical to the minutest particular.

"These gentlemen profess that no understanding in prices exists between them, and each attests in an affidavit submitted with their respective bids that 'said company is not engaged in any such combination, agreement, conspiracy, or understanding.' Without delving at this time into the cause of this surprising coincidence in uniformity of bids, the department cannot but note with disfavor the absolute agreement that exists. They speak more eloquently than any explanation which may be offered; they prove conclusively that competition for this enormous amount of Government business is a farce.

"The Secretary has requested a conference with a representative of each of the three companies bidding the same figures. He is desirous of learning from each by what process of mental telepathy they arrived at the identical figures in their bids. It looks like as though the only hope for relief from exorbitant prices is for the Government to establish an armor plant."

As a result of what occurred to-day, Mr. Daniels will urge on Congress next Winter that the Government manufacture its own armor. It will take two years to build a plant adequate for the production of the great amount of plates required for a single battleship within the limited time usually allowed. It would be practically impossible to provide any plate from a Government plant for the dreadnought No. 39. Mr. Daniels said he had statements from practical steel manufacturers that plates for the vessel such as entered into the specifications could be made within a range of $225 to $250 a ton for actual cost. This, he asserted, should suggest a more moderate amount of profit per ton and give the Government fair ground to ask why there should not be actual competition among the armor plate concerns.

Two organizations, one of which is the Carbon Steel Company, have said that they are considering the idea of extending their facilities and becoming bidders for armor plate. The Carbon Company is not now able to make heavy armor, the four-inch deck plate being the limit of its facilities for production.

Under existing law Secretary Daniels can go abroad for armor plate if he thinks the Government is being imposed on by the concerns in this country. He holds that the Government is being imposed on, but he hesitates about placing a contract in Europe. He believes in keeping such work at home, and, accordingly, he thinks there should be a Government plant able to make nearly all the plate needed for a battleship, and then ask bids for such amounts as the Government cannot itself produce.

Mr. Daniels said that he could imagine what Congress would say when he forwarded to that body the bids received to-day. He regarded them as simply "impudent," but knew that they were the result of a bad previous policy in his own department, for which this Administration was not responsible.

ASTOR TENANTS IN TROUBLE

Applies for Writs to Eject Two from the Astor House.

Municipal Court Justice Young reserved decision yesterday on an application of Vincent Astor for dispossess papers against two tenants of the old Astor House. The application was made in the First District Court on Lafayette Street.

The defendants—Hilton, a clothier, and Craig, a leather dealer—asserted that their leases had three months to run. Other tenants of the Astor House, which is to be torn down to allow the new subway to run beneath one corner of its site, have already moved.

Mr. Astor's application was made through M. L. McBurney of 302 Broadway.

75,000 SEE PARADE OF 648 FINE BABIES

But Asbury Park's Great Show Is Not Confined to Little Babies Alone.

SEPTEMBER MORN A WINNER

Pink Youngster Paddling in Stream Favored by Queen Titania XIII. —Parents Show "Our Jewels."

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, Aug. 27.—When the twenty-third annual baby parade started to-day there were 75,000 persons along the line of march. The parade was not confined to little babies alone. In all there were 648 in the parade. Only one incident occurred to mar the day. A grandstand near Second Avenue crowded with spectators collapsed. Mrs. L. Carless of 14 West End Avenue, Newark, was injured about the back and a score of others were bruised.

Gov. Fielder and his military staff were among the spectators. Cardinal Gibbons and Bishop O'Connell, who had accepted invitations to view the parade, were kept away by the Cardinal's indisposition.

The parade was formed in seven divisions. Little girls and their doll coaches were in one division. The babies themselves, in whose honor the parade was formed, were in gayly decorated perambulators and go-carts. They were a cheerful, cooing lot of babies. No cross ones were among those present. Children in burlesque costume made up another division very popular with the spectators.

One division was made up of little express wagons, pony wagons, and floats of various sorts. The float which made the hit of the day, was called "September Morn." A three-year-old youngster was shown paddling in a stream. The youngster wore pink fleshings, and Miss Hazel Florence Reuman of Brooklyn, the Carnival Queen, awarded as a prize to him a pony and cart. Miss Reuman bore the title of Titania XIII. Erla Collane, 9 years old, of Orange, as a valentine won the grand prize—a handsome gold loving cup.

The parade was reviewed and judged in a stadium. At one side was a pavilion, where the Queen, her twelve ladies in waiting, and the Princess Cinderella were seated. Grouped about them were thirty girls dressed in white, carrying long, golden tipped spears. They were the Queen's guards. The Queen wore a handsome robe and the carnival crown was upon her head, and she sat upon a throne decorated in white and gold.

Much ingenuity was shown by mothers in preparing for the parade. Several youngsters were seen in mock oyster shells. They were "oyster pearls." One yawning boy was seen in a burlesque of "September Morn." He was sitting up in bed, with school books lying about him. He evidently did not relish the call of the September morn. Some children were called "our jewels." They rode in mock jewel boxes.

Every child who took part in the parade received a souvenir. The prizes in all were valued at $4,000.

MISS DURYEE A BRIDE.

Her Marriage to E. S. Ballard Celebrated at Garrison.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Sloan Duryee, a daughter of the Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Duryee and Mrs. Duryee, to Ernest Schwefel Ballard, formerly of Philadelphia, but now of New York, was celebrated yesterday at the country home of the bride's parents, at Garrison, N. Y.

The ceremony took place at 11:30 and was performed by the bride's father, assisted by the Rev. Edward A. Reed of Holyoke, Mass.

Frederick L. Ballard was his brother's best man, and the guests were Schuyler C. Meyer, Dr. A. P. Stout, Irving S. Olds, Ludlow S. Bull, Frederic H. Dolbeare, Richmond L. Brown, Henry M. Kidder, and Samuel S. Duryee, a brother of the bride, all of New York; Philip A. Glazier of Hartford, W. W. Collins, Jr., of Chicago, and Edward E. Dennison, Charles L. Sheppard, Edmond B. Gilchrist, and W. Griffin Gribbel of Philadelphia.

The bride's maid of honor was her sister, Miss Maria La Grange Duryee, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Mary Ballard of Philadelphia, Emily Coe and Catherine Colt of New York, Marion Farwell of Chicago and Mary Thompson of Delaware and Miss Mary Parkman of Boston.

The engagement of Miss Duryee and Mr. Ballard was announced some weeks since, and at the same time the engagement by Miss Martha La Grange Duryee and Henry Maynard Kidder of New York.

J. M. Gardner, Jr., Married.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., Aug. 27.—Joseph M. Gardner, Jr., of 155 Howe Avenue, Secretary of the Board of Education here, was married to-night to Miss L. Margaret Resseguie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Resseguie of 414 Franklin Street, Watertown, N. Y., at the Watertown Presbyterian Church. For four years the bride taught No. 8 school here. Miss Verna Resseguie, sister of the bride, and Harold E. Gardner, brother of the bridegroom, were the attendants. The couple will return from their honeymoon on Sept. 8 and live here.

Miss Weeden Engaged.

Mrs. George Frederick Weeden of 47 Pierrepont Street, Brooklyn, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth S. Weeden, to Francis De Hart Houston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Houston of Concord, Mass. Mr. Houston is a graduate of Harvard, class of '10, and is a member of the Harvard Club. His father is the Vice President and Treasurer of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company. Miss Weeden made her début several years ago in Brooklyn. She is a sister of Mrs. William S. Langford of Yonkers. No date has been set for the wedding.

WERBA & LUESCHER'S PLANS

New Musical Plays to be Given Through the Autumn.

Plans for the present theatrical season, announced yesterday by Werba & Luescher include among the first productions Victor Herbert's operetta, "Sweethearts," in which Christie MacDonald will come to the New Amsterdam Theatre on Sept. 8. The firm's second production will be a musical comedy by Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf, with music by Reginald De Koven, called "Her Little Highness." Mizzi Hajos will be seen in the title rôle of the piece, which opens in Boston on Sept. 15.

In November the firm will offer the Leo Fall comic opera, "The Jolly Peasant," with David Bispham in the title rôle. The following month Lionel Walsh will be starred in a new English musical play called "Mr. Popple." The firm also announces the contemplated production in the same month of a serious play by Harry B. Smith. Of the old plays, three companies will be sent on tour in "The Master Mind," and "The Spring Maid," and "The Rose Maid" will also be presented on the road.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Isadora Duncan Not to Dance.

Isadora Duncan, the classic dancer, whose two children were drowned in the Seine last April as the result of an automobile accident, has written a letter to Haensel & Jones, who managed her last tour here, asking them to deny the report that she would tour South America in dances. She says that the report seems shocking to her, and adds: "You must understand it will be a long time before I can even dream of my work again, and I hate to think that my friends who love me, and whom I love, in America should be led by the newspapers to think of me as dancing in South America."

Actress's Dress Burns on Stage.

During yesterday afternoon's performance of "The Lure" at the Maxine Elliott Theatre, when Vincent Serrano and Dorothy Dorr were going through a tense scene, a small alcohol lamp was overturned and, unnoticed by the members of the cast and most of the people in the audience, fell upon the train of a lace gown which Miss Dorr was wearing. The gown took fire, and the flames began to eat their way along the train. Two observing women in the second gallery were the first to notice the flames, and they called across the audience, "Miss Dorr's dress is on fire." Mr. Serrano heard them and stooping down, snuffed out the flames with his hands just as the curtain descended.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Constance Collier has been engaged to play Portia in "Julius Caesar" with William Faversham's company, Julie Opp and Cecelia Loftus appearing in other Shakespearean plays.

George C. Tyler of the Liebler company is aboard the Provence, bound home, after five months in Europe.

To mark one year's continuous run in New York, the management of "Within the Law" will begin a week of souvenir performances on Monday.

David Belasco and the company in "The Temperamental Journey" left yesterday for Rochester, where the first production of the play will be made to-night. The cast is headed by Leo Ditrichstein and Isabel Irving. It opens at the Belasco Theatre here one week from to-night.

Howard Thurston, the magician, returned yesterday after a visit to Europe, bringing back several mechanical devices and illusions for use this season.

At Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre tomorrow night, after the regular performance, a song-writer's contest will be held, the winning composition to be sung by Kathleen Clifford.

The Lenox Theatre, in 111th Street will open to-night for an engagement of a Yiddish stock company headed by Rosa Karp and Leon Blank.

QUARITCH, LEADING BOOKSELLER, DEAD

Had Been Ill Since His Visit to New York to Attend the Hoe Sale.

SUCCEEDED FATHER IN 1899

Retained Mastery of Trade in London, but Was Chagrined by Failure to Buy Many Hoe Treasures.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Bernard Quaritch, the well-known London dealer in rare books, died at Brighton today. He had been ill since his last visit to the United States to attend the Hoe sale.

He was the son of the founder of the firm, and succeeded to the business on his father's death.

The house of Quaritch, founded half a century ago by a German, who became a naturalized Englishman, is now the most celebrated establishment of its kind in the world. The famous old shop in Piccadilly has disappeared, and the business is conducted in more extensive quarters in Grafton Street, but the exterior of the new shop gives as little indication as that of the old of the treasures that are to be found within. The front is of a dinginess that is evidently studied; the Quaritchs had apparently no desire to attract the casual collector, even the casual collector with money.

The great business behind that dingy front grew up with and is a result of the enormous appreciation in the value of precious manuscripts and printed books that has taken place in the last fifty years. And, to a large extent, the Quaritchs aided in this appreciation. Nothing is more remarkable in the splendid series of catalogues that they published—a complete set is by now a bibliographical rarity greatly desired—than the time during which volumes worth thousands of pounds apiece remained in their possession. They put their price on an illuminated manuscript or an incunabulum, and if they did not immediately obtain it, or something like it, they waited until a collector ready to pay the required sum appeared.

The elder Quaritch, the "Napoleon of bookselling," died fourteen years ago, when eighty years old. He left the business to his son, who, up to that time, had not been very well known to the customers of the house. But he soon showed that he was worthy to follow in his father's footsteps. Habitues of Sotheby's salesroom discovered that the eagle-eyed monopolist, to bid against whom was to court disaster, had left a son as little inclined as his sire to brook competition.

The younger Quaritch retained his mastery of the book market in London, but in the last few years new conditions have arisen in the trade—conditions with which he was not so well fitted to deal. The great collectors are no longer Englishmen, but Americans, and in this city there are now dealers whose operations are becoming as extensive as those of the famous London house.

Indeed, Mr. Quaritch did not attempt to conceal his chagrin at his failure to obtain at the Hoe sale some of the treasures that he came across the Atlantic to buy. He bid up the vellum copy of the Gutenberg Bible which H. E. Huntington purchased for $50,000 and which had been sold by the elder Quaritch to Mr. Hoe for less than half that sum, and he lost a number of other books that he desired. Nevertheless, he obtained a number of fine volumes, among them being the paper copy of the Gutenberg Bible, for which he gave $27,500; "Lorloge de Sapience," by Hernricus de Berg, printed at Paris in 1493, for which he paid $13,500; "The Imitation of Christ," by Thomas a Kempis, printed in Paris in 1690, $5,750; Theophratus, a copy from the library of Henri II. and Diane de Poitiers, $4,700; "Recueil Général des Caquets de l'Accouchée," first edition, printed in 1623, $3,700, and "De Bello Persico," by Procopius, printed in Rome in 1509, $3,200.

Mr. Quaritch was not only a dealer, but, as his father was before him, a publisher, and some famous books have been issued by the house. It was the elder Quaritch who published FitzGerald's translation of the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam, the first edition of which "went off" so badly that the books eventually found their way into the threepenny box. The Quaritches are also the agents for the publications of the British Museum and the Society of Antiquaries.

NEWPORT AGAINST A HOTEL.

Summer Residents Don't Want One on Ocean House Site.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 27.—There will be no hotel built on the Bellevue Avenue side of the Ocean House site owned by the Governors of the Newport Casino. The land in its rear will be bought by the Casino stockholders next Saturday.

A prominent member of the Summer colony said to-day that the Summer residents, who would be those asked to take stock, are not favorable toward the hotel plan, as there was no wish to expand the city as a resort.

There is a movement on foot for the consolidation of the Reading Room and Casino Club and for the erection of a handsome clubhouse on the Bellevue Avenue side of the Ocean House property.

Mrs. H. P. Perry Operated On.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 27.—Mrs. Henry Pierrepont Perry of New York was operated on for appendicitis to-night by Drs. Charles W. Stewart and Charles D. Easton at the Newport Hospital. Mr. Perry was informed and hastened here from New York. Late to-night Mrs. Perry was reported as comfortable as could be expected so soon after the operation. Mrs. Perry was formerly Miss Edith Lounsberry. She is a relative of Mrs. James B. Haggin, who accompanied her to the hospital.

Benjamin Stearns Dead.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Benjamin Stearns, 71 years old, head of the firm of Benjamin Stearns & Co., wholesale milliners, of 616 Broadway, died of Bright's disease to-day at his residence on Webster Avenue, New Rochelle. He was one of the organizers and first President of the Citizens' and Taxpayers' Association of New Rochelle, and one of the largest givers to charity in this city. He is survived by his wife and two sons.

Charles B. Gilbert.

Charles Benajah Gilbert, lecturer and author of textbooks, was found dead in bed in his apartment in the San Remo Hotel, Central Park West and Seventy-fourth Street, yesterday morning. Coroner's Physician Lehane said that death was due to natural causes. when he was informed by relatives of Mr. Gilbert that he had been suffering from a complication of diseases. Mr. Gilbert was born in Wilton, Conn., in 1855, and received his education at Williams College. He was Superintendent of Schools in St. Paul, Minn., 1878-1883; Newark, N. J., 1896-1900, and Rochester, N. Y., 1900-1903. Later he was a lecturer on education in Western Reserve University, and at Teachers College, Columbia University.

Charles M. Maxwell.

Charles M. Maxwell, formerly President of Typographical Union No. 6, known as "Big Six," and for many years prominently identified with that organization, died on Tuesday night in the Coney Island Hospital, a short time after he was stricken on a houseboat in Gravesend Bay, where he and his family had been spending the Summer. Mr. Maxwell was born in Ireland in 1861. He became affiliated with the typographical organization in 1881, and was its representative several times in negotiations with publishers. Three years ago Mr. Maxwell was elected President of "Big Six," having served seven years previously as Secretary.

TO SAVE SUFFRAGE BILLS.

Governor Decides to Advertise Resolutions Mislaid in Jersey.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 27.—Gov. Fielder and Secretary of State Crater conferred at Asbury Park this afternoon on the legal aspects of the woman suffrage resolutions which were adopted at the last session of the Legislature. These resolutions were included in a number of measures not passed which were sent to the Secretary of State's office, and the mistake was not discovered until yesterday. Therefore, technically, sufficient time will not elapse in which to advertise them for a hearing before the Governor must act upon them.

The Secretary of State and the Governor decided, though, that notwithstanding the decision by the Attorney General that the resolutions were "dead," in view of the manifest error in handling them they might be advertised.

With Helen Lowell and Arthur Aylesworth.
PROVES THE CONTENTION
GAZE ON THESE CRITICISMS:
Boston American: "'Kiss Me Quick' is Shakespearean in the daring way in which the lovely and the mirth provoking are harnessed together . . . fantastic situations are made to appear so natural that you do not feel as if you were making an exhibition of yourself laughing at them."
New York Times: "An awful thing."
Boston Transcript: "Unusually entertaining to those who like clean and lively farce."
New York World: "Inanity was piled upon inanity until the whole fabric fell with a crash."
Boston Globe: "A very large audience expressed by laughter and applause enjoyment of the three hours or more of amusing nonsense."
New York American: "It was without form and void."
Boston Herald: "The audience laughed incessantly and with uproariousness. There was no doubt as to its enjoyment."
New York Herald: "A dull farce about movies."
Boston Post: "The audience laughed heartily and long at the various scenes."
New York Sun: "The most inscrutible piffle witnessed here in a long while."
Boston Record: "Kept the large audience in roars of laughter."
New York Tribune: "Far from being a good specimen."
Boston went by thousands to see "Kiss Me Quick." New York will go to see it also.

TRAVEL CLUB SEEKS NEW TRAFFIC RULES

Safety of Autos a Point to be Considered by Its Committee of Standardization.

Many questions of the regulation of traffic with a view to increased safety, among them those of vehicular traffic and especially automobiles, are to be considered by a Committee of Traffic and Public Safety, which has just been appointed by the International Travel Club of this city. The forthcoming issue of Travel, the club's organ, will describe the purposes and organization of this committee in part as follows:

"At a recent meeting of the Board of Governors of the International Travel Club, a Committee on Traffic and Public Safety was appointed, the Board being unanimous in the belief that the club should proceed at once to perform some effective work in the interest of users of the public highways, especially in view of the need of uniformity in traffic regulations in the larger cities. The committee will consider a new code of traffic regulations to be submitted to the proper authorities in at least fifteen of the principal cities in this country and abroad for criticism and suggestions. The new rules and regulations when finally adopted by the committee will be known as The Standard Code of Traffic Regulations, and will be sent with recommendations for adoption to the municipal authorities in all the larger cities throughout the world. The committee is comprised of the following gentlemen:

"Charles Jerome Edwards of Brooklyn, Chairman; William Phelps Eno of New York and Washington, Vice Chairman; Howard Elliott of St. Paul, Minn.; Julius Meyer of New York; Edward G. Conette of Buffalo; David Beecroft of Chicago and New York; Charles Henry Davis of South Yarmouth, Mass.; Samuel Walter Taylor of New York; Carl H. Page of New York; Albert S. Callan of Chatham, N. Y.; Burns Lyman Smith of Syracuse, N. Y.; Robert Lee Morrell of New York, and Frederick H. Elliott of New York.

"The many shocking accidents caused by deadly railway grade crossings call loudly for a remedy and a better protection to vehicular traffic. This is but an instance of the many important and vital questions which will be considered by the committee."

The Brooklyn Motor Vehicle Dealers' Association held its third annual outing at College Point yesterday and made merry to the tune of two baseball games, one between the Bedford Blow-Outs and the Flatbush Non-Skids, the other between the Night Owls and the Never Homes—scores immaterial—field sports and water sports, not to forget two "big feeds." About one hundred and fifty members of the Brooklyn motor trade were present, and the day was voted a big success.

The New York branch of the Knox Automobile Company is to move to new and larger quarters at 1,872 Broadway on Sept. 1. The three-wheeled Knox-Martin tractor and motor fire apparatus will be shown there in addition to pleasure cars.

Nearly one hundred exhibitors have taken space for the exhibition which is to be held in Detroit at the end of September in connection with the third annual American Road Congress.

NEW TOBACCO TRUST CASE.

Otto S. Jonas Accuses the Metropolitan Company of Monopoly.

Correcting a statement in a Washington dispatch yesterday that the Metropolitan Tobacco Company of New York had filed a petition with the Attorney General of the United States against the Tobacco Trust, Otto S. Jonas, Secretary of the Independent Retail Tobacconist Association of America, said yesterday that the petition in question had been filed by the latter association against the Metropolitan.

The Independent alleges that the Metropolitan is in itself a monopoly and an adjunct of the reorganized Tobacco Trust, and that, controlling the local jobbing trade in about 90 per cent. of tobacco products other than cigars, which products must be bought from the Metropolitan by independent jobbers at the same prices as those at which they are sold to retailers, the Metropolitan is following every method that was condemned by the Supreme Court in the Tobacco Trust case.

"That the Metropolitan Tobacco Company is engaged in interstate commerce," says Mr. Jonas, "can hardly be questioned."

AGAINST BANANA TAX.

Produce Exchange Preparing a Protest—Note to Senator Root.

The New York Produce Exchange began yesterday a campaign of protest against the import duty proposed in the new tariff bill of one-tenth of a cent a pound on bananas. A committee, consisting of C. W. McCutcheon, George A. Zabriskie, R. A. Claybrook, Edward F. Signay and H. Myer Bogert, was appointed to take charge of the matter, and prepared a statement of argument against the tax, which has been presented to Senator Root.

The statement, in brief, asked that, if it was necessary to impose new and additional duties to increase the revenues of the United States, bananas might be omitted, because they constituted the chief article of export "from a country which has evinced, in such a substantial and almost unexampled manner, her friendship for the United States." The country referred to was the Island of Jamaica.

STEEL DEMAND GROWING.

Heavy Buying of Pig Iron and Market Hardening.

Heavy buying of pig iron has been the feature of the week in the iron and steel markets, according to official publications of the trade, and the demand for steel also has picked up encouragingly. Iron prices gave evidence of hardening, but quotations for finished steel products are still in the unsettled condition noted in the preceding week. The Iron Age says:

> The making of lower prices in recent transactions in certain finished steel products should not obscure the fact as to the volume of business in this end-of-the-Summer period. The steel trade has shown, not so long ago, that it is no longer dependent on large railroad buying to make a good showing. It may be that it will be called upon to make such a demonstration again.
> So far as the Steel Corporation's bookings are a criterion, August conditions have been better than expected. For the past two weeks, which have included a good foreign business, it has taken new orders at the rate of close to 30,000 tons a day. The prediction is now made that its Aug. 31 report will show a falling off of about 250,000 tons against a decrease of 408,000 tons in July and 517,000 tons in June.
> Heavy buying of pig iron, particularly steel-making iron both in the East and the Central West, has been a feature of the past week. Another situation on which a good deal of interest has centred is that resulting from the increasing supply of semi-finished steel available in the Central West, and the consequent readjustment in prices.
> Bar mills promise to make a new record in output this year. The only reported exception to the 1.40c, Pittsburgh, basis for steel bars is on the recent contracts with the largest harvesting machinery companies. These paid close to $2 a ton more than last year's contract level, and that was reported at the time (May, 1912,) to be 1.20c, Pittsburgh.

The Iron Trade Review says:

> The Steel Corporation's new business in finished material is averaging about 30,000 tons daily, or several thousand tons more than it did last month, and both the Steel Corporation and the independents are receiving a great many small orders. On the whole, however, the finished market is not strong and prices are going through a readjustment similar to that which was experienced by pig iron prior to the renewal in buying about a month ago. The pig iron market shows continued activity in many districts and prices are gradually advancing. The purchase of 10,000 tons of basic pig iron by the Steel Corporation, which entered the market for the first time in eighteen months, has had a favorable effect on the market in the Pittsburgh district.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Exports, exclusive of specie, from the port of New York for the week ended Aug. 23 totaled $15,797,498, against $14,834,851 last week and $15,768,950 for the corresponding week of 1912. The present year's total of exports to date is valued at $590,279,764, against $535,699,099 for the corresponding period of last year.

A decided change has taken place in the olive oil situation in Italy, and there has been an increased demand, owing to the unfavorable reports from olive-growing sections. The olive fly has made its appearance in both Italy and Spain, and on that account holders are not inclined to market their product. The available stock of good quality oil is small, and prices have advanced from six to seven lire. Further advances are expected.

The movement in the New Orleans rice crop is reported to date as follows:

Receipts, rough, new and old, 114,400 sacks, against 73,700 sacks last year; sales, cleaned, new and old, 48,100 pockets, against 63,550 pockets last year.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

A new popular dress model has a black charmeuse skirt lined with white. It is made on straight lines and the centre front opens to above the knee. The waist foundation is white charmeuse, the sleeves are elbow length, and it has bretelles and a short tunic of black chiffon, lined with white. The outside edge of the tunic is finished with heavy cable cord, covered with black charmeuse.

A collarette of lace and cotton net trimmed with a narrow fold of blue satin and having eight satin-covered trimming buttons is a recent feature in the neckwear field.

Lingerie gowns for young women are now trimmed with delicate embroidered designs on sheer materials and are livened by touches of color.

Shadow allovers will occupy an important position in the lace field this Fall. In them a freedom of design suggesting the Japanese treatment is expected to prove a successful detail.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Dress Silks May Advance.

The steadily increasing cost of raw silks may shortly result in the advancing of prices on a large part of the silk dress goods made in this country. With increases ranging from 30 to 55 cents a pound in the price of raw silk within the last six or eight weeks, the manufacturers can see no other course if they are to operate at a profit. Advances of 5 to 7½ cents a yard have already been made on fabrics in some instances, but the increasing cost of the raw material is said to be steadily eating into the profit represented by these increases. Raw silk importers say that there is no reason to look for lower prices on that commodity for some time to come. They say that there is little, if any, speculating being done by importers, and that the advance is the natural result of the increased demand following the settlement of strikes in the silk industry on both sides of the Atlantic. Glove and hosiery makers are apparently better stocked than the broad silk producers, and this, together with the greater margin of profit in these goods, is said to minimize the possibility of an advance in the price of gloves and hose unless an extraordinary condition develops in raw silk.

Concave Panes for Show Windows.

One of the local department stores will make an interesting experiment in the near future by substituting in one of its principal show windows a double-tier concave glass for the large flat pane now in use. This glass, when viewed edge on, resembles an immense figure 3. The lower section is considerably the larger, and is somewhat higher than the average person. The advantage of the new glass lies in the fact that it does away with all reflection from the outside. In the ordinary flat window a reflection of the sidewalk is always present, as well as reflections of passers-by. These lessen considerably the effectiveness of the displays, as the merchandise can be seen plainly only from certain angles when one is standing close to the glass. With the new glass this is done away with. Its concavity is not noticeable from the front until the window is closely approached. During the test a guard rail will be used to keep shoppers at the proper distance.

First Exhibit at Commerce Bureau.

The first exhibit at the branch office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, recently established in the local Custom House, is composed of 754 samples of textiles from thirteen countries, including Bulgaria, Rumania, Sudan, and Arabia. Each sample is tagged with the name of the country in which it was produced and the selling price of the goods in that country. The agents who collected these samples have made detailed reports regarding market conditions in the respective countries, and these may be obtained upon application to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C. The exhibition will probably be continued until the middle of September. George W. Doonan, who is in charge of the local branch, said yesterday that many merchants had visited the office, and that all were enthusiastic over improved facilities for examining plans, specifications, and samples.

Men's Silk Suits More Popular.

Manufacturers of clothing specialties for men are coming into the silk market for men's wear silks earlier this year than ever before. This, in the opinion of the manufacturers making this kind of goods, presages a larger use of them for the Summer of 1914 than at any time heretofore. There has been a gradual expansion of this branch of the silk and clothing industries in the last three Summers, with the business of the current season the best yet. Fabrics of a pongee nature have been most in demand. The goods range in width from 27 inches up, and wholesale from $1.50 to $3 a yard. Silk evening suits for men have been especially favored this year at several of the leading resorts.

Curb for the "Ambitious" Shirt.

A simple device said to be effective in preventing the shirt working up or bulging above the trousers has just been hit upon by a Western merchant. It consists of three buttonholes worked vertically in each side seam of the shirt, through one of which may be fastened an inside suspender button of the trousers. The three buttonholes are made so that the point of attachment may be accommodated to the size of the wearer of the garment. It is said to keep the shirt in position without any strain on the shoulders or armholes.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

According to a recent estimate made by the Sugar Bureau of the Government of Taiwan, (formerly Formosa,) the production of centrifugal sugar for the season 1913-14 will be 205,121 tons. This will be an increase of 100,000 tons over the crop of last year, which was partially destroyed by the typhoons of August and September.

An American company contemplates establishing a meat-packing house at Corralito, near the city of Salto, Uruguay, where also tasajo (jerked beef) would be made. The capital will be $4,000,000, a portion of which the company desires local breeders to supply.

Deposits of kaolin have been discovered in various districts in the State of Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil. Samples of this clay have been sent to Limoges in France, where they have been analyzed and tested, with such excellent results that this kaolin is considered equal to the Japanese now imported by Limoges factories. In view of the success of these experiments, a company is being organized, with French capital, to build a porcelain factory in the Brazilian State.

The Government of Panama has given a new concession for the establishment of a hippodrome near Panama City. A copy of the contract, forwarded by Consul General Alban G. Snyder, will be loaned on application to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

On Steamship Piers.

Double postage is required except for Sea Post vessels. Whenever mail vessels of the American, Cunard, French, Hamburg-American, North German Lloyd, White Star, New York and Cuba Mail, New York and Porto Rico, Panama, and Red D Lines sail between the hours of 9 A. M. and 5 P. M., supplementary mails are opened on the steamship piers one and a half hours before sailing time and close ten minutes before sailing time. There is no pier supplementary mail for the Cunard Wednesday steamers sailing at 1 A. M., but supplementary mail, prepaid double postage, is accepted at the Foreign Station after the close of the regular mail and up to 10:30 P. M.

Handbags Not Personal Adornments—Other Decisions.

B. Altman & Co. was sustained yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers in a controversy with the Government regarding the classification under the Tariff act of 1909 of women's beaded handbags. Collector Mitchel held them at 85 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 448 as articles of personal adornment. The importers claimed 60 per cent. under Paragraph 421 as manufactures of beads. Fringes and trimmings imported by the same firm made of glass beads were assessed 60 per cent. The contention for a rate of 45 per cent. under Paragraph 109 as manufactures of glass or paste was overruled.

The board reduced the assessment of 85 per cent. ad valorem on many lines of goods returned by the Appraiser as jewelry used for personal adornment, claims for 60 per cent., under Paragraph 448, as jewelry being sustained.

Davies, Turner & Co. were partly sustained in claims affecting book markers and pads. Both classes were returned at 50 per cent. ad valorem under the provision in the present law for manufactures of agate. The board decided that the markers were properly dutiable at 45 per cent. as manufactures of metal. The assessment on the pads was affirmed.

The Albany's Evening Trip.

In Wednesday's issue of THE TIMES, through an error, published an advertisement of the steamer Albany, the afternoon boat of the Hudson River Day Line, wherein the return trip from West Point was advertised as being made "in the moonlight." While this is possible during certain parts of the month when the moon rises early, it was incorrect at this time, inasmuch as the returning boat reaches New York at 8:40 P. M.

ROME

The OUTSIDE Line TO BOSTON
You go aboard shortly before 5 o'clock. The rest of the long, summer afternoon you breathe salt breezes on deck, and watch the unfolding shores of the Sound.
As twilight deepens, you find you have a real appetite. You eat a dinner that does it justice. Finally you turn in for a glorious night's sleep out at sea.
If you are wise, you will be up early to view the romantic islands and sea-traffic of Massachusetts Bay.
You arrive in Boston refreshed, ready for the day.

Leave Pier 18, North River, foot of Murray St., at 5 P.M. weekdays and Sunday. Due Boston 8.30 next morning. Fare $4.00; inside 2-berth staterooms, $1.00; 2-berth outside rooms, $2.00. Electric fans in inside rooms. Tickets and staterooms at Wharf Offices, at 290 Broadway, also Tourist and N. Y. Transfer Co. offices.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Decline at Close of Day—A Hopeful Survey of the Mexican Situation.

What looked like deliberate pressure was put upon the market during the final hour of trading yesterday. Prices yielded rather sharply from the high prices of the session, but not enough to bring substantial net losses in any but a few stocks. The status of the Mexican situation was assigned as the reason for this late selling, but to all appearances this differed little if at all from the purely professional dealings which have made up the great bulk of the business on the Stock Exchange recently.

Summarized as briefly as possible the financial community's view of the message which the President read to Congress yesterday was that it was a formal announcement of a deadlock between this country and Mexico. What will occur to end that deadlock was regarded as being as much as ever a matter of uncertainty. But some hopeful opinions regarding the denouement of the situation are beginning to find definite expression in influential banking quarters. One international banker whose opinion in such matters is highly respected in the financial community expressed the belief yesterday, after the President's message had been delivered, that despite the attitude which Gen. Huerta has so far maintained he will have to yield. He is very possibly, this banker pointed out, in dire need of money and cannot get any. He must almost inevitably yield, to be succeeded by some other Provisional President, who perhaps would be recognized by our Government. This banking survey of the matter precludes the acceptance of the alarmist views upon which stock market traders have been basing reliance and who in an admittedly uncertain situation have adopted the unfavorable point of view. Should this banking judgment of the matter prove correct, the Mexican situation would shortly become a much less important market factor, through the ending of the tension between the two countries, even though the re-establishment of friendly relation did not lead immediately to a full restoration of order in Mexico.

The concentration of attention upon the Mexican situation lessened the interest in other happenings of the day. They included a further easing in time money rates, particularly for over-the-year loans, which might well be regarded as significant, considering especially the source from which the money came, and the fact that the continued decline in money rates has gone hand in hand with a noteworthy improvement in the bond market. The chief lender was an international banking house with intimate relations with all the great European money markets. The loans running into January were made at 5 per cent. In reference to the bond position the ease with which this week's $7,000,000 issue of Panhandle bonds was placed suggests the present state of the market. The improvement within a week has been decided. A sidelight on that fact was found in the application made to the Public Service Commission in behalf of the New York Connecting Railway for permission to put out an issue of notes. It was said in the application that notes were to be used because the present condition of the bond market is not good. That memorandum presumably was prepared a week or more ago. Bond dealers said yesterday that the bonds which it is proposed to pledge under these notes bearing the guarantee of the New Haven and the Pennsylvania would probably find a ready market under the conditions which have come to prevail the last few days. Very closely related to this improvement in the bond market is the growing belief that money stringency will be avoided this Fall.

Encouraging information regarding the steel trade was contained in the weekly review of the trade. The buying of steel-making iron has been heavy. The Steel Corporation's incoming orders are understood to be this month at the rate of about 30,000 tons a day, a marked improvement over last month. Prices are somewhat lower than they were, but this seems to have borne fruit in increased business.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 2¼@2½ per cent., with the last loan at 2¼ per cent. The renewal rate was 2⅜ per cent.

Time money rates were 3½@4 per cent. for sixy days, 4¼@4½ per cent. for ninety days, 4½@4¾ per cent. for four months, 5 per cent. for five months, and 5 per cent. for six months.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

New Haven's New Application.

The proposed issue of $67,552,000 of 6 per cent convertible bonds by the New Haven must still receive the approval of the Massachusetts Public Service Commission before it can be made, although the terms were long since fixed and the bonds have been selling on the exchange, with the usual "when issued" clause. There promises to be further opposition before the commission from those shareholders who objected at the annual meeting to the terms of the underwriting, although it seems hardly likely that any further delays will be interposed. The commission has set September 9 as the day for a hearing on the application. The New Haven has filed a supplementary application with the commission, in which no reference is made to the underwriter's 2½ per cent., which gave rise to a suggestion that the syndicate might be dissolved. One of the members said yesterday that the new application was merely to correct a defect in the original one.

Where Steel Stands.

The Street learned yesterday from an official source why so many contradictory reports in regard to prices have been heard in steel trade circles lately. Dispatches from Pittsburgh about two weeks ago said that reductions in some of the finished products, as wire, wire nails, and plates, had been made, extending from $1 to $3 a ton, but before news of the decline had spread widely a prominent steel man denied that any cuts at all had been made. For days thereafter steelmakers were quoted as saying that prices were still on the basis which prevailed early in the year, and yet the impression appeared to be well founded that certain lines were selling at quotations considerably under their level of the early Spring. The publication of a summary of conditions in the steel market as contained in reports to The Iron Age cleared up the situation yesterday by saying that there were no absolute prices on finished material, the intimation being that prices have been shaded in some centres and not in others. Substantial increase of buying since recessions were first reported has, however, led the financial district to believe that maintenance of the previous price level has been the exception and not the rule with most companies.

Southern Pacific Underwriting.

When it was announced that the subscription price of the Southern Pacific stock to be sold on behalf of the Union Pacific had been fixed at 92 there was a considerable amount of buying on the part of those who believed that a good market would be made for Southern Pacific to make the shares look attractive to the Union Pacific holders. The subsequent advance bore out the belief, but not for long. If any attempt to hold the price up has been made, it has not been effective. Yesterday the shares broke through 90 for the first time since the announcement of the subscription terms. Southern Pacific sold down to 89⅝ and closed only ⅛ above the low. The slump almost carried the price to the year's low record, which is 89⅜, made on June 11. One theory of the decline is that shrewd brokers took advantage of an opportunity to make money by the short sale of Southern Pacific old stock and the purchase of Union Pacific rights. It was at first thought that the stock held by the Central Trust Company could not be secured in time for delivery on short sales of the stock in the hands of the public, but a careful reading of the terms brought to light the fact that the Union Pacific rights could not be exercised immediately for the purchase of Southern Pacific certificates, and that with the execution of the necessary affidavit the Southern Pacific shares represented by them could then be released and delivered to make good the short sales.

Effect on the Subscription.

As a result of this operation the number of shares subscribed for is expected to be increased materially. The indications now point to the purchase by Union Pacific stockholders and by those who have obtained the rights on Union Pacific of a very large proportion of the $88,000,000 to be sold. It was said yesterday that two large Stock Exchange houses have each taken up 50,000 shares by means of rights purchased since the announcement of the underwriting terms.

Mexican Message and Stocks.

President Wilson's message on the Mexican situation was received with conflictng emotions by the habitues of brokerage houses yesterday. The pacific tone of the President's views brought relief to most of those who watched the words slowly spelled out on the news ticker, but disappointment was in evidence because the message contained nothing to bear any immediate effect on stocks. A few moments after it became clear that intervention was not being considered by the Administration the stock ticker rattled off a few sales, and the advances shown were large enough to arouse hopes in many overanxious bulls that the market was going to get a little forward impetus at any rate. Union Pacific leaped up ¾ of a point between two transactions, and there was a show of momentary strength in others of the speculative class. Quickly, however, the ticker came to a standstill, and after a time again took up the tale of the day's work in a monotonous fashion. Many minutes after the message was received the bears appeared to find the market unprotected, and were able to force concessions in different parts of the list, but support was not long in coming forth. It was not very persistent, but sufficiently well distributed to cause a day of general nervousness in the Street to end with an irregular but not a decidedly weak stock market.

Maturing Bonds and Notes.

Bond and note issues which mature next month will amount to $11,217,000, according to the records of The Journal of Commerce, as compared with $23,906,000 paid off or refunded in the present month, and $7,660,000 in September of last year. Railroads will retire funded debt to the extent of $9,417,000, while $1,800,000 will comprise interest bearing securities of industrial corporations, and of the railroad obligations to be met, $9,226,000 will be in the form of long term bonds. The largest single amount falling due in September is an issue of $7,500,000 Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad 5 per cent. gold bond which will be replaced on Sept. 2 with a similar issue running for four years, and redeemable on any interest date.

SECURITIES AT AUCTION.

Following securities were sold at auction yesterday at the Exchange Salesroom, 14 Vesey Street, by Adrian H. Muller & Son, auctioneers:

$10,000 St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway Company consolidated mortgage 4½ per cent. bonds, due 1933, coupons January and July, 101⅜.

125 shares United Publishers' Corporation, Class A, preferred, $100 each, 89½-90.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Copper Stocks Steady in Dull Market—Other Issues Shade Off.

Activity toward the close saved the outside market from being monotonous and dull all the way through. Copper shares displayed steadness, but United Cigar Stores reflected the result of pressure in final transactions. The tone at the end of the session was heavy.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Just before the delivery of President Wilson's message to Congress upon the Mexican situation prices on the Consolidated Stock Exchange were raided, with the market moving off sharply. After the publication of the message there was a rally, but before the close weakness again developed. The message was the dominating factor in the market throughout the day. Business on the floor was on a good scale of activity and well distributed, with commission houses handling numerous odd lot orders. American Beet Sugar sold on the 9:30 oclock opening call at 28¼ and California Petroleum after the call at 21½, representing the only market for those two stocks in Wall Street during the day.

Oil Shares Attract London Speculators—Prices Firmer in Berlin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 28.—The Times says in its City article to-day:

"Money was a little more wanted yesterday, but the rates remained easy.

"Discount quotations were supported except for two months' paper. Three months' bills were not freely offered, but were not much wanted at under Tuesday's figures.

"A considerable amount of bar gold was bouhgt by the Bank of England.

"The stock markets were rather less idle, but the increased activity was chiefly confined to the oil share market. Scrips of recent issues were again in fair demand. There was plenty of investment business in all departments.

"Both rises and falls were shown at the close, but in a few cases there were appreciable advances, especially in Rio Tinto shares and De Beers deferred, which were in demand from Paris.

"The American market was undecided in tendency, speculators abstaining from operations pending the outcome of the Mexican difficulty."

PARIS, Aug. 27.—Trading was dull, but prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes 88 francs 57½ centimes for the account.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—Prices were somewhat firmer on the Boerse to-day.

NOR. PACIFIC ELECTION.

Col. Clough the New Chairman; Hannaford Succeeds Elliott.

Directors of the Northern Pacific Railway met yesterday to ratify the recommendations of their Executive Committee regarding the creation of the new office of Chairman. Col. W. P. Clough was elected to fill this position, while Jule M. Hannaford was made President to succeed Howard Elliott and George T. Slade was chosen First Vice President.

Mr. Hannaford, who was formerly Vice President, in charge of traffic, held an informal reception following the meeting. He declined to discuss his plans for the Northern Pacific on the ground that having been in office only five minutes he had not formulated many.

"We are going to have a very good harvest in the Northwest," he said. "But for the record made last year we might call it a bumper crop. I think that it is in some ways better for the farmers than last year's big yield. There promises to be about 80 per cent. as much grain gathered as last year, and it is being harvested at less cost. Last year labor got as much as $3.50 per day in some places, while this year the maximum has been about $2.75. The weather has been ideal for harvesting this Fall, whereas we had a great deal of rain in 1912.

"The business outlook is good, and I don't think tariff changes will make much difference to the Northwest, although the lumber trade may feel them."

UNION PACIFIC PROFITS LOW

Monthly Gain of $4,000 Against $642,000 Increased Costs.

The Union Pacific Railroad made public yesterday its earnings statement for July, the first month of the new fiscal year. Gross revenues were $8,822,000, a gain of only $4,000 over the corresponding month of 1912, while operating costs increased by $642,000. Net earnings declined $672,000.

The company made this comment:

"Operating expenses increased $642,000, as follows: Maintenance, $427,000; traffic expenses, $69,000; transportation, $87,000; general expenses, $38,000, and outside operations, $22,000.

"The large increase in maintenance costs results from the fact that a much larger proportion of the total yearly allowance was expended in July, 1913, than in that month of 1912. The increase in traffic and general expenses is due principally to change in the organization resulting from the merger dissolution. The small increase in transportation expenses is commensurate with the volume of business handled."

ADJUSTING TUBE DEBT.

Holders of Certificates for Old Securities May Exchange Now.

In process of adjusting the debt of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Harvey Fisk & Sons, and Robert Fleming & Co. of London, announced yesterday that the holders of Guaranty Trust Company certificates of deposit for the railroad's old 4½ per cent. mortgage bonds and both classes of stock might present them and receive new securities in their place.

The new bonds and voting trust certificates will be delivered in temporary form. The sum of $22.50 for each $1,000 bond deposited will be called for at the time certificates are presented. The exchange of new for old certificates may be made at the Guaranty Trust Company in this city, at the American Trust Company in Boston, and the St. Louis Union Trust Company in St. Louis.

Action

Have you ever felt the inconvenience of being out of work?

Your earning power is suspended and the time you might have utilized is lost beyond recovery.

The continued income from money always "in action" outweighs the uncertain profits in waiting for lower prices that may never come. You may be losing adequate returns from your idle money.

Why not investigate the short term notes of a successful public utility company, yielding 6¾%?

Ask us for circular 2T.

Bank of France's Metal Holdings.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—The weekly statement of the Bank of France when issued to-morrow will show increases amounting to 26,857,000 francs in gold holdings and 5,098,000 francs in silver.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Wheat declined fractionally under moderate selling yesterday and corn, after fluctuating erratically, ended the session with quotations irregular. Heavy profit taking in corn was a factor in wiping out gains made in early trading. Oats displayed weakness, the options losing from ¼ to ½ cent a bushel. October cotton attained a new high level for the movement, and the other months swung forward vigorously under good buying, ending with gains of from 16 to 23 points. Provisions and cotton oil were dull and closed with only small and irregular changes.

WHEAT.

Considerable liquidation occurred in the wheat market yesterday, especially in the September position. Prices were fairly steady early but the demand was poor and at the close the market was ¼@⅜c net lower. Operations were not of an aggressive character and the market as a whole was narrow but bulls were inclined to be cautious. Northwestern houses predicted an increase in the movement of grain and receipts at Northwestern points were slightly larger than on Tuesday.

Foreign markets were generally lower, owing to liberal offerings from America and on more favorable weather conditions in the United Kingdom, France and Germany. The foreign crops are turning out rather irregular, Broomhall estimating the yield in France at 300,000,000 bushels, or 35,000,000 less than last year. The Price Current said that this country will probably harvest a total crop of 740,000,000 bushels, suggesting a larger export surplus, but added that the failure of the corn crop may affect supplies.

In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at 95½c elevator New York export basis, and 97c free on board; No. 1 Northern Spring, 99½c, free on board.

CORN.

The corn market advanced about ½c in early trading on continued dry weather over the Southwest and on a report by The Price Current that drought conditions in the Southwest have persisted, and that rains thus far have been too light to do any material good to the corn crop. On the advance, however, there was heavy profit taking owing to favorable reports from some of the other States and on more willingness on the part of farmers in these sections to sell. The undertone was feverish, and late in the day there was a partial recovery, prices closing irregular at ⅛c decline to ⅜c advance. In the local cash market export corn was quoted at 83½c, nominal, free on board.

OATS.

The oats market again felt the influence of liquidation and hedge selling against liberal receipts and increasing stocks, and prices closed at a net loss of ¼ to ½c. The local cash market was easy, standard white being quoted at 46½ to 47c; No. 2, 47¼c; No. 3, 45½ to 46c; No. 4, 45 to 45½ c; ordinary clipped white, 45½ to 47c; fancy clipped white, 48 to 51c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market again showed little or no feature, and in absence of aggressive operations price changes were narrow, although generally lower. Receipts of hogs in Chicago were 28,000, estimated for Thursday, 20,000; Kansas City received 7,000, and Omaha 8,400.

COTTON.

The cotton market was unsettled yesterday, although trading was hardly as general as earlier in the week. Heavy realizing was the feature of the session. Midday reactions were recovered in the late trading, however, when it looked as if some of the sold-out bulls were replacing their lines, and the close was firm at a net advance of 16 to 23 points. October contracts made new high ground for the movement, selling at 12.20, or 4 points above the best level of Tuesday, and later deliveries duplicated practically the best prices reached on the previous day.

The opening was firm at an advance of 20 points on August and of 4 to 8 points on later deliveries. Active months sold about 14 points higher right after the call on firm late cables from Liverpool and bullish crop reports of crop condition. A break of 10 or 11 points followed under heavy realizing or selling for a reaction, which may have been encouraged by a favorable review of crop conditions in the Carolinas and Georgia and reports of rain in some of the dryer sections of the Eastern belt. Offerings, however, were well taken around 12 cents for October, and the market became very firm late in the day, closing within a point or two of the top.

A prominent local spot firm published a report this morning indicating a crop condition of 73.9 against 83 last month, and a large Chicago house issued a report later in the day, making the condition 69.4 against 80.7 last month.

Western long interests were credited with selling very heavily during the day, and it was also reported that prominent local longs had been free sellers during the early trading.

Southern spot markets were unchanged to ⅛c higher.

COTTONSEED OIL.

There was considerable selling pressure in the October position, owing to reports of more liberal offerings of crude oil for early shipment, and this position closed at a net decline of 5 points, while the other months were unchanged to 5 points higher. There was moderate selling in the far months early in the day, but offerings were readily absorbed.

COFFEE.

The market closed at a net decline of 21 to 26 points. The official weather map showed lower temperature, but the lowest was 33 4-5 degrees in one of the least important districts. Havre came ½ to ¾ franc higher at the start, but closed unchanged to ¼ higher, while Hamburg declined sharply to close at a net loss of 1 to 1½ pfennigs. Spot coffee, 9⅝c for Rio 7s.

MISCELLANEOUS MARKETS.

BEEF.—There were no price changes reported yesterday for Western beef cuts.

SUGAR.—There was no change yesterday in the refined sugar market. The local raw sugar market was firm, but quiet. The London beet sugar market was easy, being quoted at 9s 8¼d for August, 9s 5¾d for September, and 9s 3¾d for October-December.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS.—The molasses market was quiet and about unchanged. Syrups were in fair demand, at former prices.

RICE.—The local market was steady and unchanged.

FLOUR AND MEAL.—The flour market was moderately active yesterday. Most business was on carload lots, but it was said that buyers and sellers were agreeing a little better on round lots. Prices were unchanged.

OILS.—Petroleum and linseed oil were steady and unchanged.

NAVAL STORES.—The turpentine market was easier yesterday, and prices dropped about ½c. Resin and tar were steady and unchanged.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces for Sept. 15 an open competitive examination for entomological assistant, for men only, to fill a vacancy in the Bureau of Entomology, Department of Agriculture, for service in the field, at $2,250 a year, and vacancies as they may occur in places requiring similar qualifications. The duties will be to conduct a special investigation of the means of control of malaria-transmitting mosquitos. It is desired to obtain the services of a person who is familiar with the methods of control and eradication of mosquitos in tropical and subtropical countries. Familiarity with the appearance and details of chronic malaria will also be of value.

Competitors will not be assembled at any place for examination, but will be rated on general education and scientific training, practical experience and fitness, and publications or thesis.

An education equivalent to that required for graduation from a college or university of recognized standing, such training to have included courses in entomology, and not less than five years' practical experience in entomological work, such experience to have included some work in tropical or subtropical countries, are prerequisites for consideration for this place. Age, 25 years or over on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

EDUCATION NOTES.

The Board of Education has not yet appointed the two physicians, third grade, as examiners of mentally defective children in the public schools. On Aug. 8 the Municipal Civil Service Commission certified lists of men and woman candidates who had passed the examination for this place, such certification to remain in force for a period of fifteen days. The lists have been published in THE TIMES. The commission has received a letter, dated Aug. 21, from President Thomas W. Churchill of the Board of Education saying that there will be no meeting of the Board of Education until Sept. 10, and requesting that the names be recertified. This request has been granted by the commission.

The commission also received a requisition from President Churchill for a list from which to appoint eight temporary clerks at $3 a day for a period of about two weeks or longer. The commission has accordingly certified seven names from the preferred list and ten names from the open competitive list in anticipation of declinations.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Operators Sell in Forty-ninth Street Near Seventh Avenue—W. R. Hearst Takes Title to Riverside Drive Apartment—Bronx and Brooklyn Deals—Woman Buys Plandome Plot.

A deal in the upper Times Square section which will probably lead to a business improvement was made yesterday by the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company in the sale to a building syndicate of the property at 153 and 155 West Forty-ninth Street, being 150 feet east of Seventh Avenue. The plot is covered with two old three-story dwellings, having a frontage of 41.8 by 100.5 feet.

It was sold for the Longacre Estate Company, composed of Fisher Lewine, S. H. Stone and Isidor H. Kempner. It adjoins a large garage owned by the Rossiter Realty Company, and was acquired by the sellers over a year ago from the Stonewall Realty Company. The Longacre Company a year ago bought the property at 154 and 156 West Fiftieth Street and resold it to Josephine K. Cugley.

W. R. Hearst Takes Title.

William Randolph Hearst took title yesterday to the twelve-story apartment in which he lives, on the southeast corner of Riverside Drive and Eighty-sixth Street, a plot 102.2 by 100. Mr. Heast purchased it a short time ago from Ronald Macdonald for about $900,000. He assumes the existing mortgage on the property of $525,000, and gives an additional mortgage of $175,000 to Mr. Macdonald, making the total mortgages on the apartment plot $700,000.

Tenement Property Sold.

An investor is reported to have purchased the two six-story new-law tenements 318 to 326 East Seventy-eighth Street, on a plot 82.9 by 102.2 feet. Ida Lindebad is the owner of record.

Bronx Borough Sales.

Kurz & Uren have sold for Royal Wolcott, 659 East 165th Street, a five-story new-law apartment, 37.6 by 88 by 100 feet, to a clinet of M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company.

The Cioffi Company bought from Lena Manassa the five-story flat on a plot 46 by 93 by irregular, at the northeast corner of Arthur Avenue and 181st Street. Three lots in Van Nest were given in part payment.

Dr. J. R. Fabricius has purchased 2,291 Aqueduct Avenue, a two-story dwelling, on a plot 37.6 by 100 feet, located near Fordham Road.

Sells Six Brooklyn Dwellings.

The Magenta Development Company, of which Henry Rockmore is President has sold the following two-story brick private dwellings each in a lot 18.3 by 120 feet to Lewis Sprower, 78 Forbell Avenue; to Elizabeth Gramer, 76 Forbell Avenue; to John Berg, 74 Forbell Avenue; to Albert H. Hermanson, 76 Forbell Avenue; to Adam Himmer, 71 Forbell Avenue; and to Laura E. Mauder, 68 Forbell Avenue.

Brooklyn.

Charles E. Rickerson, has sold 547 First Street, between Eighth and Prospect Park West, a three-story and basement, limestone dwelling, with extension for Mrs. Ettye Bryant, to Martin F. Metzner for occupancy.

The Turner Construction Company has been awarded the general contract for the construction of a seven-story and basement factory building for the Boorum & Pease Company, Front Street and Hudson Avenue, Brooklyn. The building is to be of reinforced concrete throughout, 100 by 100 in size. Work to be undertaken at once.

Long Island.

One of the largest sales recently made at Plandome, near Manhasset, has just been closed by L'Ecluse, Washburne & Co., who sold a tract of four lots with about 400 feet of frontage for $20,000, to Mrs. Isabel Nelson of Utica, New York. Plans are being prepared for a stone house by the architect, F. H. Briggs, to cost about $35,000.

Joseph F. Negreen has purchased a plot 75 by 100 at the corner of Henry Street and Hoffman Boulevard, Winfield, from De Hass Simonson. He also bought from John Weidon a plot 150 by 100 on Second Street, Woodside, and at the partition sale in Jamaica, a plot 125 by 100 on Anderson Avenue, near Fifth Street, Woodside.

New Jersey.

The Dunn estate has sold to a client of W. R. Moore, a cottage on Norwood Avenue, West End, Long Branch, and two acres of land.

The Mountain Lakes Company has sold to Ella L. Marsh, of Manhattan, a large stucco and frame dwelling, fronting on the new State road at Mountain Lakes residential park.

Sale at Tuckahoe.

J. S. Maxwell, in conjunction with E. H. Peck, has sold to Mrs. Olive H. Chesbro the southeast corner of Midland Avenue and Tuckahoe Road, Tuckahoe, N. Y. The property consists of four and a half city lots with a frame dwelling and barn.

Leases.

H. C. Senior & Co. have leased the five-story American basement dwelling 42 West Ninety-sixth Street for a term of years to Dr. Myron Scudder and Abner B. North of the Scudder Collegiate School, which is located on the same street.

The Cross & Brown Company have leased the store in the Motor Mart, 1,876 Broadway, to the Knox Automobile Company.

Royal Scott Gulden has leased the store at 51 West Forty-fifth Street to L. E. Nace, milliner.

Louis Schrag has leased for Frederick W. Marks the dwelling at 159 West Twenty-second Street to Hortense Bloomfield.

The McVickar-Gaillard Realty Company was the sole broker in the leasing of 240 West Fifty-fifth Street for Sadie Bonwit to the Empire Tire and Rubber Company, recently reported.

Steinway Tunnel Action To-day.

A large delegation of Long Island City taxpayers will attend the meeting of the Board of Estimate to-day when the Steinway tunnel construction contract will come up for action.

The board at its last meeting in July refused to act on the recommendation of the Public Service Commission that this contract be approved.

The agreement provided that the Interborough Rapid Transit Company should do the work and get 10 per cent. profit on the job.

A committee was appointed to look into the matter and report at to-day's meeting.

Realty Notes.

There are no auction offerings of real estate scheduled to-day for the Manhattan or Bronx salesroom.

Greenwich Commonwealth of Public School 41 will hold an open meeting tonight to demand better transit facilities below Thirteenth Street on Eighth Avenue, and below Fourth Street on the Sixth Avenue lines during the rush hours.

And all buildings, tools, apparatus, and machinery and any and all leases, contracts, inventions, patents, rights, and franchises of every kind owned or acquired by said defendants for use in or in connection with the business or manufacturing and dealing in cement or analogous products.

The aforesaid property, premises, franchises, and personal property will be sold without liability on the part of the purchaser to see to the application of the purchase money.

The offering of the property will be subject to the right of the court to accept the bid or bids which it shall deem the highest and best in interest of the parties.

As to such personal property as has been delivered to and taken by the First National Bank of Easton, Pennsylvania, as pledgee, under and in accordance with a certain agreement and lien, on the part of the Northampton Portland Cement Company (of Delaware), terre tenant, one of said defendants, and in said agreement and lease described and scheduled, bearing date the 31st day of October, 1911, and therein and thereby set apart to and held by said bank as collateral security for a certain loan or indebtedness owing by said defendant to said bank, being at the date of the said decree the sum of $22,868.23, with interest thereon from April 30, 1912, the purchaser shall take title subject to said lien; but nothing in the decree or in this notice contained shall constitute, or be deemed an adjudication upon said lien, nor in favor of, nor against, any purchaser under this decree or other person with respect thereto, save that as to a purchaser hereunder it shall be deemed notice of the fact and general terms thereof.

At such sale there shall be paid to the trustee or to its duly authorized representative or attorney, by the purchaser or purchasers at the said sale, immediately upon the said property being struck down to him or them, the sum of five thousand ($5,000) dollars on account of the purchase money. Such sum may be paid by approved certified check or certificate of deposit. In default of such payment the premises and property as aforesaid shall be immediately resold, and such bidder or bidders shall be personally liable to the trustee for the amount of the difference between the price obtained upon such resale and the amount of the previous bid.

There shall be paid in cash, of the price at which said property shall be sold, in addition to the amount paid at the time of the sale, such further portion of the purchase money as the court shall direct.

The remainder of the purchase price shall be paid within thirty days after the date of sale, either in cash or in bonds or overdue coupons secured by the mortgage on the property, reckoning each bond or coupon so appropriated and used at such sum as shall be payable thereon out of the net proceeds of the sale.

Any person proposing to purchase the properties at the said sale is referred to said decree in this notice specifically mentioned, for a more full and complete description of the properties therein directed to be sold, and which it is proposed to sell in accordance with the foregoing notice, and also for the terms and conditions upon which the sale of the said property shall be made. The said decree may be found filed in the Prothonotary's office of the Court of Common Pleas of Northampton County, Pennsylvania at Easton, Pennsylvania, and is subject to the inspection of the public generally. A certified copy of such decree is in the possession of the trustee, at its office, at No. 37 Wall Street, New York, and will be in its possession at the time and place of sale and may be inspected by interested persons or bidders.

RECEIVERS' NOTICES.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, DISTRICT Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts.—No. 472.—In Equity.—RENSSELAER CURTIS v. WALPOLE TIRE & RUBBER COMPANY.—Order requiring proof of claims August 23, 1913.

DODGE, J. This cause came on to be heard upon the petition of the receiver praying that an order be made fixing a time within which the claims of creditors against the estate and property of the Walpole Tire & Rubber Company in the hands of said receiver shall be filed and proved. It being apparent that such order is expedient and necessary, it is ordered, adjudged, and decreed that all creditors of the Walpole Tire & Rubber Co., the respondent herein, present their claims made up as of August 2, 1913, verified by affidavit, to the Receiver at the office of his attorneys, Friedman & Atherton, 53 State Street, Boston, on or before the first day of November, 1913, and that all persons or corporations whose claims are not presented in the manner and time herein specified shall be barred from participating in the distribution of the bonds in the hands of the receiver unless the court for good cause shall otherwise order.

And it is further ordered, adjudged, and decreed that the receiver give notice of this order by publishing an attested copy thereon in The Boston Evening Transcript, a newspaper published in the City of Boston, and in The New York Times, a newspaper published in the City of New York, once each week, for four successive weeks immediately following the entry of this order, and by mailing to all known creditors of the said respondent at their addresses as shown on the receiver's books a printed copy of this order. By the Court,

CHARLES K. DARLING, Clerk.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—A slight disturbance over the extreme northeastern section caused thunder showers during Wednesday in the North Atlantic States and at a few scattered places in the Middle Atlantic States near the coast. There were showers also on the South Atlantic and Gulf Coasts and at a few places in Northern Minnesota, North Dakota, and the southern Rocky Mountain region. Elsewhere throughout the country the weather has been fair.

The weather continues unseasonably warm over the Middle West, and temperatures were generally above 100 degrees on Wednesday in Southern Nebraska, Kansas, and Oklahoma. Temperatures have fallen in the lake region and Far Northwest.

The weather will be generally fair Thursday and Friday, although there may be light scattered showers Thursday and Friday in the lower lake regions. Scattered showers will occur also on Thursday on the East Gulf Coast and along the southern slope of the Rocky Mountains, but the rain areas will not be well defined.

Temperatures will fall somewhat Thursday in the North Atlantic States, and will rise Thursday and Friday in the lake region. The weather will be cooler by Friday in all districts between the Rockies and the Mississippi.

Winds along the North Atlantic Coast will be brisk southwest, shifting to northwest Thursday; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate to brisk southwest to northwest; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate east to southeast.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair and cooler Thursday. Friday fair; moderate to brisk northwest winds, shifting to northeast Friday.

Southern New England—Fair and cooler Thursday. Friday fair; brisk northwest winds, shifting to northeast Friday.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair and somewhat cooler Thursday. Friday fair; moderate to brisk northwest winds Thursday; northeast Friday.

Western New York—Fair Thursday. Friday warmer and probably fair; moderate northeast winds Thursday; southeast Friday.

New England—Fair Thursday, preceded by showers in Maine; cooler Friday, fair; brisk southwest winds, shifting to northwest Friday.

The Style of Architecture,
Elegance of Appointments,
Size and Layout of the Rooms and the Comfort of them—
The Paint,
The Woodwork,
The Decoration (materials or silks are allowed on four rooms).
It excels them all—
Besides the refrigeration and ice-making in all refrigerators, the use of the vacuum, whenever wanted; the fine light laundry, with electric irons and boiling facilities for the clothes—on the top floor. Last and not least, the Service and Attention given the tenants have enabled the "Langham" to keep thirty-two out of forty-four tenants for over six years, and they have all renewed their leases this year.

M'GRANE, LIKE RUPP, SICK OF SUFFRAGISM

Cooks and Does the Housework, but Can't Stand His Wife's Speech Rehearsals.

SHE TIRES HIS TENANTS, TOO

Arrested for Beating Her, Although He Seems Small for the Job, He Is Held for Trial.

The army of supperless husbands who place responsibility for their domestic infelicities at the door of woman suffrage gained a new recruit yesterday when Joseph McGrane was arraigned in court in Flatbush charged with beating his wife. He informed Magistrate Steers that he sympathized deeply with Lawrence Rupp, husband of Martha Rupp, the East New York suffragette, and that he would work with Rupp, if the latter were willing, to build up an organization for the protection of husbands with suffragette wives.

McGrane lives at 1,088 Fulton Street, Brooklyn. He is short of stature and rather slender. His wife is much taller than he and of more ample proportions. Her name is Nora, and she is Captain of the suffragette forces in the Eleventh Assembly District. When called to testify against her husband, she announced to the court:

"I am a suffragette!"

The words were uttered in a tone loud enough to be heard all over the room.

"Thank you, madam, for your profession of faith; but what has that got to do with this case?" Magistrate Steers asked.

"Well, because I believe in woman's rights and go to meetings to help the cause, my husband objects. He has not enough intellect to realize that votes for women should be granted. On Monday night, when I returned home from a very busy political session, he became very angry and struck me in the face with his fist. He knocked me down and kicked me, and went so far as to throw a bottle at me."

The courtroom was filled with suffragette friends of Mrs. McGrane, and there were loud murmurings of sympathy from them. Among the men there were admiring glances at the small but valiant MrGrane. All wondered how he ever had nerve enough to even attempt what his wife charged him with having accomplished.

When called upon by the court to give his side of the controversy, McGrane stated it thus:

"My wife is a politician, and a good one. But she is wrong in this case. I did not touch her—I would not dare to. But I want to say that this suffragette proposition has got my nerve. I have reached the point where I can stand it no longer. No militant suffragette has anything on my wife. She has made the last few years of my life unbearable. Why, your Honor, I am cook, housecleaner, and man-of-all-work about our place. While I am doing the housework my wife reads 'votes for women' literature and talks her neighbors to death.

"And that isn't the worst of it," McGrane continued in a vehement manner. "When she returns from a meeting she makes me listen while she repeats the speeches she mde during the evening. In the morning she compels me to listen to speeches she has in course of preparation. The housework is bad enough, but the speeches—ugh!

"Every time we get a tenant in our house my wife talks suffragism to the members of that family until they get so tired of it they move away. We can't keep the rooms rented because of her oratory."

While McGrane was telling his tale of woe the women suffragettes in court shot withering glances of disdain at him, but the men openly showed their sympathy with him.

Magistrate Steers said that his court could not go into the merits or demerits of suffragism, and that all that concerned the court was the alleged assault. He said the case was one for the Court of Special Sessions, and held McGrane for trial in $300 bail.

While awaiting the arrival of a bondsman McGrane was told that in the event of his being unable to obtain bail he would be sent to Raymond Street Jail.

"Oh, that would be all right," he replied; "I could get a nice rest there. I'll bet there are no suffragettes in the men's prison."

The first thing McGrane did after his bondsman appeared was to obtain the address of Lawrence Rupp from the newspaper reporters.

LIEUT. RILEY MADE CAPTAIN.

Made a Record as Detective at Headquarters.

Police Lieut. Dominick Riley was appointed Captain yesterday by order of Commissioner Waldo. He had stood at the top of the civil service list for promotion. Appointed to the force in 1896, he has spent most of the last twelve years at Headquarters as a detective identified with many important cases. He made arrests in the Heaney and Teare murder and he captured Raymond Fosbrey after the latter's spectacular escape from the Tombs. He worked on the taxi bandit cases and in rounding up the wire-tappers. When Lieut. Becker was indicted, Riley took his place as head of the vice squad at Headquarters. He is of conspicuously fine appearance and has a good presence.

The Commissioner also announced the retirement of Capt. Cornelius Leary of the College Point Station. Leary is 64 years old and served in the civil war. Two captains were transferred and four Serbeants were made Lieutenants.

RABBI SEEKS REFUGE HERE.

Persecuted at Home, Mordecai, Famous in Russia, Quits the Country.

Former residents of Tolna, a town in the Province of Kief, Russia, were busy yesterday discussing plans for the formation of a synagogue and congregation of Jews of Tolna, for their former rabbi, David Mordecai, better known for his orthodoxy and rabbinical lore throughout Southern Russia as "der Tolna Zadik," which translated means "the righteous man of Tolna."

Rabbi Mordecai arrived here on the steamship Vaderland on Tuesday, after an exciting career in his home town. He was received by a delegation of his townsmen and a delegation from the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society at the pier.

The "Tolna Zadik" is less than thirty years old. Six years ago he succeeded his father, who was also a famous rabbi of Russia, known as "der Tolna Zadik." His wife was a daughter of the famous Rabbi Zalmini of Rashkof. Rabbi Mordecai himself is a leader of the Chassidim, an ultra-pietist sect among the orthodox Jews. When he arrived here on Tuesday he was accompanied by his Gabbay, a sort of assistant or private secretary, who, in accordance with the custom of the Chassidim, constantly accompanies the rabbi and arranges all his affairs with laymen.

The Tolna Zadik came to this country as a result of persecution in and near his home town. A strong, powerfully-built young man, he was seized upon by the Russian authorities to be drafted into the army, but escaped through the great popular outcry made by his Jewish fellow townsmen. Later, a thief broke into the Tolna synagogue and stole the two scrolls of the law from the altar. Rabbi Mordecai, who despite his aversion to serving in the Russian army, is known also as "the militant rabbi," with two of his brothers promptly broke into the thief's house and recaptured the scrolls of the law.

The thief had all three brothers arrested on charges of burglary, but again the popular outcry against his persecution saved the rabbi, and he and his brothers were acquitted. It was after this, however, that he decided to come to this country. He will send for his wife and four children later.

MRS. SMITH'S CROSS BILL.

Accuses Art Auctioneer and Mrs. Mary Pynchon in Divorce Suit.

Mrs. Clara Wilhelm Smith, whose husband, Charles E. Smith, an art auctioneer and former champion golf player, sued her for divorce, filed a counter suit against him yesterday, naming Mrs. Mary Pynchon of Larchmont, a niece of Mrs. Wesley M. Oler, as co-respondent. Mr. Smith had named James R. Gilmore, President of the Sheppard Knapp Company, manufacturers of carpets and importers, as co-respondent, and had sued Mr. Gilmore for $50,000 damages for the alienation of his wife's affections.

The counter suit drew attention to the fact that in 1910 Lauriston F. L. Pynchon, husband of the co-respondent named by Mrs. Smith, caused her arrest and that of Smith at Rye for endangering the morals of his 7-year-old daughter Dorothy.

Mrs. Smith said in her complaint that between August, 1909, and May, 1910, her husband and Mrs. Pynchon were at 229 West 100th Street and in July and August, 1910, in the Pynchon bungalow at Rye.

The proceeding brought by Mr. Pynchon against Mr. Smith and Mrs. Pynchon was dismissed. Little Dorothy became hysterical on the witness stand.

In Mr. Smith's suit to which his wife replied he charged that she and Gilmore spent week-ends together at Gilmore's country house at Oceanic, N. J. The Smiths were married about eighteen years ago, shortly after he won the national golf championship at Detroit.

SEIZED A SHIP'S CABIN.

Oruba's Stewards Had a Hard Struggle to Oust Two Invaders.

Officers of the Royal Mail steam packet Oruba, which arrived yesterday from Southampton, were nursing bruises suffered in a fight while the ship was lying in Colon Harbor at the Isthmus of Panama.

"While we were preparing to weigh anchor in Colon Harbor after fifty tourists from the Panama Canal had joined the ship," said Purser Rigby, "a steward told me that two or more men were in one of the unengaged second cabins. Mr. Rudd and I went aft together. I knocked at the door, and the only response was a volley of oaths. Rudd hoisted me up to the transom of the stateroom. In there I saw two tall men facing the door, each with a revolver drawn and cocked.

"'Are you coming out without a fight?' I asked them.

"'You'll know that if you don't make yourself scarce,' one of the men replied.

"We sent word up to the bridge to hold the ship, and put our shoulders to the door. It took some pushing, but we managed it. The lock flew off and we fell into the room headlong. There was a fight after that, but the stewards helped us, and we threw the men off the ship. They were arrested and locked up when we put them ashore."

IN NEW JERSEY.

HACKENSACK.—Charles Schroeder, 21 years old, a son of Borough Councilman Gustave Schroeder, was drowned in the old swimming hole in the Hackensack River near Riveredge last night. His body was recovered after the hole had been dragged for hours by lantern light.

HACKENSACK.—Negotiable papers valued at $16,000 stolen from the Grantwood Post Office a few weeks ago were found near the reservoir at Cliffside to-day. The papers belonged to Postmaster P. J. Carney. Yeggman blew open the Post Office safe and besides these papers got $1,000 in cash and stamps.

PATERSON.—Rose Regerski, 1 year old, of 109 River Street, found and ate some strychnine pills left on a table by her mother. She died later in the Mariam Barnert Hospital.

PATERSON.—The Weekly Issue, a Socialist paper, whose editor, Alexander Scott of Passaic, is under sentence of from one to fifteen years in State's prison for publishing inflammatory articles during the recent strike of silk workers, has practically suspended publication. The printer who has been publishing it withheld the last edition from circulation because he had not been paid for his work.

PATERSON.—Lena Christman, a six-year-old girl, of 14 Governor Street, went out into the country and ate jimson weed on Tuesday. Four doctors labored all night and until after noon to-day at the Mariam Barnert Hospital and succeeded in saving her life.

BELVIDERE.—The Freeholders of Warren County, back from a two-day trip of inspection of the roads and bridges of Upper Warren County, report that they found fifteen bridges totally destroyed and a number badly damaged by the floods of the past few weeks. The board estimates the loss in bridges and damage to roads at not less than $50,000.

GUESTS INSPECT NEW STERN STORE

Building in Forty-second Street Will Be Thrown Open to the Public on Next Tuesday.

NEW DEVICES INSTALLED

So Far as Possible Goods Will Be Under Glass—Building Designed to Make Shopping Pleasant.

Although Tuesday of next week is the day set for the formal opening of the new store of Stern Brothers, at Forty-second and Forty-third Streets, the building was inspected by guests of the firm last night. The structure, which occupies more than half the block between Sixth and Fifth Avenues, illustrates the growth of the department store business and the complex system under which many small shops are grouped in one building.

The building contains nine stories and the floor area is some 600,000 square feet. The fixtures on the first floor are in place, and the visitor obtains a vivid impression of the great size of the store by looking down the aisles to the exits at the other side, a block away. The fixtures on the first floor are entirely of mahogany, relieved by walls of cream white. The lines are pleasing because of their simplicity. The spacing between the counters varies from ten to twenty feet, allowing ample room to accommodate large crowds comfortably. The entire business of a sale is managed wholly within one counter section. Goods are sold, paid for, wrapped and change is made at the centre desk which is enclosed in the middle of each counter section, thereby cutting out long delays.

A special feature of the establishment which has been carried out on almost every floor is the enclosure of practically all stock in glass cases. With the exception of the departments in which trunks and china are sold, everything will be in cases, safe from the dangers of dust and to much handling. Practically no goods will be on the open counters or tables. The new fixtures for this store represent, according to the authorities of the establishment, an expenditure of some one million dollars. The carpets alone cost $75,000.

The French parlors for the display of imported goods are expected to appeal to women shoppers. Inclosed from the general sales floor by glass grill work, they present a delicate and most attractive appearance. The woodwork within is a soft French gray, wit ha thick carpet of the same pale shade. The chairs are of an attractive French pattern in a darker smoke gray, and there are innumerable full length French mirrors mounted in gray, with special showcases and tables of artistic design. One of these parlors will be reserved for infants' imported clothing, and a space nearly half the length of the Forty-third Street side has been finished in this style for the imported millinery department.

The lighting system of the building represents much study. The illumination is soft and is diffused to every corner of the structure. On the first floor large cream-colored lamps of lantern shap have been installed. The main entrance to the store is in Forty-second Street, and smaller entrances are in Forty-third Street and Sixth Avenue. Automobiles will arrive at the Forty-third Street entrance, where an ample drive curves up within the line of the building so that shoppers may alight under cover. A special elevator at Forty-third Street and Sixth Avenue will lift motor trucks to any one of the nine floors.

An extensive elevator service has been provided at both ends of the building, and well equipped rest rooms and a tea room and restaurant are on the fourth floor. For the employes of the establishment there are a lunch room, lockers, a library, hospital, and recreation rooms. It is planned later on to convert the roof into a recreation garden for the 4,000 employes of the firm.

The building is fireproof. The sprinkling system has been inclosed so that only the nozzles of the pipes are visible. According to representatives of the store the building has the hearty approval of the Chief of the Fire Department.

This is the third time in the history of Stern Brothers that the establishment has moved. Forty-six years ago they opened a small store in Sixth Avenue far downtown. After eleven years the store moved to Twenty-third Street, which was then the fashionable shopping district of the city. Additions were made to the store, and then it was decided to move to the neoghborhood of Times Square. Business will be discontinued at the Twenty-third Street store on Thursday night.

WON'T STOP BRIGHTON SALE

Property of Racing Association to be Auctioned To-day as Planned.

Supreme Court Justice Crane of Brooklyn refused yesterday to enjoin the foreclosure sale of the property owned by the Brighton Beach Racing Association at Brighton Beach, and it will take place to-day. Application for the injunction was made by Arthur J. Baldwin of the law firm at 27 Pine Street, Manhattan, acting in conjunction with executors of the estate of Joseph D. Carroll.

Carroll died in 1912. He was one of the stockholders in the Bay Realty Company, which was said to have been organized in 1908 by William A. Engeman, former President of the Brighton Beach Racing Association, and ex-City Chamberlain Charles H. Hyde. In the papers filed with the application for an injunction it is charged that a certain part of the stock of the Bay Realty Company was hypothecated for a loan, and later on the property which the company owned was deeded away. The collateral which now belongs to the estate of Carroll is said to be worthless.

The foreclosure proceeding was brought by Michael McBreen against the Brighton Beach Racing Association. He made two loans on the company's property, one for $110,000 and another for $50,000. McBreen and the Bay Realty Company were also named as defendants in the injunction suit.

In an interview yesterday Charles H. Hyde declared there was no irregularity in the transaction so far as he was concerned.

Gem Robbery at Robert H. Reid's.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The home of Robert H. Reid in Prospect Avenue was entered early Friday morning and jewelry valued at several thousand dollars stolen. The family and the police refuse to give any details. It is said Mrs. Reid lost a valuable collection, consisting of a coral necklace, rings, and brooches. Mrs. Reid is in New York and has ordered servants to give no information.

SAW ATTACK ON LEGUIA.

American Says New President Inspired Peruvian Mob.

William H. Taylor, a South American representative of the American Steel and Wire Company, who arrived from South America on the Royal Mail liner Oruba yesterday, said that he was in Lima, Peru, at the time of the recent revolt. He saw five men killed when the mob stoned the home of ex-President Leguia.

"It is the opinion of Americans in Peru," said Mr. Taylor, "that followers of President Billinghurst were behind the attack on ex-President Leguia's house. It is thought that President Billinghurst is afraid that Leguia has too much influence with the people.

"The Leguia house is a two-story structure, built in a hollow square. When the mob stormed it shots were fired into the house and voices called on the ex-President to come out. Then some of those below procured ladders and began to scale the walls, intending to climb to the roof and enter that way. Leguia and his friends made a good defense. As soon as members of the mob began to ascend the ladders they were shot. Two fell dead from the ladders and many were wounded. Three were killed in front of the house.

"Members of the police, who were among the attacking party, then called upon the ex-President to surrender. He did so and he was put in jail and was held incommunicado for a week. Then he was ordered into exile, and he came north to Panama City with me.

"Mr. Leguia will stay at Panama for the present. He believes that most of the people favor him. He has two sons at school in this country, one at the Staunton Military Academy in Virginia and the other in Wisconsin."

CALLS GAMBLERS' PATRONS.

Grand Jury Seeking Evidence Against Designated Houses.

The corridors of the Criminal Court Building swarmed yesterday with patrons of gambling houses in the Third Inspection District, bearing subpoenas to appear before the Grand Jury. The subpoenas, which were served by detectives as the patrons left the houses, demanded the presence of recipients to testify as to what they had seen.

The holders of subpoenas were asked to give their right names and addresses and the correctness of their information will be investigated. Several, who were served but who failed to appear, will be sought out by detectives on Deputy Commissioner Newburger's staff. The Grand Jury hearing was put over to Wednesday of next week, when it is hoped to have every one who was served present.

Most of those who were called yesterday were served outside of houses in East Seventeenth Street and East Eighteenth Street. Several others were called from clubs in Thirty-second Street between Fifth Avenue and Broadway.

EJECTED FROM A SLEEPER.

Mrs. Mason Now Sues Rutland Railroad for $5,000.

Mrs. Carroll Brady Mason began a $5,000 damage suit yesterday in the Supreme Court against the Rutland Railroad. Mrs. Mason said she bought passage and Pullman tickets in Montreal on August 27, 1911, for New York. After she had donned her night raiment and got to sleep, she said the porter and two other men in uniform woke her up and, giving her scant time to dress, escorted her "with a show of force" to a second-class day coach, where men were playing cards. The episode, she said, brought on an attack of neuritis and nervous prostration. The railroad company has thirty days in which to answer the suit.

The papers in the case gave no explanation as to why Mrs. Mason was ejected.

STOVER NAMES LION CUBS.

Throng Attends Open-Air Ceremony for New Inmates of Park Menagerie.

A throng of some 300 persons formed a circle yesterday afternoon on the lawn in Central Park between the Lion House and the Arsenal to see Park Commissioner Stover name the five lion cubs born early in July to Helen and Bismarck of the Park menagerie. Through the newspapers, Mr. Stover had asked for suggestions, and he was flooded with letters offering Mayor Gaynor, Rosalie Jones, Theodore Roosevelt, and Sylvia Pankhurst.

But the five cubs' forbears hailed from Africa, so African names were chosen. Menelek, Darfur, and Berber for the little lions, and Tona and Juba for the little lionesses. Each name was bestowed with Mr. Stover's right hand resting upon the cub's head—a ceremony through which they were kept quiet with much difficulty.

TO STUDY ACTRESS'S SUIT.

Counsel for Husband Seeks to Examine Divorce Papers of Pauline Hall.

Charles N. Talpot, counsel for George B. McLellan, playwright and stage manager, who was formerly the husband of Pauline Hall, asked Justice Donnelly yesterday for permission to inspect the sealed papers in the divorce suit which Pauline Hall brought in 1904. These papers, Mr. Talpot said, would show the terms of the decree under which Mrs. McLellan obtained a divorce, the custody of her child, and alimony.

What Mr. McLellan's object was or on what details he wished to perfect his recollection Mr. Talpot would not say. A few years ago Mr. McLellan, who lives in London, had to compromise with his wife so that he might visit New York without being brought up for contempt of court for non-payment of alimony.

ARREST FOUR MEN FOR KILLING HORSES

The Grand Jury Holds Over in Order to Complete Investigation of Poisoning Plots.

ACCUSE ICE CREAM MAKERS

Ex-Member of Trade Association Whose Horses Were Destroyed Among Complainants.

The term of the Grand Jury which has been investigating the operations of horse poisoners on the east side was extended a week yesterday in order to complete the inquiry. Two indictments were found yesterday, making five in all, and four of those accused were arrested. It is expected that indictments will be found against fourteen persons before the inquiry closes.

The indictments found yesterday were based upon the testimony of Joseph Toblinsky, whose confession to Assistant District Attorney Weller gave the ground for action by the Grand Jury. Toblinsky, who admitted that he participated in the poisoning of more than 200 horses, has been sentenced to ten years in State prison for larceny. Mr. Weller produced six witnesses yesterday to corroborate Toblinsky's story.

Samuel Stolowitz of the S. & K. Trucking Company, one of those indicted, whose stables are at the Bowery and Hester Street, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detectives Foley and Nelson of the District Attorney's office. He is in the Tombs and will be arraigned to-day before Judge Rosalsky to answer a charge of "wilfully destroying the property of another." According to the testimony before the Grand Jury Stolowitz in 1908 and 1909 was a partner with Samuel Wachatinsky in the livery business at 13 Sheriff Street. In 1909 Wachatinsky bought out Stolowitz's interest for $2,500. Stolowitz opened a new stable which cut into Wachatinsky's business. It is alleged that when Stolowitz saw that his customers were taking their horses to his competitor's stable, he hired Samuel Paper to poison seven of Wachatinsky's horses. It was then that Toblinsky entered the case. He arranged a peace between the two men, it is said.

When the Grand Jury meets to-day it will investigate charges against members of the Ice Cream Manufacturers' Association. Other members of the association have asked for the inquiry, among them George Weiss, President of the Independent Ice Cream Company, whose plant is at 106th Street and the East River. At a meeting of the association Mr. Weiss was said to have asked for a report on the use made of money collected in 1908, 1909, 1910, and 1911. These collections, it is understood, were assessed against members according to the amount of salt they used, on a basis of 4 per cent. of the cost. Since some of the members used many tons of salt a week the amount collected was very large. When Mr. Weiss's request for an accounting was refused he resigned from the association. Soon after this it was alleged he was requested to return to the association, but he refused. Some days later eight of his horses were poisoned. It is charged that the poisoner in this case was a man known on the east side as "John L.," who is now a fugitive from justice on another charge.

Herman Rich, a member of the firm of Cohen, Rich & Cohen, liverymen at 14 Hamilton Street, who was indicted on Tuesday on the charge of poisoning horses, surrendered yesterday at the District Attorney's office. Assistant District Attorney Weller asked that bail be fixed at $15,000. Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions fixed bail at $7,500, saying that he would consider an application to increase the amount later.

McCLURE & CO. IN CONTEMPT

Violated Injunction Obtained by McClure Syndicate.

Supreme Court Justice Weeks held H. H. McClure & Co., Inc., to be in contempt of court yesterday and ordered it to pay a fine of $250. The contempt order was granted on application of the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, which had obtained an injunction to compel the company to live up to a contract to remain out of the newspaper syndicate business, "so long as any contributor to its service continued to write for newspaper syndication." The agreement was signed Sept. 10, 1911.

The contempt order was based on the syndication through Seth Moyle, a literary agent, of short stories by the late O. Henry, which were turned over to Moyle, it was said, by F. Wood, owner of the corporate stock of the defendant company.

ROBS HIS BENEFACTOR.

Mr. Coleman Offers Reward for Arrest of Man Who Stole His Watch.

A man who was dressed shabbily entered the Gould & Marsden Studios at 249 West Forty-second Street yesterday and asked Mr. Coleman, a member of the firm, for money to buy food. Mr. Coleman asked the man to sit down, intending to buy him a meal as soon as he was at leisure. The visitor sat down in an easy chair, but disappeared soon with a gold stop-watch which had been lying on Mr. Coleman's desk.

Mr. Coleman has advertised for the return of his watch in the Lost and Found column of THE NEW YORK TIMES. He says he is less interested in recovering it than in catching the thief. He offers a reward of $100 for information leading to his arrest.

LEAVES TITLED HUSBAND.

Marchesa San Germano Objects to Nobility's Standard of Morals.

The Marchesa San Germano, who before her marriage was Miss Virginia Hoge of Louisville, Ky., arrived on the Cunarder Lvernia yesterday morning. She said that she had returned to this country to sue her husband for a separation in Kentucky.

"American girls," she asserted, "come to a sudden realization when they marry foreign noblemen that fidelity is not a part of their husband's code of honor. They have no conception, according to American standards, of the obligations of matrimony and an American girl finds it hard, if not impossible, to understand how a man can love his wife and at the same time keep another establishment.

"The American girl marrying at home is often the victim of a drinking husband. Drunkenness she may understand, even though she does not approve. The American man drinks to excess frequently, the foreigner seldom or never, but the vices of the foreigner are, to my mind at least, worse than drinking. The European husband fails completely to understand why his wife should seek to upset all the traditions of his kind and the American girl fails to understand how he can profess to love her and spend half his time in the society of another woman, or women.

"Women and gambling are the two principal vices of the noble European and no American girl can stand either and retain her self-respect. The Marchesa has been married for three years.
